One H-bomb and the whole world is probably history. A trick like that has a good chance of starting WW III.

And anyway, what is the point of bombing them back into the Stone Age?

OK, it is true that they are way behind the times. That just shows how bad a leader they have had. Maybe we could get together with Russia and use North Korea for testing atom bombs???

The DPRK uses this sort of thing strictly to get attention from the US. They want to deal from some sort of position of strength, whether real or imagined. Neither side wants to start a ground war, since neither side can possibly win. If the DPRK were to start something, it would be with missiles and purported bio weapons. They don't really want to do that, either, since it would defeat the purpose of any attack: to gain arable ground and resources.

As far as a nuke being dropped on the DPRK.. ain't NEVER gonna happen. For one thing, the prevailing winds this time of year would tend to take any fallout into China, resulting in China retaliating, and we don't need that...

The ROK does have SW broadcasts, but I can't tell you what frequencies, since I can't hear any of them here. The article says they're using FM broadcasts to the DPRK... doubt there would be anyone that could hear them. I know that the plant (972 KHz) about 15 miles from here, running 1.5MW, is aimed right at Pyeongyang...

Actually an H-bomb is cleaner than a fission bomb in terms of bang for

Do not worry. The mineral seeking Corporations are starting regular insurgencies and bush wars to keep the minerals flowing cheaply.

They've convinced every tin pot dictator wanna be that every hundred tonnes of ore is worth a handgun or hand grenade. Diamonds and Oil have their own ratios. What the White man isn't getting almost free, the Chinese are scooping up. Putting in a hundred kilometers of road for a fifty year oil supply is a sweet deal.

If the Africans get smart, they will realize they are being played off against each other for the benefit of others. There seems to be no motion towards awareness.

..and so the circle of life continues...

Not a weak signal.. it's just that I am outside the groundwave zone, and inside the skip zone. SW is nigh onto impossible to receive in a zone between 50 and 250 Km from the source.

An African lady was on the radio here last month, asking for all foreign aid to stop. She claims, rightfully so, that it's doing more harm than good. A point made was that there is whole strata of 'aid handlers' that are getting rich from the money flow.

The theft from the money buys a lot of Mercedes Benzes and send a lot of corrupt slime balls' children to European Universities. If any of the aid actually gets through, it's a miracle.

The aid that does get through, if in the form of merchandise, puts local farmers and businesses out of work. It's hard to compete with 'below cost' supplies.

The entire Middle East and communist China have to be removed from the list too. It's a never ending money pit and a symptom of corruption at it's finest.

Last year I met a man from South America. I don't want to name any specific country. He borrowed heavily to set up a light bulb factory. There was a market nationwide.

He got hundreds of store owners on board for this plan. The arrangement was that the store could sell the bulbs, then pay for the sold ones at the end of each month. There was no cash outlay up front. Good business.

Two months later he went broke. No bulbs were being sold. It seems three American foreign aid ships had arrived, one of them filled with light bulbs. There was a condition that these bulbs could not be sold for for more than 30 cents a pair. There are always conditions on these 'free' gifts.

My acquaintance was charging one dollar. That price included a twenty percent profit. Once he was out of business, and the foreign aid bulbs were gone, the price of foreign bulbs went up to a dollar fifty. That's all there was, buy them or do without.

American foreign aid destroyed him and the country has a foreign controlled monopoly supplying the goods. That is what foreign aid does.

Look at Haiti. Us aid has ruined it's food infrastructure.

http://tinyurl.com/36tf44b

All foreign aid makes money for the giver. It's too commonly used to crush private enterprise so the foreigners can better control things.

So, yes. I hate foreign aid. The taxpayer is being used to assure business opportunities for the 'not-so-altruistic' friends of Government.

Having said that, I'm not against personally helping anyone. If you feel you should and can help somebody, all the more power to you. Personal gifts, donations, scholarships, etc. are wonderful. Give whatever you can, but it has to come from the heart, freely, with honest intentions. Watch out for the Cons. They're everywhere.

As soon as any corporation or government gets involved, it's tainted...and greatly reduced in volume. It's the handling fees, you know.

I don't know if we'll get SK propaganda BCs into the North, but...

ROK propaganda broadcasts will all, of course, be in Korean. Don't think they even bother with SW, since the only radios allowed in the DPRK are either AMBCB or AMBCB/FMBCB, and are fixed channel sets (this is why the jamming.. battling programs on the same channels.. sort of like those MW and FM transmissions to Cuba..

What few radios with other than those fixed frequencies have been smuggled into the DPRK are tightly hidden and one can actually receive a death sentence for possessing one..

Indeed, the same kinds of things happen most everywhere. There's a dead ring around most stations. I say most, because when I was a kid, there was almost no place in New England (save for northern Maine) where you could not hear WBZ Boston night and day. It was good from zero out to almost 200 miles days and all the way to the Rockies at night.

That is why I am pushing for birth control on a global scale. Population reduction by way of the elders dying a natural old age death and only a few replacements until the global population is down to 'ideally' about 1 billion. At that level we could all have a nice life.

The food could be, as I have said, laced with birth control and then the rich trash might stay clear of it. Africa is a mess right now and we really can't do anything to help in the long term.

I think that is China's long term goal for the United States. So many of our companies have been killed by the cheap Chinese alternative that we will reach that tipping point sooner rather than later.

At least the plastic containers! Which, to my mind, is a valid use

North Korea also has loads of broadcasts audible in the West, English, and are often good for bellylaughs at the expense of the Dear Leader. I hear them all the time afternoons and early evenings. FWIW, I understand that, due to various issues with mail and poor diplomatic relations, they are mighty tough to QSL. One of these days I will try, though!

BTW, the above skeds are, as always, subject to change. Check Eibi, Aoki and www.primetimeshortwave.com for updates (Aoki updates daily, the others as convenient for their compilers). Only Primetime has them grouped conveniently by country like this in English; the other two are by frequency and/or time of transmission start, and in all languages.

Hi - last night about 0700-ish, I heard a very low carrier on 7160, and some very faint but obviously high-level modulation of a male voice speaking. Eibi says, and this is the only thing it shows for 7160 except for the same station, another time slot:

7160 0500-0800 Mo-Fr CAF Radio ICDI, Baoli Vn CAF

Could this have been Central African Republic? Anybody on the East Coast of NAm get a better fix on this station?

Thanks,

At least once a week. Sometimes much more. I don't have a precise figure, but I'd say it averages 6-8 hours a week over a year.

More than I watch TV.

> Is the SP > line really the holy grail of the Hammarlunds in your opinion.
> Inquiring minds want to know.:-)

I can't say that. It's a fine rig. But I don't think of any radio as a holy grail. That said, the SP line up to SP-400 was single conversion. Very well done, but basic. SP-600 was dual conversion.

HQ was single conversion up to 180. The HQ-180 was triple conversion. Better image rejection.

The SP line looked to be a VERY serious receiver. More robust build than the HQ. But not necessarily a better performer.

What constitutes a holy grail is more likely a nostalgia component than anything else.

Good post BA - but I see down below where Bill said what I already knew about the HBomb.

For lack of a better word, it is a "cleaner burn" so too speak. These countries that have this capability know all the ramifications - both good and bad. I am sure that if it gets to the point of a TSHTF scenario - - the last thing any country that strikes the North is going to be worried about is prevailing winds on China. If it bothers China so bad, they better put a stop to this tid for tad crap or they can take a deep breath of "fresh bomb/missile air and hold it for thirty seconds then exhale." ;-)

Not that it won't be considered (prevailing winds), but that alone won't stop a missile strike. If that was the case....figure it out - any country like the North and China would never have to worry about anything.

The bottom line is this IMO. If any of these countries, any of them, continue to play bully and/or cry wolf - be prepared for the repercussions (just ask a relative of Hussein) - prevailing winds be damned. Don't think Israel isn't looking VERY CLOSELY at this situation and they could give a flying fook (thanks Ace) about prevailing winds because if they feel their security is going to be compromised - they aren't going to let it happen. Just sit back and watch how things "should be handled" if Iran continues to try an go nuclear per Israel <snicker.>I know the North has their M.O. and it's like the kid on the playground who says "my daddy can beat up your daddy" - sooner or later if that is said enough - you know what happens? That's right, the two daddy's end up meeting <heh> I know this from personal experience.

Sooner or later it's all gonna go down and I'll say "Let The Games Begin."

No point. They're beamed to the DPRK, and nobody up there speaks English.. hell, it's probably a capital crime there to speak English (except for Uncle

You can start Bill (trying to copy them). Don't think it simply cannot be heard, because it can. Now you or I understanding literally what they're saying is a different thing. But it is a kick (at least for me) to know you are hearing a transmission from the "GREAT N.Korea"<heh>. I know for a fact I was hearing them a couple of days ago.

Unless you live in an area that is extremely filled with RFI - - sooner or later you can hear them. You just have to put in the time, that is what this hobby is about and more often than not (sooner or later the SW gods will oblige and you will hear), people that aren't serious about capturing a particular signal just give up. There are over twelve stations, five are from the BCB (and don't ask what they are, it's my business, and I mean that in the nicest way.)

Start by turning on your receiver and getting every freq known to mankind and other databases and listen, if you don't have alot of time - tape recorders are our friends.:-) I have five of them and they come in handy, I just broke out (last March) my Viking recorder which IMO (for some things) is the best recorder I got.

Good luck.:-)

I think it is trying to compete with the Perseus. Don't appear to be any prototypes floating around. The earlier WR-G313e has lower dynamic range but the numbers on this model look promising. Hopefully QST or Sherwood Engineering will test one when they are in production and verify the numbers.

I volunteer to test one!

I wonder what the people of Japanese descent living on the West Coast of North America thought during the Second World War. I don't believe they were allowed radios in the concentration camps...

Though I see nothing else currently listed for the freq., I somehow doubt it would be ICDI at that time at your location. Consider that they are reportedly running low power, I'd guess a kilowatt, and that sunrise in CAR is currently at 0425. But, who knows.

As far as numbers go (at the Sherwood site), the Elecraft looks plenty hard to beat. I wish they just made a stand-alone RX. I'd even buy the kit, and hopefully not screw it up!

Good info Bruce. Here's telling you and others you are correct as to get a QSL from the North. I will go even farther in saying that even now - your envelope (if that is what you are/were sending like me) IMO may not even be getting there. We are fortunate enough to have our own little post office where if you go there as much as I do - they know you by name.

I was "somewhat" clued in that nowadays (this was maybe 3 yrs.ago) some of your mail (depending where it goes) may not even make it there. When I pressed about "what do you mean" - - I could tell there was some deception in the answers to my questions, I'll leave it at that. But if you do get one from the North, definitely Bruce - let me and the others in on it.:-) I may send my report to you and you can mail it, for a fee of course. Ha!!

What you need to do is send the report to China Radio International in a pre-addressed envelope to N. Korea.
Enclose a letter, to CRI, explaining that the mail to NK is not getting through. Toss in several $ for the nice person in Beijing who will most likely put a stamp on your enclosed envelope and head it off to NK.

Worked like a charm for me.

Unfortuantely Bob IMO, they won't be for them - but they will be for US. ;-) Heaven forbid they lock up the illegals, lock up the ones who are pissed about it instead, it's the American way - at least nowadays.

Steve, by chance do you have that addy? I sent mine (the third to fifth time) to a cousin in the Ukraine thinking it would help in it's safe travels. Kind of silly thinking on my part with the Ukraine being as dirty as all of them. Mine got to the Ukraine, but imagine this....simply no response. Maybe if I knew someone in the country of 7160 kHz is also a frequency often used by AM-mode amateurs.

Spoken like a true propagandist!

1,200 National Guard troops is not even close to "amass".
Especially when over 20,000 highy trained and specialized Border Patrol troops are already there and whose quantity is completely inadequate to secure that border.

"The 1,200 National Guard troops President Obama is dispatching to the U.S.-Mexico border will provide intelligence, reconnaissance and other
"back office" support, but one thing they won't be doing is helping a beleaguered Border Patrol and local law enforcement nab illegal immigrants and smugglers flowing into Arizona."

http://www.foxnews.com/politics/2010/05/27/obama-border-plan-solve-nations-immigration-problem/

Communist "Progressives" should note this is the same song and dance
President Bush used. But of course not a peep about their Komrad.

First, were the affluent cultures to only eat a healthy amount of meat, the extra grain left would feed everyone else. Secondly, Global Warming is moving the grain belts of Siberia and Canada further north, vastly exceeding the amount of farmland lost to rising ocean levels.

All that permafrost melting leaves behind fertile organic soil.

Birth control is necessary, but not sufficient. We need to vastly increase the number of smart sociable people to be case workers, nurses, and scientists in Alternative energy or other such problems.

Head Start just didnt cut it. The prisons are full of Head Start grads.
We need to subsidize fertility clinic services for poor women so that they can dramatically ramp up the number of competent people the next generation will need to deal with the mess we've already created.

And from Bouchard's longitudinal study of identical twins adopted out at birth to different sets of parents, we see the fundamentalist religion of the mother will not be kept by talented grown children. They wont be suckers for demagoguery either.

I think that the coming AOR AR-7070 will be a good receiver IF they build it with quality parts. The 7030 was an excellent receiver, but it only worked IF you got a good encoder and IF the buttons made contact.

That is where SDR's have the advantage. A lot of the cost is saved in a mass produced computer that is supplied by the customer. Fewer hardware filters and mechanical controls. Most of the expensive stuff is dealt with in the software.

Maybe you have seen this link. It has a picture of the inside of the 7070 receiver:

Joe, there is no mistaking I invited the guys over here....that is not up for debate. But this rubbish about Fred and the guys destroying groups is simply not the case, because - - well it is simply not the case. Krypsie studied what was going on over here because I posted over in the knife group and he saw that I didn't want to get on my knees and start smooching on Kramer like he does. He then came over to RRS and after seeing the Bryant fiasco decided to introduce himself to Mike who was in his own battle and who was looking for another one to con and help him for lack of a better word. Isn't that something, out of ALL THE PEOPLE in RRS to introduce himself to - out of ALL THE THREADS - he made acquaintances with Michael in one of the most heated months and numerous heated threads in RRS that I can remember. It was the "perfect storm" so too speak.

When I saw that Bryant was going to start slobbering on Krypsie's knob and vice versa I decided to invite the DTS. Fred and the guys will stop when ever I politely ask them, like I did before. Imagine that, ask them to stop and they do....wow- what a concept. They listen if they respect you, if they don't - you don't have a chance IMO. They don't respect Krypsie and or Kramer because they know bullshit and they know these guys are bullies and the DTS will call them out everytime they start to get on a roll because they know where it leads to, with the two K's reaking havoc and playing their weak mind games against unsuspecting posters (like I was when it came to Kramer.)

This is the bottom line. If I had never went over to the knife group to ask about (what a concept) knives.....I'd have never known any of them. If you side with one of usenets biggest troublemakers in Krypsie (just google him and see - make a night of it) - then you will do nothing but continue to bring him here - he is an attention whore with an attitude and a big bully and because I don't sweat his ass- hence the problems, irregardless of what he tries to make you think. This shit is in the archives for anyone to follow or look back and research- it's not rocket science. I'm not going to bother to proove how it started because I know how it started and anyone in RRS that was reading (during Bryant's fiasco) knows how it started. It really doesn't bother me to begin with, usenet IMO is a study in human nature/ behavior - just to see someone follow me around though is someone kreepy.

If it happens to continue though and things are being said that start to make me feel somewhat uncomfortable, then I will check into some other things and when I say "start to check" - it is going to be fun - it doesn't matter if they live in freeking Malaysia - there is a trail. I'd rather not waste my time with crap like this but I will if I feel I have no other choice. Hopefully I cleared some of this up for you, just google the months when this all started with MB, google this group and over in rec knives (it's the only two groups I have a problem in and guess what - - those two groups are Krypsie and Kraven's lair), it really is simple to figure out, I bet a somewhat smart fourth grader with computer skills can do it and I'm not saying you're not as smart because I know you are, you just may be forgetting how it "entirely" started. It's only as big a deal as you want to make out of it IMO, Krypsie is Krypsie and he isn't going to change for anyone - but watch - all the sudden we'll get "new posters" in RRS that will pipe in - not right away though because that would be too telling. When you get some time, and I'm only saying this because apparently you think I started this, just google my name - use Gregg or Bushcraftgregg - it all comes back to me. The only reasons I used different names for different groups was so the name had something to do with the group - like Benchmade....was one of them because it is the name of a knife or Bushcraft because that is a survival skill over in the survival group - that's another group I frequent- the survival group...not a problem - imagine that. The Cincinnati Reds newsgroup, not a problem - imagine that. The UFC newsgroup, not a problem - imagine that. Do you see the "pattern?" They don't frequent those groups, hence no problem - but they get a "bite" in here from you and he'll keep playing his game.

But if anyone googled any of my screen names it all came back to me "Gregg." Bryant or Krypsie were the ones (if I remember right) that made a big deal about my different names, soooooo I got rid of all of them except my name (what a concept.) I have no problem with anyone unless they simply keep pushing me and other in here and choose not to stop, it gets old. But I'm not going to stop posting in the groups where I have internet friends out of fear of a couple, ain't gonna happen.

I hope this cleared some things up, I know alot of posters in here and other groups that I respect and care about, this troublemaker has NO friends, again - just google his name and remember this- that is just the name he uses that we know about...lol. I use one name and one mane only - Gregg.

BTW - I got in the boat today and did the backwaters of the Ohio River and had a blast - caught six nice fish not counting the shovelhead that I wasn't even fishing for.:-)

Even wilder Bill is that many comment on Nostradamus, the Lord Jesus Christ said all this and even more - with 0% success rate. It's funny (not saying you) though that he never gets any of the credit and he has said all this with a 100% success rate and it's only gonna keep getting more impressive - - - with NO MISTAKES.:-)

Have a look at the activity on rec.knives now. The ONLY posters are your mates, the trolls. They have oft stated their intentions to destroy the group. They succeeded, it is quite dead and it is also quite sad. It was quite a happy little group until the trolls, your friends, followed Kramer from SCT into rec.knives and then proceeded to destroy any and all discussion.

> Krypsie studied what was going on over here because I posted

I'd been following goings on in RRS for quite some years little feller! Just because I haven't posted doesn't mean I haven't been reading. That's why I was more than a little pissed when you rocked over to groups where I did post and started stirring up the trolls.

I don't care what you do to Bryant as long as you are a man about it. Try, for instance, attacking the post rather than the poster. You might find it makes for far more interesting discussions that way!

It's against the law to post replies to other posters in RRS just because YOU don't like them? Since when did YOU make the rules in RRS?

The perfect storm that you sought to add heat too. Why was that? Did Bryant screw you or something? Why the hate?

Oh puleese! Keep your mind above your waist. Does that sort of thing really turn you on that much?

Thanks for the admission but we knew that already. So what gave you the right to act as policeman in RRS and bring in your own private attack dogs onto a poster you didn't like? I really think you don't realise just how much of a dick this makes you look!

Fred and the guys will stop when ever I politely ask them,

Of course they will! They are your private army!

like I did before. Imagine that,

Yes, I'm trying to imagine it but, no matter from which angle I view it, you still look like a dick, and a particularly nasty one at that!

> ask them to stop and they do....wow- what a concept. They listen if

Oh, so you will set your "attack dogs" onto me. My, what an interesting concept and what a hero that makes of you! I hate to tell you this but they were harassing me long before you entered the scene. In fact, they were harassing a lot of people before you ever knew them.

What a load of rot you write! All one needs is a scan through SCT or rec.knives and it will be plain to see who the trolls are. The fact that you align yourself with them says a hell of a lot about you.

Yes indeed, Bruce might never have known what a dick you really are.

Yes, do that and Google nurk and labgai while you're at it. Why not ask the posters in rec.food.cooking what nasty people nurk and larbgai are.
Kramer had no issues with anyone in rec.food.cooking until the trio of trolls arrived on the scene. Needless to say, Kramer can no longer post in that newsgroup either. You wanted the same to happen to Bryant in RRS. Of course, it backfired on you, didn't it!

> nothing but continue to bring him here - he is an attention whore with > an attitude and a big bully and because I don't sweat his ass- hence

If you hadn't started causing problems in rec.knives, I would have never given you a second glance. The only bully I can see, apart from the trio of trolls, is you. Remember, YOU were the ones who called the trio of trolls into RRS to attack YOUR enemy! I didn't do that. I merely pointed that sad fact out to other posters.

Well joe seems to have done that and he's quickly found the truth of the matter in no short order!

People in RRS aren't reading rec.knives and will have no idea of how you sided with some quite obvious trolls. Of course, you became quite put out when your trolls started wreaking havoc in RRS.

Please do some checking. I would like nothing better. BTW, I live in Melbourne, Australia. I don't live in "freeking Malaysia" which is an Asian country somewhat north of here!
If you want to speak to my employer, I'll give you his contact details;

http://www.minister.immi.gov.au/contacts/

I'm sure he would like to speak to you about me. It might provide him with a welcome diversion from our "refugee problem". Note that I'm only a humble consultant to his office these days having officially retired from public service some 2 years back.

My lairs, if you could call them that, in no particular order, are soc.culture.thai, soc.culture.vietnam, soc.culture.laos, soc.culture.australia, soc.culture.cambodia, soc.culture.japan, soc.culture.malaysia, soc.culture.indonesia, aus.politics, nz.politics, uk.politics, us.politics, rec.radio.shortwave, rec.knives, net.food.bread, rec.food.cooking, alt.cooking.chat, alt.bread.recipes rec.radio.amateur.homebrew, rec.radio.scanner, alt.radio.broadcasting, alt.radio.digital, aus.radio.broadcast, alt.internet.wireless, aus.radio.amateur.digital plus quite a number of other groups which I recently unsubscribed due to total a lack of activity. Since rec.knives has no on-topic discussions and remains a trollfest with YOUR mates in control, I suspect it will be the next group I unsubscribe from. Note also that I don't necessarily post to all of these groups but I do read and take interest in the discussions posted therein.

Kramer became your target even though he was long gone from rec.knives before you got there. Your troll mates harassed him in several other newsgroups, including rec.food.cooking and alt.cooking.chat. He is not the only poster they harassed. There have been many over the years, particularly in SCT, and most of these have long since departed the group along with most of the other regular posters.

I doubt Joe has "forgotten" how it all started. I also doubt he is as unintelligent as you deem him. You, on the other hand, don't seem to be displaying a great deal of intelligence at all. ....

It's quite obvious to me that Joe has gone back over past posts. I can only go back a month or two, depending on newsgroups, as I automatically delete posts older than that.

IMO, Krypsie is Krypsie and he isn't going to change for anyone -

Nope, at the ripe old age of 72, I can safely say that I'm quite set in my ways!

I've used "Krypsis" for some 5 - 6 years now and a see no reason to change. Why the conspiracy theories, Gregg?

The only one playing games, Gregg, is you! Of course I don't frequent many of the groups you frequent! You probably don't side with trolls on those newsgroups either. You did side with the trolls on rec.knives and sct and THAT is where I have issue with you. The trolls have been harassing me for quite some time now and YOU took up the cudgel WITH THEM AGAINST ME!

Try discussing what people post rather than attacking posters because YOU disagree with what THEY write. Everyone is entitled to their opinion and are quite free to discuss and debate these in open forums. You do need to respect that they are as entitled to their opinions as you are to yours.

Me? Scaring you? Why would I bother? I am merely pointing out what a dick you have been in siding with the trolls.

I use only one other name and that in only one (1) newsgroup. That newsgroup is soc.culture.vietnam and, if you knew the politics of Vietnam, you might understand why. My wife has family there and I would hate that what I might innocently write in SCV might be used against them.

Well, you were fishing for "trouble" in RRS and, at your behest, it certainly followed you here!

Mississippi Internment Camps in World War Two

There were four German POW Camps in Mississippi in World War Two.One of them was five miles West of doggy's couch, Clinton,Mississippi.(Clinton was named for an ex-New York Governor, I don't know why) One of those German POW Officers slipped out of that Camp, he hitched a ride to the Heidleburg Hotel in down town Jackson, he wrote a letter to the Governor, he told the Governor how nice the German POWs were being treated.He took in a movie and then he went back to that Camp.Those Krauts never had it so Good before.Mississippi is the Magnolia State, also known as the Hospitality State.

There are no internment camps in Mississippi now.

I inquired. A lot of the receive path goes backwards through the 10 Watt exciter board (filters, relays) and it is not feasible to offer the radio without it. For General Coverage you must add a wide IF filter and a second set of input bandpass filters. A little under $2K for a radio that runs circles around many costing 2 or 3 (or more) times that much money. I suggest getting a General Class ham license (no code required since 2007) and adopting a K3, if you have a true passion for pure radio.

Last time I checked a map, the west coast of North America included Canada.

Perhaps your education taxes are being diverted to something other than schooling. The cost of one good sized missile will put a kid through school from Kindergarten to a Doctorate Degree, with change left over.

Somewhere in the middle of that, the topic of geography and map making will show up. Did you miss school that day or buy a missile?

Stop killing foreigners at Wedding Receptions and drag out those dusty maps. Education eschews arrogance.

Follow up - I sent an email to icdi internationla, and they wrote me back. This freq is not in use:

Bruce,

Thanks for your email. We have not used the frequency 7160 because of issues here with propagation. The other frequencies I gave you are the ones we are using. I am not sure who you heard but it was not us.

I hope this is helpful. I have copied Josue Mbami who understands a bit of English and much better French and Sango. If you have questions write to him and if he does not understand your english he will write to me with questions.

To: info@icdinternational.org

Good day to you - last night, I was listening to my shortwave radio on 7.160 MHz at about 07:00 UTC / GMT (midnight my time, morning Central African time), and I heard a faint radio signal with male voice speaking. The language was unintelligible to me.

Could this have been Radio ICDI in the Central African Republic? All of the information I have shows no other broadcaster on this channel at this time. I did not know you had this frequency in use - am I perhaps correct?

From Eibi and HFCC:

7160 kHz 0500-0800 (UTC) Mo-Fr CAF Radio ICDI, Baoli

I wish I could provide more program detail, but the signal was exceedingly weak and the band was noisy (although there was no interference from other stations).

Thank you,

OK - Actually, I thought it has already been officially moved - but my guess is that there will be stations in places like Africa where this regulation is loosely followed at best.

They certainly had prisoner-run art "programs"; a good deal of important Japanese-American art came out of some of them. Other recreations and passtimes were permitted too. Make no mistake - they were not pleasant or fun - but they were also not the gruesome hellholes of Nazi Germany.

I'm still studying for my ham license and still learning CW. I enjoyed the Grove website and am looking for a moderate priced ($100-200) receiver for tuning in CW signals. I see many trick radios in that price range. Some with weather channels, which would be nice, some with MW/LF besides SW. Also, many claim SSB. A question. Does shortwave pull in CW. Seems to me it does. I recall a old tube SW radio I played around with as a kid. Madly studying my band maps. I would like to pull in some CW signals to help learn.

Also, I need a radio that's pretty sensitive. I'm waaaay out in the boonies, the CO Rockies at 8K ft. No problem putting up some sorta rudimentary outside antenna (dipole, etc). Any help appreciated while I'm still learning all this new stuff. ;)

CW is a mode of modulation. SW is a band of wavelengths or frequencies. CW mode modulates a frequency. So if there is CW being operated on SW, you can pull them in with a CW receiver.

There are many CW operators on Shortwave.

Performance is a function, first, of antenna. It's the antenna that receives the signal. The receiver simply separates the many signals on your antenna, and makes them intelligible.

A good antenna on a less sensitive radio will often produce better results than a lesser antenna on a more sensitive radio.

If you can put up a decent antenna, you can begin with a less expensive radio.

A good choice, and excellent experience in construction, would be Ten-Tec 1254. It's in your price range.

http://www.tentec.com/index.php?id=50

There are videos on the Ten-Tec website showing construction tips, and operational guides.

It's pretty cool for a beginner's radio.

He also has the added benefit of being in the boonies, as he puts it, so a really big antenna to pull in the weaker CW will probably not result in a big increase in QRM. Such a sweet deal!

Liberty Net: May 22, 2010

http://3950.net/2010/05/liberty-net-may-22-2010/

by Kevin Strom, WB4AIO

THERE WAS a coordinated effort to jam the Liberty Net with noise and obscenities this week, and, although some of the intentional jammers had strong signals, the use of alternate frequencies and multiple Stickam.com audio feeds made sure that the Liberty Net communications came through. Itï¿½s truly shocking how little control ï¿½ or even interest in control ï¿½ the FCC has over these flagrantly illegal and illegitimate operators.

Hereï¿½s a small sampling of the topics covered on this weekï¿½s Net ï¿½ topics that someone doesnï¿½t want you to hear about, apparently:

ï¿½ According to a report in the EU Times, the Russian government has intelligence showing that the Gulf oil spill was the result of a submarine attack, and that Obama ordered a news blackout immediately after Washington learned of the event. (20 minutes)

ï¿½ Why are we asking young Americans to die to secure the borders of Iraq and Israel ï¿½ when we make almost no effort whatsoever to secure our own border? (43 minutes)

ï¿½ Oil rigs simply do not explode, even in hurricanes. (50 minutes)

ï¿½ Russia and China retain a (relatively) low-tech infrastructure, making them far less vulnerable to destruction by electromagnetic pulse (EMP) weapons. (1 hour 35 minutes)

ï¿½ It is truly astounding how the billionaire oligarchs have been able to paint their agenda as ï¿½leftistï¿½ in order to gain support from a large and mainly unthinking bloc of the population. (1 hour 57 minutes)

ï¿½ In Germany, it is now estimated that over 50% of the average citizensï¿½ tax bill will be given directly to banks. (2 hours 24 minutes)

ï¿½ Will there ultimately be a worldwide war between the productive people on one side ï¿½ and the parasitic underclass and parasitic financial elites on the other? (2 hours 27 minutes)

Listen to the Liberty Net every Saturday night ï¿½ within 10 kHz or so of 3950 SSB, starting at 10PM Eastern Time.

Our thanks go to W1WCR for his hard work and courage in keeping an important part of the amateur radio service alive since 1974!

Thanks to Marty, N2IRJ, youï¿½re able to listen to the Liberty Net right now on your computer ï¿½ or download the file and listen on your portable mp3 player. And N2SAG operates a live feed and chat during Net times that lets you make an end run around jammers and a fickle ionosphere.

Yeah, probably. I'm too close to a local AFB, Beale, so I would be among the first to go if anything ever got to that point. It has been 2,000 years so maybe the calendar is off. I do think we will do ourselves in at some point in this century.

There is an obscure example to consider, which begins in Anatolia 10,000 BP, reported by Hodder, "The Leopard's Tale" among others. He's digging at Chatal Hoyuk, but its the same as the rest of a dozen of Eolithic cities. No sign of warfare.

He goes down thru 1500 years of occupation layers, and there's no burnt rubble, vandalism, or buried victims. Every one of the 61 bodies he found so far was ritually buried.

The dendochronology suggests the same sort of agrarian communities were established along the rivers that empty into the West End of the Black Sea. Gimbutas, "The Goddesses and Gods of Old Europe" and other works shows us hundreds of artifacts recovered from the tels. There are no weapons nor graves of warriors nor signs of warfare.

Aware of the controversy about peacefulness, Goodison and Morris, on the fly leaf of their "Ancient Goddesses" set out to open a virgin tel specifically looking for signs of violence, going down thru occupation layers from 4000 BC to 8000 BC. They did not find any.

Joseph Campbell wrote the forward to Gimbutas' "The Language of the Goddess, which he closes with:

"The lesson here is of an actual age of peace and harmony with the creative energies of Nature, which for a spell of some 4000 prehistoric years, anteceded the 5000 of what James Joyce has termed the "Nightmare" (of contending tribal and national interests) from which it is certainly time for this planet to wake." [his parens]

They were ruled by witches not a warrior elite. They worshiped Gaia. It is easy to understand when you consider the problem a demagogue would have trying to rile up a mob or army by claiming that HE speaks in HER name.

Sorry for the major snip, but your first sentence is my sole complaint and as far as I need to go. I do not care about rec.knives, your pissing contest with Krypsis, blah, blah, blah...

Let me give you an analogy:

Say that you live in "Town A" (RRS) and a bar room brawl breaks out there. You then call in some thugs from "Town B" to come to Town A and cause trouble.

Sadly, even though the bar room brawl is over and the Bryant affair is long since finished, the out of town thugs (that YOU brought over) are STILL in RRS. THAT is my complaint. :-(

They still need some fairly expensive analog components to prevent overloading the A to D converter. For instance in the Perseus there is an analog front end with a pre-selector, pre-amp, and attenuator.

I have to tell you, I read you first three sentences and it's the same thing you have blabbered since I had the misfortune of meeting you. You are a troublemaker, you can try an twist and turn / shuck and jive but that is just the facts jack. I am waiting on my post where I said "that Kramer was already gone over in rec knives when I started posting." <heh> You liar, you know.....that is exactly the term that is "perfect" for you......you are just a liar. You are now put back on pause by myself because you are just the same tired bore you always are and the great thing about the truth - is that it's the truth. And again, I'll be waiting for that post.<heh> Now, back to shortwave.

The out of town thugs? Oh quit it Joe, aren't we being a tad melodramatic here. OK, I'll play - guess who CAME OVER HERE AGAIN and started the trouble? You get one guess, it's not rocket science either. Because I have this IDIOT, and that's what he is - FOLLOWING ME over here and stirring crap up - it's like a bad cold that will keep spreading. Bruce called him on it (though he didn't have to) - he spoke up and told him to get lost.

Now "magically" someone posts about Steve falsifying logs or some such nonsense, like I said earlier - it is human nature at its finest in usenet and you have just egged this clown on. He has been waiting - he has been chumming the waters and you took a big ole' gulp and now his ass will be here wayyyyyy much longer than Fred ever will. I hope you and me can somewhat agree to meet somewhere in the middle on this, you have brought alot to the group and everything was going fine till..... "Look Above."

I understand that they were usually allowed to keep their radios, but those with SW capability had the SW disabled (usually by the removal of a vital component). After the war, some had the SW restored. [I believe there's previously been some discussion about this in this - and other -

Let me correct this once and for all. YOU came over to rec.knives and started stirring the trolls into action. Rec.knives was a group I subscribed to, along with RRS. QED, Since I was in rec.knives all along,
YOU followed ME to rec.knives!

> keep spreading. Bruce called him on it (though he didn't have to) - he

And Joe proved that Bruce was in error. Bruce now has gone awfully quiet on the whole deal! Why am I not surprised, especially after YOUR confession made him look foolish in defending you!

Everything was going fine until (a) YOU came over into a group to which I am subscribed and (b) you invited the trio of trolls over to RRS, another group to which I am subscribed, to fight YOUR battles for you.

I might also point out that a troll is, in usenet parlance, a troublemaker. But you know this! That's why you invited the trio of trolls over to RRS ... to cause trouble. That the trio of trolls have inducted YOU into their self proclaimed DTS (Distinguished Troll Society) says much about your troublemaking and bullying activities in Usenet.
Yet, in spite of your confession, still you persist in calling me a troll and a usenet bully when it is patently obvious to all and sundry that YOU have allied yourself with some of the nastiest trolls in the business!

Just remember too that I never participated in the stoush you had with Mike Bryant and that I also didn't invite the trolls over to help YOU deal with Mike Bryant! Interestingly, you say "everything was going fine till", but you fail to mention that there was one almighty flame war going on around Mike Bryant and you sided against him. You must use a different definition of "fine" to the one I am familiar with.

Hey, I forgot to add. That other great database for freqs that Bob gave the link to, though it is very good - unknown to me at the time - is just for english. Yeah, it has the other languages also - but if you can't tell the dialect you are screwed - so this one along with that one is the perfect setup to have IMO.

Before PLL synthesisers you had to use a TCXO the size of a microwave oven to provide sufficient frequency stability.

Fair enough. This little station, being perhaps a 1 kW station, might be using just a ham rig and amp with an oversized power supply for broadcast. In any case, the station rep said there were "propagation" problems, whatever that means, so they were not using that frequency.

As long as you are in a country that does restrict ownership of ham transmitters to licensed hams, you would be better off IMHO getting a used transcevier. I assume you are not in the US, because you ask as if you are required to learn Morse code before getting a license.

If you want to learn Morse code buy a copy of "Code Quick" from Jerry Wheeler. http://www.cq2k.com/

As for a radio, contact a local club and see if they will lend you one.

If you want to buy a used transceiver you can get a TenTec Trition, or early Omni, Kenwood TS-520,820,T530,830,130,430 or a similar Icom or Yaseu.

Buy it locally and have them demo it. Do not depend upon an auction site or mail order deal (except Universal radio) for it to work when it arrives.

Geoff.

Yes! Tonight's the night for the greatest net in the history of amateur radio!

It occurs every Saturday at 22:00 Eastern (02:00 UT) near (usually above) 3950 khz LSB. It is a current events discussion net with heavy emphasis on politics and social issues, often from a conservative/ libertarian viewpoint .... which drives the goofball liberal/marxist Obama-sucking hams so crazy that they often try to jam the net.

Any receiver with SSB will tune in CW signals. However, CW is a narrow bandwidth mode so a receiver with a narrow/wide filter selection is preferable. A narrower filter will allow you to zero in on one station at a time. Also, you would want the ability to tune in fine increments so that the CW tone is continuously variable and you are able to get the same audio frequency with each CW station.

Since you mention that you are in the US, you don't need to pass a code test to become an amateur operator. But it is a good idea to learn CW anyway since you are interested. You would want to listen to the 40 meter band just above 7MHz. This is where the novices used to practice and you should hear a few people after sunset sending CW at slower speeds in this area. Put your receiver in SSB (LSB mode to listen to CW). Tune away. Good luck!

LW beacons are good to practice on too. A beacon station transmits a steady tone interrupted by a CW ID.

Good point. There's also W1AW on 3.581 MHz. This is surrounded by BPSK31, so you'll need a real CW filter to resolve it.

Thanks. However, this 'holiday' is not Veterans Day, but rather the Memorial Day 'holiday', when we honour those who gave their lives in service to our Country.

Veterans Day is November 11.

Ah.. you've hit on one of my peeves, Steve. Any day people get off they call a "holiday". Memorial day is not a holiday, and is not meant to be "celebrated." It is a solemn observance, and, like many actual holidays, has been usurped and treated as just another reason to have a sale...

People "who gave their lives in service to our country" were what?
Not veterans cuz they didn't survive!? Might be, but the fact they didn't survive means little in the big picture and even less in your little hair-splitting rectification. Memorial Day, Veteran's Day.... there can never be too many observances in honor of those who have defended our country and it's damn petty to take someone to task over such a minor distinction.

Memorial Day is about how stupid the Civil War was, and, by logical extension, how stupid all wars are. I'd honor the veterans more if they'd quit obeying illegal orders.

not melodramatic?

> started the trouble? You get one guess, it's not rocket science > either. Because I have this IDIOT, and that's what he is - FOLLOWING

Let me correct this once and for all. YOU came over to rec.knives and started stirring the trolls into action. Rec.knives was a group I subscribed to, along with RRS. QED, Since I was in rec.knives all along,
YOU followed ME to rec.knives!

> keep spreading. Bruce called him on it (though he didn't have to) - he

And Joe proved that Bruce was in error. Bruce now has gone awfully quiet
on the whole deal! Why am I not surprised, especially after YOUR confession made him look foolish in defending you!

> Now "magically" someone posts about Steve falsifying logs or some such

Everything was going fine until (a) YOU came over into a group to which I am subscribed and (b) you invited the trio of trolls over to RRS, another group to which I am subscribed, to fight YOUR battles for you.

I might also point out that a troll is, in usenet parlance, a troublemaker. But you know this! That's why you invited the trio of trolls over to RRS ... to cause trouble. That the trio of trolls have inducted YOU into their self proclaimed DTS (Distinguished Troll Society) says much about your troublemaking and bullying activities in Usenet.
Yet, in spite of your confession, still you persist in calling me a troll and a usenet bully when it is patently obvious to all and sundry that YOU have allied yourself with some of the nastiest trolls in the business!

Just remember too that I never participated in the stoush you had with Mike Bryant and that I also didn't invite the trolls over to help YOU deal with Mike Bryant! Interestingly, you say "everything was going fine till", but you fail to mention that there was one almighty flame war going on around Mike Bryant and you sided against him. You must use a different definition of "fine" to the one I am familiar with.

That might be just it.

I notice one of the local discount automotive shops is carrying

For what it is worth. I went into the local Walmart and found generic Chinese bulbs at $.99 and the identical bulbs labeled as GE or some other American name brand at twice or even 5 times the price so all you are getting is the American name and making the CEO a lot of money. They are simply doing what it takes to meet the demand from the clueless American consumer. We don't care how bad the oil companies have to rape the earth to meet our demand, as long as we don't have to live with the result. If the environmental mayhem happens to affect us (rather than some anonymous third-world country), then the oil companies suddenly become "criminals".

As of this morning, our roads are still full of gas hog SUVs and pickup trucks, most with one person in them. If you really wish to see something criminal, just stroll by any USA elementary school at closing time and see the huge line of mommy-driven SUVs, all idling with AC condensate puddles under them, waiting so their darlings won't have to soil themselves mixing with the commonfolk in the school bus nor walk a few blocks home.

If we are looking for someone to blame for the Gulf disaster, we need to start with ourselves.

Well, you may be right...or you may be wrong.

You know these bulbs are -identical- how? You've seen the specs for both brands, you've done a comparative chemical analysis of the gas and the phosphor coating inside the bulbs, right? Oh, what's that you say? They both -look- like CFLs so they must be identical?

As an aside, got a friend that bought both the Chinese junkers and GE. He claimed the warranty support for GE was great and non-existent for the Chinese.

Finally, as to RFI... I've got two GE 3-way CFLs (50-100-150 watt equivalent) very near my stereo receiver. There is subtle (but noticeable) RFI when the receiver on and listening to the FM band. Yes, you would think FM is immune to any amplitude modulated interference, but the RFI IS there and goes away when the CFLs are turned off. Also, bringing a Sony 2010 near the bulbs shows some mild RFI on some frequencies, not all across the bands. If I wasn't so lazy, I would break out the HP spectrum analyzer and take a look. :D

P.S.
Just in case you mistakenly think I am defending GE CEOs, I believe that Neutron Jack Welch should have been put in jail long ago, rather than being feted as a "business hero".

You added a zero, right?

3600 ma = 3.6 A X 120 volts = 432 watts. A mighty powerful desk lamp! :-)

Might have meant milliwatts. 3.6 watts would be about right for a flood LED.

Catfish Alley in Columbus.

Decorating the Graves of the Blue and the Grey, it all started first in Columbus,Mississippi.April 25,1866.

They didn't have good quality dye back in those days, for dyeing cloth/fabric.It didn't take long untill that Blue started fading to Grey.

Soros-funded group urges more government control of media

The policy director at a George Soros funded,
http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/individualProfile.asp?indid=977

Marxist-founded organization calling itself Free Press has just taken a key State Department position, WND has learned.

Free Press Policy Director Ben Scott has been named a policy advisor for innovation at the State Department.

“We will miss Ben’s leadership, wise counsel, and strategic brilliance – for Free Press and the overall movement for media and technology policy in the public interest,” said Free Press President Josh Silver.

Free Press is a well-known advocate of government intervention in the Internet.
http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/groupProfile.asp?grpid=7103

Scott authored a book, “The Future of Media,” which was edited by the founder of Free Press, Robert W. McChesney, who is an avowed Marxist who has recommended capitalism be dismantled.

McChesney is a professor at the University of Illinois and former editor of the Marxist journal Monthly Review.
http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/individualProfile.asp?indid=2227

In February 2009, McChesney recommended capitalism be dismantled

“In the end, there is no real answer but to remove brick-by-brick the capitalist system itself, rebuilding the entire society on socialist principles,” wrote McChesney in a column.

The board of Free Press has included a slew of radicals, such as Obama’s former “green jobs” czar” Van Jones, who resigned after it was exposed he founded a communist organization.
http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/individualProfile.asp?indid=2406

Last week, WND reported Free Press published a study advocating the development of a “world class” government-run media system in the U.S. http://www.wnd.com/?pageId=156025

Now the group is pushing a new organization, StopBigMedia.com, that advocates the downfall of “big media” and the creation of new media to “promote local ownership, amplify minority voices, support quality journalism, and bring local artists, voices and viewpoints to the airwaves.”

Free Press has ties to other members of the Obama administration

Obama's "Internet czar," Susan P. Crawford, spoke at Free Press's May 14, 2009, "Changing Media" summit in Washington, D.C. Crawford's pet project, OneWebNow, lists as "participating organizations" Free Press and the controversial Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now, or ACORN.
http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/groupProfile.asp?grpid=6968

Crawford and Kevin Werbach, who co-directed the Obama transition team's Federal Communications Commission Review team, are advisory board members at Public Knowledge, a George Soros-funded public interest group.

A Public Knowledge advisory board member is Timothy Wu, who is also chairman of the board for Free Press.

Like Public Knowledge, Free Press also has received funds from Soros' Open Society Institute.

You just had to mention a personal spectrum analyzer. Now I'm jealous.
The CFL's run hot due 'Probably' to the drive electronics being as cheap as they possibly can. Anyway I think the main source of noise is something else. I unplugged my power strip on the other side of the room and got a little less noise but still well above the Galactic noise level or the receiver's. I bought some new CDL's and replaced the really crummy ones, so it is getting better. The worst offender now is a touch lamp that uses an SCR, but even off it produces noise, again made in China.

Sorry Cuhulin...I wasn't referring to you. The comment was directed toward that dummmass in South Bend but for whatever reason my response to his last brain-dead comment ended up appearing as a response to yours.

Well, maybe it -was- a big surprise to you, as you blamed it on CEO greed...overlooking the fact that the price differential could be related to a good warranty versus a poor or no warranty. (Not that we don't have an overabundance of corporate greed). :-)

Tell that to the employees at Kodak who lost their jobs when the film got too expensive and they moved to Mexico. Now the film division is going down anyway. That corporate manager might not get his Porsche.

What are you, Anti Semite? The Jews were perfectly within their rights to bomb the hell out of that ship. They honestly believed it was carrying food, water and medicine to the Palestinians. When the US sides with Terrorists, they get treated like Terrorists.

LONG time ago I had a couple of letters read by Jerry and Dody Cowan on "His and Hers" (Radio Nederland), by Keith Glover in Melbourne, and by Lynn Henderson and Charles Gursky up in Montreal at RCI. I have a feeling that CRI may have read a letter of mine recently as well, but I may have missed it.

Anyone parting out a Kenwood R-5000? I need a new antenuator knob.

Please don't tell me to:

1. Check the Yahoo group. I've asked there many times and no one ever is.

2. Order it from Kenwood Parts in the USA. Quite simply, I can't.

The same knob is used on a TS-440.

Thanks,

Yeah, it's always neat to hear your name on radio or tv. We have a

I heard it Bruce, good deal.:-) That wasn't as sappy as I thought it'd be...lol...but it was a nice letter. These places really like when you do that. I always make a point to handwrite a letter and more often than not I send a postcard from my area - be it the BCB or SW. Was that Myra singing at the beginning of that segment? Whoever it was has a beautiful voice. Good job!!

Hi, Gregg - pretty fun :-) Yeah, the Te Maori music was really pretty, and lovely vocals. The DX report from NZ is interesting too - tough African stations for NAm, they can take for granted. I have not yet sent any postcards, but I just developed a "SWL" card that I now send to every station that has full data on the back plus this photo on one side:

There are so many personalities in this group at times it's hard to remember who does/doesn't like who. I didn't know or remember the rift between RHF and Dave. Me personally, at first I didn't think much of either Dave or Bob, sometimes it just "takes a while" to figure everyone out and like BA said a while back which is very true - something like "most people have things in common or think the say way with just a few differences".....that wasn't verbatim but pretty close.

I guess it is what is your definition of a troll. I thought a troll was/is someone that says something just to get a reaction from people.
I never thought of RHF as a troll, he helped out alot of people (most that just lurk) by providing links to different subject matter.

When I started in here yearsssss ago and used my email - I can promise you I got emails from over fifteen different people asking me questions that were afraid of being ridiculed in here, so I'm sure his links have helped out quite a few, having said that - changing the title of a thread I never understood. ;-)

This is a fun station, eh? Excellent music here, and easy for which to write a reception report. However, their official policy is not to send QSL cards. Blah.

The SIBC on 5020v (5019.96) has been a bit better than usual the last several late nites at my QTH, especially after 0900z when they fade in strongly enough to beat the Radio Rebelde splatter from 5 kHz upband - may be worth a grab at your house too. Try LSB or passband to slide Rebelde aside. Wrote a couple of reception reports for them this week, we'll see what happens.

Band allocations and time zone conversions for the USA. Includes broadcast bands used outside the USA. For multi-use bands, primary usage is shown.
Some stations operate outside official bands. Information is from Oct 2008 FCC rules and Sep 2009 NTIA manual, see Chapter 4 of:
http://www.ntia.doc.gov/osmhome/redbook/redbook.html

Frequencies are in kHz. Usual spacing in shortwave broadcast bands is 5 kHz. Frequencies above 10000 kHz tend to propagate better during the day; frequencies below 10000 kHz tend to propagate better at night.

Please e-mail suggestions and corrections to billmc@agora.rdrop.com.

Phone line as SW antenna Bill McFadden
billmc@agora.rdrop.com

Changes preceded by "|".

WARNINGS AND DISCLAIMERS

Connecting unapproved devices to phone lines may be illegal in your area.
Telephone lines present a potential shock hazard. Do not use this antenna for transmitting. Use at your own risk.

INTRODUCTION

This article describes how to use a phone line as a shortwave receiving antenna. Performance will vary depending on the kind of phone line you have. Overhead lines usually make okay antennas, while underground lines | usually don't. Phone lines carrying DSL service may be unsuitable because | DSL operates over a wide spectrum. A phone line antenna will generally pick up more power line noise than a dedicated antenna, so don't expect to | use it for DX work. Nevertheless, I found that it outperformed the | telescopic whip antennas built into many portables.

A reader sent in this suggestion: If you're concerned about connecting the phone line directly to the receiver, try wrapping the phone cord several times around the receiver's telescopic whip antenna instead.
Performance may not be as good as a direct connection, but it will probably be better than the whip antenna by itself.

Someone else wrote asking about lightning protection. I haven't thought much about it because thunderstorms are rare in my area. Most phone lines have lightning arrestors on them where they enter the house, but the lightning arrestors may pass enough energy during a lightning strike damage a receiver. My suggestion is to disconnect the antenna when not in use if you experience frequent thunderstorms.

HOW TO DO IT

The simplest connection is a single capacitor between the phone line and receiver. The capacitor eliminates all phone line voltages, including | ringing, so that they will not harm the receiver. The capacitor should
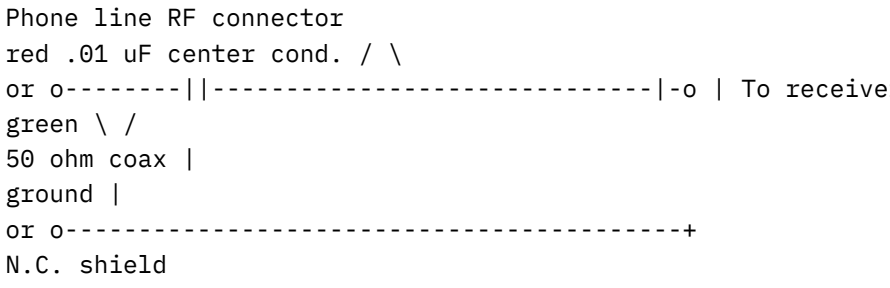
| be rated 250 volts or higher.



N.C. = no connect. I originally connected the phone line ground (yellow wire) to this terminal, but reception was better without it (if you do this, play it safe and put a .01 uF capacitor in series). If another ground is available, you can connect it to this terminal.

If you are picking up local AM or FM radio stations on the shortwave bands, it is likely that your receiver is overloaded. Inexpensive and portable receivers usually lack the filtering needed to eliminate this interference, but you can make your own filters. Filters can also be | purchased from shortwave dealers (see below for recommendations).

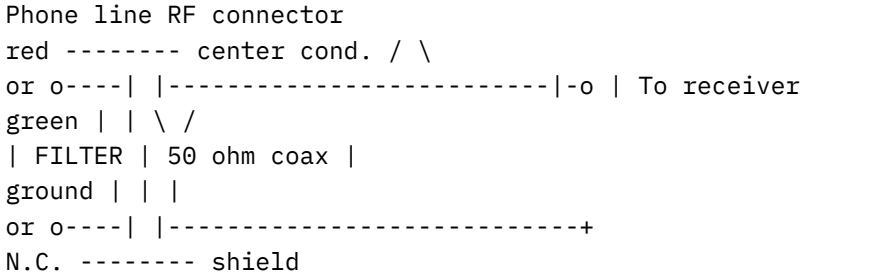
A high-pass filter can be used to remove signals below the shortwave bands. It rejects interference from local AM stations and presents a high impedance to the phone line at audio frequencies so that the phone line remains balanced.

A low-pass filter can be used to remove signals above the shortwave bands. It rejects interference from FM and TV stations, as well as VHF 2-way radio transmitters. If you use both filters, connect the output of the first filter to the input of the second (don't forget to connect their ground terminals together). It doesn't matter which filter is connected first.

These filters also work well with random wire antennas. Just connect the antenna in place of the phone line.

The filter(s) should be connected to the phone line in this manner:



| RECOMMENDED FILTERS
| If you don't want to make your own filters, the following have good | performance, are well-built and affordable:
| Model 400 BCB interference filter (3.5 MHz highpass)

FILTER PLANS

The original credit for the high-pass and low-pass filters goes to Paul Blumstein and John Shalamskas, respectively. Edited versions of their articles are included here:

Date: 09 Jan 91 00:54:08 GMT
From: paulb@harley.TTI.COM (Paul Blumstein)
Subject: BC Band Hi-Pass Filter

The following ascii-schematic diagram is a high pass filter that will filter out Broadcast Band (MW) stations. I found it a great boon to my shortwave listening since local MW stations overload my ATS-803A front end & appear in SW, especially with a long antenna.

If you remember my antenna saga, I went from 50 feet to 150 feet & had overload problems causing me to cut back to 50 feet. (Even at 50 feet, I still have some MW interference). I took the advice of Gary Coffman and looked up filters in the ARRL Handbook. With the filter in place, I intend to try to increase my antenna length again.

Anywho, here is the filter, for interested parties.

--------||---+----||-----+----||-----------
} }
{ {
} }
-------------+-----------+-----------------

The outer capacitors are 1500 pf ceramic disks.
The inner capacitor is 820 pf ceramic disk.
The squiggly things are coils (two total). Each one is 2.7 uh.
(a close value will do).

From: bill@videovax.tv.tek.com (William K. McFadden)
Subject: Re: BC Band Hi-Pass Filter

I built the filter that Paul Blumstein posted recently and measured it on a gain-phase analyzer. Here are its characteristics:

100 kHz -120dB
500 kHz -68dB

1000 kHz -38dB
1600 kHz -15dB
2100 kHz -3dB

The source and load impedances were 50 ohms. Because the filter has five elements, the attenuation is 30dB per octave. The measurements confirmed this.

This filter seems to be a good compromise between interference attenuation and passband response. There is very little attenuation in the 120m band and above. It could use a little more attenuation at the upper end of MW, which could be done with more stages or a higher cutoff frequency. Alternatively, you could build two of these filters and put them in series. (Since two 1500pF capacitors in series are really 750pF, you could eliminate one cap.)

Just for fun, I put 470 ohms in series with the input to see how the filter performed with an antenna mismatch. The response was:

100 kHz -105dB
500 kHz -60dB
1000 kHz -35dB
1600 kHz -15dB
2300 kHz -3dB

These figures are normalized to the passband response of -15dB, which is due to the impedance mismatch between the source and load and would have been there without the filter. Hence, the filter works almost as well in spite of the mismatch, which is good news to those who use long-wire antennas.

Subject: Construction of filters for SW reception

Several people have asked for construction details of the filters I built for my DX-440.

The high-pass filter helped some, but in my location the VHF/UHF broadcasters are also causing problems. So, I dug out the ARRL handbook and chose a 7-element Chebyshev low-pass design that is -3 dB at 35 MHz, -20 dB at 43 MHz, and -50 dB at 64 MHz (all calculated; it works well in practice!)

LOW-PASS FILTER (Rejects FM, TV, etc.)

chassis ground

I had to do a little more improvising at this point. I used .33 uH instead of .36, and .66 uH instead of .42, but it works fine.

The 5-lug terminal strips were perfect for these circuits, since there are 4 lugs plus a grounded lug. All "ground" connections go to the lug that is mounted to the chassis, and the other 4 lugs are used for each of the connections on the signal line. One terminal strip is used per filter. Since both filters were necessary to clean up the hash, I am going to put them both into one box when I get the time.

The proper way to connect them is in series, i.e.

signal in ------- filter 1 -------- filter 2 -------- signal out

There is no difference between ends. They are "bilateral" which means you can't possibly hook them up backwards. (In the above schematics, left and right ends are interchangeable.)

COIL WINDING

You can make the coils yourself using this formula:

L = 0.2 * B^2 * N^2 / (3B + 9A + 10C)

L is the inductance, in uH
A is the length of the coil, in inches
B is the mean diameter of the coil, in inches
C is the diameter of the wire, in inches
N is the number of turns

For small wire, you can assume C = 0.

PARTS SOURCE

Parts for the filters can be obtained from the following source:

The local Walmart has the 'equivalent' 60, 75

for $ 0.92 each. {Bright White & Warm White}

While the GE Reveal CFLs sell for $10 for a pair.

Most of the time it is the Electronics that make up the Starter and the Ballast that are the source of the RFI not the actual CFL Light Bulb Element {Tube}.

Direct plug-in 120 VAC LEDs will have the same problem getting the 120 VAC down to the lower DCV of the LED.
the LED's other Electronics could be a 'source' of some very small amounts of RFI -if- done right -or- a 'source' of some RFI -if- done cheaply/badly.

FWIW most of the LEDs that i have attempted to use in the last few years have been : Too Dim or Fail within a Year due to internal heat, internal 'connections' and other AC to DC circuit components.

Not So Bright LEDs
LED Wattage to Incandescent Light Bulb [ILB] Watts :
1 LED Watt ~ 9 ILB Watt

2 LED Watt ~ 18 ILB Watt
3 LED Watt ~ 24 ILB Watt
4 LED Watt ~ 32 ILB Watt
5 LED Watt ~ 45 ILB Watt
-note- here that a 5 Watt LED is about as 'bright' as a 'dim' 40 Watt ILB and most Consumers would not think of using a 40 Watt ILB Bulb in a light socket.
6 LED Watt ~ 54 ILB Watt
7 LED Watt ~ 63 ILB Watt
-now- at 7 Watts an LED is is about as 'bright' as a 'low light' 60 Watt ILB and most Consumers would think of using one, two or three 60 Watt ILB Bulbs in some light applications. -but- the 7 Watt LED Bulb may 'cost' that Consumer ~$50 ouch
8 LED Watt ~ 72 ILB Watt
9 LED Watt ~ 81 ILB Watt
-better- at 8~9 Watts an LED is is about as 'bright' as a 'moderate light' 75 Watt ILB and most Consumers would think of using one 75 Watt ILB Bulbs in some light applications. -but- again the 8~9 Watt LED Bulb may 'cost' that Consumer ~$75 *ouch*ouch*
10 LED Watt ~ 90 ILB Watt
11 LED Watt ~ 99 ILB Watt
12 LED Watt ~ 108 ILB Watt
-best- at 11~12 Watts an LED is is about as 'bright' as a 'standard light' 100 Watt ILB and most Consumers would think of using one 100 Watt ILB Bulbs in most light applications. -but- again the 11~12 Watt LED Bulb
may 'cost' that Consumer ~$100 *ouch*ouch*ouch*

FWIW at $0.10 per KW : $100 can buy a lot of KWs over time per ILB and even more with CFLs without a Capital Investment of $100s for LEDs.

LEDs are Not So Bright !

Given that Gregg invited the trolls over to RRS to take care of Mike Bryant and Bill Baka, I'd judge him to be the lowest and most cowardly of all posters on usenet.

Aint that the truth! The trolls pretty much owns rec.knives since no one but they post there any more. Soc.culture.thai is also pretty much a wasteland these days. Of course, the trolls are now getting bored with a newsgroup with no posters so they are on the prowl for fresh newsgroups to infest! Now, thanks to Gregg's kind and timely invitation, the trolls are going to play merry hell on RRS.

Bruce, you seem to think the trolls are easily ignored, if the private email you sent me is any guide! You might find this set of trolls to be much more disruptive than any that have been on RRS to date! At least the RRS group can call these trolls their own as a RRS subscriber is now a member of their little society. I'll bet Gregg's real proud of himself for that achievement!

Bruce, if you haven't got the balls to post a response to me publicly, then don't post at all. I post publicly and expect all replies to my posts to be public as well. I have since set your address to be filtered at my email inbox so don't bother sending any more mail my way. In fact, if you're so good at ignoring any ruckus going on in RRS, why don't you ignore MY posts! Better yet, killfile my posts! I promise I won't get all "bent out of shape" about it if you do! I still find it odd that you get upset at MY posts yet seem quite able to ignore the ruckus going on around Mike Bryant and Bill Baka. Must be something in the water you drink, I guess!

BTW, the trolls weren't able to disrupt goings on over at rec.food.cooking as the women in that group gave the DTS merry hell. I guess the women there have the balls you lack as they don't take any crap from a few slimy trolls.

There really isn't a clearcut definition of the type of troll you are! A troll who gets others to do his trolling for him! That's a new definition for those clever chaps at wikipedia! to sort out. We'll just call you a cowardly troll and leave it at that!

I think the most interference is between 10 and 100 kHz. Beyond that it drops off quickly. Never been an issue here. I can get KUZZ 24/7.

Did I send you a private e-mail? I have only sent a tiny handful lateful lately, and I do not recall any to you in particular.

Secondly, your premise is just kooky. First off, this is not a matter of courage or "balls" on my part as you put it - it is whether or not Gregg is disruptive. In short, he isn't, not on this group. Neither are his friends. He has done NOTHING I have seen here to suggest he is - he has been talking SWL, in the most friendly way, and if that is NOT what he supposed to do, then WHAT? So far, you are the most obnoxious of the bunch, and even that's mild. I don't give a flying F&^% what they do on rec.knives. As far as this place goes, I can ignore anything or pay attention anything I wish effortlessly - and I am less computer-literate than most people. How hard can be for anyone else?

If you have a personality conflict with Gregg, that's your business.
Don't expect the rest of us to be sociopaths along with you.

In fact, as to your title of your post - RRS has seen more SWL-related posts in the last few months than I can remember from in years.
Sinking ship? Looks like a pretty sound craft to me.

Yes indeed you did! It was sent on May 29th to be a little more precise.

Well, when they start doing it here on RRS, you may sing a different tune. With a little luck, and a bit of begging by Gregg, the trolls may hold off from infesting this group. After all, he did say they followed his orders.

Have a look over on rec.knives and see how "effortless" it was for posters there! They totally abandoned the group and, it would seem, moved to moderated forums. The trolls now want to move in here and do likewise.

The sunk ship referred to was the rec.knives newsgroup.
Rec.radio.shortwave may well be the next sunk ship if Gregg has his way.

I don't care how smart or dumb a person is. If he talks shortwave - which you apparently can and will not - they're OK by me.

For toughest stuff, I use the Icom R75. For casual listening, almost anything - the SX-190 or DX-160 are both fun. Occasionally the DX-398. My main limitations are, and probably always will be, the antenna and the location. Both are less than ideal, and can nevver be much better. I will put up a higher antenna this summer, but in an RF-noisy residential neighborhood, that will get me just so far...

Thanks for asking :-)

How is that SX-190? I looked at one years ago, and when they were new, but never moved on one.

Decent performance? Any trouble finding crystals?

Well, it may need a bit of alignment on a couple of the bands (25 meters especially is weak), and there is some hum in the audio that could be reduced, but it is certainly sensitive, it is fairly selective, sound is OK. Frequency accuracy and precision is remarkably dependable for a pure analog unit. The 31, 41 and 49m bands experience overload/images in the evenings when signals get really strong; but using the RF gain for volume provides a partial solution, and my MFJ-1026, which allows the gain on both antennas to be scaled back, finishes off the problem.

Obviously, without an adjustable AGC or S-AM you can go just so far with it when fading strikes, but that was generally true anyway with older radios.

The Q-Multiplier is semi-useful, but I think a good notch works better. The crystal calibrator is mostly functional, but the crystals are old, and for best freq. calibration it is most useful to tune to a known station like VoA, WWV, BBC etc.

It comes with most of the crystals needed for SWL and a couple for ham; and all of the ones in there seem to work fine. Crystals are certainly available from a couple of different sources; but they need to be custom made, and I have not priced them just yet. If I get some, they will be for a 13.5 - 14 mHz crystal to add or replace the 14 mHz ham band, and add a 4.6 - 5.1 MHz crystal to gain 60 meters or replace the 75 meter ham band.

All this aside, the FUN factor is high :-)

Bruce, may I respectfully suggest that you are splitting hairs.

Gregg may (or may not) be directly disruptive, but on an INDIRECT basis, he certainly HAS been disruptive. By his OWN ADMISSION (several times), he has said that he willfully brought over the thugs from other groups to cause trouble in RRS.

...and even though the Bryant party is long over, the stench of the 'visiting' trolls -still- lingers on.

The bottom line seems to be that you are saying if Gregg doesn't do the dirty work himself, that's OK...and if he brings in others to do his dirty work, you apparently think that's OK too.

Again, it looks like we can agree to disagree. :-)

That great big aluminum tuning knob is nirvana :-D Also forgot to mention, the preselector works well and seems to be modestly narrow, but as I said, does not wipe clean the overloading experienced in the evening.

Sounds like it would be a candidate for an RF Systems MTA.
Dramatically lower noise, and doesn't produce as robust an output to the receiver for lower probability of overload.

Agreed, and like I said, every man is responsible for his own actions. Of course, Gregg should not bring them over just to cause trouble, but he is not responsible for them being assholes.

Over the last few months, nothing that Gregg has done has bothered me, and none of his "thugs" have seemed especially onerous either, just occasional twits. Other newsgroups are loaded with them, and they are usually ignored.

Michael Bryant was/is a relatively unusual character, you have to admit - and these kinds of people seem to attract taunters and bullies wherever they go, regardless of the group. Even before Gregg and the boys (whose antics with MB I did not witness), MB's personality easily made enemies of many people, including some who should have been his friends. I should have been an ally, and I never really disliked him, but he derided and eventually cussed at me because I dared to disagree with him on a couple of minor points. He wa shis own worst enemy.
You've seen the type elsewhere, I am sure. He is not here right now, and things seem pretty quiet overall, except for Krypsis.

I don't care anymore, really. I'm gonna let it drop on this end.
Krypsis can go on all he wants. As long as Gregg talks SWL and keeps it civil, I am not going to complain about him or give whiners any credence. Krypsis is not a prophet, and I am not paranoid ;-)

IIRC, that antenna is similar in some respects to a Wellbrook? I have been thinking about those aerials, just because my site noise level is so high - but I'd hate to spend the $$$ just to have it not be a significant improvement.

Now, I do think you've crossed a line, Mr. Jensen. For years, Gregg and DXAce have done everything they could to insult every log I ever posted. I tried my best to stop political posts, even though they did not. I dealt with Gregg threatening to use his knives on me. I did my best to avoid any form of cussing when I last returned to this newsgroup. Steve Lare still insults my employer in half of his posts. Gregg accuses me of faking my teaching position, though it is public knowledge. Gregg was caught lying about his multiple IDs, where he would actually support himself to make it appear he has a consensus behind him. His SW knowledge seems limited to asking novice-level questions. All I wanted to do was post shortwave-related info, but Gregg felt that my mere presence lowered the group's standard, a standard that he feels is unthreatened by the presence of an avowed Nazi who has served a prison sentence for child pornography. You repeat the diatribes of D. Peter Maus, a man who won't dare expose his true identity.

Frankly, I don't care what you or anyone in this group believes. This NG is dead. There are hundreds of more useful pages. It's become a social club for social rejects. I urge you to use the Google archives to check out Gregg's activities under such handles as "BushcraftGregg" or "BCBLazySusan." And I'd really like to know when I cussed you out. I really think you're making that up in your desire to keep repeating Maus' lies..

Do whatever you want. But I can promise you two things with absolute certainty: Gregg won't stop mentioning my name no matter how hard I try to avoid his fascination and Steve Lare won't stop insulting, lying and trying to get me fired from my place of employment. If these are the type of people you consider acceptable, let me assure you're in the right place.

For me, I'd rather be listening to my radios and reading useful information instead of playing these silly reindeer games.

Similar in the sense that noise is low. The design is very much different than the Wellbrook, and is a passive design. The Wellbrook is active.

Well grounded, the MTA rocks at this location.

I never said I agreed with anyone picking on you, but as usual, you insist on injecting things I neither said nor meant. Just like before.

For a guy who impl;ies that he ignores RRS, you were quick to jump on this one.

I always enjoyed your shortwave posts; they were excellent and worthwhile. I wish you would contribute again in this way, and just IGNORE Steve, Gregg and the other bullies. But instead, you allowed yourself to get caught up in off-topic discussions, though, and that was sent your situation sideways.

I don't care if you take exception - I am just relating what I observed. I have no idea what Peter Maus has said these proceedings; I don't recall a single post of his about the matter. I would welcome you back for radio discussion, whenever you want.

When was it? I last remember MB being taunted about 4-5 yrears ago, but mostly by a relative handful of regulars...not these guys. I did not pay too much attention here for awhile (sidetracked by a million other things) unitl the last 6 months or so, during which I have tried to focus on radio and not the other bullshit that people keep dragging up. Unless it was that period half a decade ago, I am not surprised that I missed it - in fact, this message from MB this morning is the first one I easily recall seeing for years...there may have been a few others.

Had a bunch of geomagnetic storms last week - so no surprise there.

Here's where I go for quickie looks - http://www.eham.net/DX/propagation

The SFI is still too low, the A Index still too high - when those change, the bands will improve I suppose...

No thanks, I was denied the ability to even post logs without Steve insulting my employers and Gregg acting like he's the guardian of moral righteousness. I applaud your, almost single-handed, attempt to return to radio logs, but I find it amazing that you can continue to ignore what Gregg, Lare and Maus still continue to post. I understand that you want to feel you're making a difference. Good luck. But, I have no interest in returning to this environment.

Still, could you please post what I cussed you out about, as you claimed? I agree with your politics and I've never cussed out a radio post, as most of yours are. What would be my incentive to cuss you out, Bruce? It's easy to make claims that you can't back up.

I would except that I deleted it. I created a filter for you in my email inbox and applied it. I then flushed my junk folder with your email in it. You can try looking in your "sent" folder, if your client has one.
Most email clients keep a copy of sent mail as a default action. I see you post via Google Groups. I don't use that method so I am afraid I don't know how the Google clients operate.

Some of the worst trolls are the ones who first ally themselves with posters on a group. They then operate behind the scenes to create disruption using either an alias or, as in the case of Gregg, calling in other trolls. Get your blinkers off! Others can see what Gregg's up to!

100 watts. Conditions were great for about a week back in March. I worked a bunch of stations on 15 meters just running barefoot. The only time I had to use more was working some of the far east stations on 20 meters. Hong Kong, Indonesia. Thailand, etc.

Sunspot number went up for a few days. Then we got hit with a geomagnetic storm. Was talking to a guy in Missouri and one in Indiana on 40m earlier today and both guys just faded out. The only guy that stayed strong was a truck driver in North Carolina.

The truck driver is a cool guy. He is taking a job for a couple years in Japan and he already has his Japanese license so he can transmit from there. I will be listening for him and hopefully can make a contact.

Duh. Check out July and August of 2009. I'm sure the Google archives go back that far. Dude, you even defended me during that period. But, hey, I understand. It's easier to try to get along with these folks than to stand up to them.

Usenet in general seems to be fading. Many groups I've subscribed to in the past have withered away to nothing. I recently unsubscribed to quite a few (some radio related) that no longer have any posts at all, not even troll posts.

Younger people seem to prefer the web based forums and entities such as twitter seem to be growing exponentially. Usenet forums such as RRS are doomed to oblivion if they fail to attract these younger people. Given the increasingly anarchic behaviour that seems to be occurring in usenet, I doubt that the next generation will even bother! Who could blame them?

With some of my other hobbies, such as my cars, I find the web based discussion forums to be full of interesting and useful information. At least those forums, being moderated, make an attempt to keep people like Gregg in line or kick them out when they act up.

> to check out Gregg's activities under such handles as "BushcraftGregg"

Gregg was using a number of aliases that I know of. He wasn't too bright however as his IP address was always the same even when he used a number of different aliases in the same group. This was what he did in rec.knives.

Now there's a possibility. Have you considered that Gregg may be in love with you and now feels rejected? Hell hath no fury like a Gregg scorned (as it were!).

> lying and trying to get me fired from my place of employment. If these

Indeed. Steve Kramer hasn't posted in any forum for quite some time but still his trolls obsess over him. I recall the trolls that Gregg has brought in to RRS once tried to get a poster from SCT fired from his job at a school in Bangkok. It was a sad little affair and, luckily, they did not succeed. Maybe, just maybe, one of these trolls is the same one that is trying to get you dismissed from your job.

He can't even remember an email he sent me two days ago. How could you expect him to recall events, in which he was a participant, that occurred almost a year ago?
I'm still suspicious about his over the top defence of Gregg and his activities. There's more to that than meets the eye I suspect.

Perhaps cussed out was the wrong choice of words - but you and definitely had differences, YEARS AGO, about what was happening at the time. I remember it vaguely only at this point as something involving the way you allowed yourself to respond to the bullies and thereby attracted them even more. The lesson for me, I suppose, was that I should never give advice where it isn't asked for.

I hold nothing against you at this time, and certainly do not have time to go investigate it through long hours of Googling.

I ignore that which is worth ignoring. I know what Steve writes in his signature lines - what can I do about it? When he steps across the line, you will have a rightful legal bone to pick with him; until then, there is not much I can say. I value his posts on radio, as I did yours.

As of right now, I see very little that Gregg has posted that does not have to do with radio or other innocuous issues, and so I am sort of angry that Krypsis keeps coming back with ad hoc comments about that other group (which I don't care about), as well as things that happened on this group some time ago. When Gregg posts something worthwhile related to radio why SHOULD he be chastised for it? Krypsis seems to want to paint all of his participation with the same ugly brush, and that's not what I see. When I see crap from Gregg, I'll let him know it isn't appreciated - unless I ignore it.

Sorry you feel so browbeaten here. It's a nasty place sometimes.

See that first word, "Duh"? That kind of arrogance is one reason why I probably had a problem with you. Arrogance sucks whether you're a liberal or a conservative. I'm still on your side, but don't expect me to rubber stamp every mean-spirited thing YOU say.

OK, well, your memory is better than mine. I'll check when I can.
What I rermember from last summer is that I had a great vacation in New England; the goings-on of this pathetic place fade into oblivion with memories like that.

Looking forward to another stupendous vacation,
Bruce Jensen

All I can thibnk of is, that e-mail that I apparently sent two days ago, was likely mis-sent. I probably hit the "mail to sender" button instead of the "post to group" button. If so, I apologize for my error. It makes no diff to me if it's posted publicly.

As far as my memory goes, I don't clutter it up with rehashed gunk from a year ago. Life is too short, and I'm already 50 ;-)

As far as this "more than meets the eye" stuff goes - get a life, for God's sake. Aren't there enough conspiracy theories on the Right?

Also, try to be specific. I am not defending activities in which Gregg participated that caused others grief. I am defending his right to post on-topic and innocuous radio-related posts, which is what I have witnessed recently. YMMV, but that's true for everyone anyway.

'Nuff said. RADIO.

* Yep the old fool is at it again, getting various newsgroups upset with each other. This time it's RRS's turn.

That's his reason for living folks, he HATES harmony and spends his life trolling the usenet formenting trouble.

Check his history.

Treat him like the buffoon he is and laugh at him not with him.

He hates that.

what's surprising is that today they censor the 'n' word...a word more

I say "partial" data card because - This is one of those situations where, by describing my receipt of their station on one frequency from one place in the actual report (Pridnestrovie) but comparing it to signals from two other sites at the same time (French Guiana and Russia) in the cover letter, they decided to verify all three in the same QSL card, without identifying any one of them at all anywhere in the text.

AAAHHH! So what do I do? All three freqs are identified on the card, and I am sure I was able to hear all three at the same time (I know I did not fudge anything) - can I rightfully say that this card covers all three?

Here's what In intend to do, just to satisfy myself - in the compartment with this card, I am going to add a note card with the A10 schedule passages that Identify these three locations as transmitter sites. I don't care what anyone else thinks :-)

Did you specifically ask them to verify the transmitter sites? I've never had a problem getting the site put on the card, and have had them in the past do 5 or so freq's and sites on one card.

Well, I had asked in the past, and they always included the TX site (not every station does this). This time I skipped that step, assuming (perhaps too much) that they would place the TX sites on the cards - much to my chagrin :-(I won't make that mistake again.

Anyway, the HFCC / Aoki schedules bear out the scheduled transmissions and their respective sites, except for the mistake they made 3 nights running where they switched Fr. Guiana to English. For my own reference, I am placing that information with the card, and one of these days I will get each of the two relay sites individually (I already have a P-K card). I know what I heard - so what else matters, right? :-)

This is earlier than June of 2010, but seeing as there was a previous thread about Korea and this thread about QSLs, let me take a little poetic license and combine the two...

Got a QSL from Ed, P5/4L4FN on amateur RTTY. (P5=North Korea, 4L4FN his Russian home call). He normally lives in Georgia (the Russian one, not the US one) but was living in Pyongyang for some kind of U.N. food program, and in a moment of weakness, the North Koreans let him do ham radio for almost a year -- before they had a change of heart and threw him off the air.

The bad news was, he was operating at 50 baud (66 wpm), the European 'standard', not the 45.45 baud (60 wpm) much more commonly used RTTY speed.

The good news was that this threw a lot of US hams off the scent...they could not print him. Fortunately, I realized what Ed was doing and was able to change the speed of my TNC in time to bag him. :D

So, it's one of my two most treasured QSLs -- the other being for a packet radio contact with the MIR space station.

Hit the road, ya f00000000kin clown 'tard.

Hey, dipshit retarded one...

Have your sister come over here and blow me, boy.

Obama is a two-bit punk! Heck, he doesn't even care about his relatives who live in squalor. What a guy! He could send his brother $20 which would more than double his income, and, his brother could probably afford a 'double-wide' hut.

You dumb sand niggers (sorry, I categorize ya all this way) need to understand that you need to get your collective shit together...

Obviously another clueless Canadian Cunt.

My illustrious relative, Abraham Lincoln, whom I'm related to by both blood and marriage would be proud of me.

I'm waiting for Obama to start chucking spears and promising everyone their own hut and and a $12 stipend a year.

Better naked than Marxist!

How the f00k would you know what I intended or not you worthless piece of Canadian excrement?

Tamp some cotton in it, little girl.

In all fairness, it is I who make you drool on command, dumbass.

I'll bet you use those Vise-Grip's when the gerbils get stuck, right?

You were an automatic dumbass at birth.

However, a pile of crap (such as yourself) is an idiot!

Quit crossposting, ya little queer Canuck.

"Do you realize how childish you look?"
Nope, I refuse to look in the mirror.

Take a walk, buttfuck.

Sheesh... another f00kin queer!

I ain't white, but unlike you, I dislike no one.

Come on! How can anyone be straight after free beer and sausages

You are indeed a queer, are you not?

Who will you be bunking with, Bob?

Come lick me homo boy.

Come and arrest me, cockbite.

Yep, the Great Spirit watches over us all!

But then, some of you clown 'tards would indeed be happier to meet some boys.

You are worthless.

Yeah, go ahead, you drooling idiot.

Nope, but you're a faggot now, right?

Yer mama tossed ya because you're a homo boy, ain't that true?

Did I make any distinction with regard to country, you pedantic little cocksucker?

Blow me, faggot boy!

Fuck YOU, and fuck CanaDuh.

Now asswipe, go take your meds.

Take your meds, retard.

Humanity would be better served if 'Eduardo' were to take his shtick to the fields and began picking lettuce.

And, 'Eddy', may I be so bold as to state that the best part of you obviously dripped down your mothers leg.

You are a nice retarded boy.

I don't know, though it might be fun to torture him!

Your move, bitch...

Dumbass Canucks, such as yourself, are not deserving of oxygen.

Even more ironic is that you never dispute the fact that you are a little cocksucker!

Hey, dumbass, I don't watch the Fox News channel. So, you can shove that dumbass idea right up your gaping Liberal ass!

But hey, I made $14,000 trading oil today.. blow me

Funny how the US Govt. sent me over $50,000 last year

LMFAO as I sit and look at my royalty cheques...

I prefer genuine ROLEX!

Shove it up your ass, you faux little SOB.

You're full of shit, SOB.

Jerking off not enough for you, boy?

Do you spit or swallow?

Very tasty!

Actually, I know quite a few homosexuals.

I interact on at least a weekly basis with them, and surprisingly enough, they themselves utter the words 'damn faggots' with those who tend to step out of line.

Is that the gay place to be?

Were you the blower or the blowee?

Ya right, suck my dick...

I know it may be hard, but as you withdraw, it will shrink away..

Stop whining, you pathetic little prick.

I'm gonna go buy a new Stratocaster tomorrow!

You need to buy a chink watch!

I thank the Great Spirit every day for the fact that I'm not white like you.

I know enough to realize that you most likely have BO.

But, let me say this: if we were to find that something was sent into CanaDuh, and it were not checked, and then passed to the USA for bad purposes, you'd be on your knees asking the USA not to give your sorry asses the stomping that you would so rightly deserve, you stupid, fucking, pieces of shit that you are!

I don't watch your youtube crap, cartoon boy!

God 'ol SPAM

Sorry, I'm not a racist like you, Edweenie...

Hey, Chink Boy, I got a real Rolex, still ticking after 33 years.. shove it up your slant eyed ass.

Get the hell out of my country, boy, and head back to where those who appreciate little NAZI bastards such as yourself, you little faux Hispanic piece of shit.

He's a bean blower!

Stuff a burrito in it, 'Eduardo'.

FUCK CANADUH

In your case that must mean Hispanic Retard department.

Proud to be Miami and a blood relative of Abraham Lincoln

I said it before, and I say it again... Vicente Fox is a stinking piece of Mexican shit.

Keep blowing those beans out your sorry, un-american ass, boy.

Our data indicates that humanity would be better served if you were in the fields picking lettuce.

Wonder why.... could it be that the Canucky Niggah is timid, afraid...?

Damn, the Canucky Niggah didn't have a damn thing to say...

Extremely heavy emphasis on the BOY.

Actually VA facilities are quite good, but if you Canucky niggahs poke around one might find a lot of things wrong.

Fuckin' dumbass.

You are certainly an SOB, you stupid, MF'ing, liar and poseur!

WRNO FM 99.5 became Rush Radio today.
Rush mentioned it on the show, and also seemed to say that at least for a while they'd be carrying his show for 18 hours a day.

Your birth trait is that you're a MORON, dumbass.

Something for your faux Hispanic cock sucking brain to think about, eh?

Blow it out yer ass, Canuck!

All your talk comes from within the contours of your ass.

Yes, I am witty, and I am wise!

my mommy blew it out her ass II wrote

True, ain't it, little faux Hispanic BOY.. (Heavy emphasis on the BOY!)

Stuff a taco in it, Ramon!

And don't forget SAMBLA, South American Man Boy Love Association.

Mouth wide open, ready to take a load.

Difficult for moi?

After eating the taco's wouldn't they be capable of gassing themelves?

It is then my patriotic friend, you must reach in the closet, place your hands upon the weapon, and blow the cock sucking, bean blower back into Mary's arms....

They are mere asswipes, suitable for flushing.

How many American lives were affected by the slant eyed shit throughout the entire war?

Dumbass Canucks, sure ain't Rolex wearin' respectable folk...!

Or better yet, go get yourself some IBO Cock!

Yeah, after all, you're the Queen of your drug addled world.

And that has exactly what to do with the fact that CanaDuh is a Third World Country?

Canucks need to be castrated.

Shame? Sorry, I'm not a dumbass Canuck. Blow me, boy.

Hey, buttfuck boy... try to pay attention, you little piece of non-listening excrement.

Why are the retards mostly dumbass Canucks?

Run along little Canucky dweeb.

One of my nicknames, starting around 1975 or so has been 'Raoul'

Well, now you know them, and you know me, Karl Mauritania!

Obviously you're just a retard boy who failed as a corporate manager.

Did I say it was, shit for brains?

Because you're a moron, Druggie!

Ace is doing ok!

They don't call me 'Ace' for nothing!

And you, just another retard on the short bus.

All of my DX is better than your DX no matter what I do.

Well, I cann assure most everyone here that I've done 100% of my DX'ing without the help from anyone here, and I've had a moderate amount of success.

You claim to be 'Cherokee'... I think you're just 'Wannabee'...

No need to do anything more productive than cash the checks, invest the money, do some DX'ing, and rile up the mentally ill Canucks!

Why is it that you queers always seem to SIGH a lot? (1)

LOLOLOLOLOLOL... what a damn dumb cunt you are!

Now get your homo ass working on that documentation, boy!

Give it a shot queer boys, I dare ya!Very tasty!

Cocksuckers such as your self.

Hit the road, 'tard.

Toss 'em all, especially the Canucks!

So, just why is it that you queers always seem to SIGH a lot? (2)

Now go suck on some sushi, you little miscreant.

I just asked you to have the cunt send me a letter, boy.

So, just why is it that you queers always seem to SIGH a lot? (3)

"I'm so obese I had to get the extra heavy duty plastic blow-up doll"

Let me sum up, you Canucks are assholes!

So, just why is it that you queers always seem to SIGH a lot? (4)

Hit the road, drug addled fool.

Shame on CanaDuh for killing thousands of people every day.

Be sure to tell the bitch to send me that letter, faggot!

get your bitch daughter to send me a letter

Inquiring minds want to know just why is it that you queers always seem to SIGH a lot? (5)

Have the bitch send me the letter!

Well, go tell your other cocksucking countrymen.

Hey, have the bitch send me a letter

I can show her mine, and she can show me yours?

Ain't gonna happen, ya got no air farce, ya got no ne vuy, va goy nuthitin?

If you think for a moment that they'll listen to a drunken dumbass Canuck you'd be sadly mistaken!

Have the bitch send me a f00kin letter!

You folk really think ya got balls?

Now run along to wherever it is you little debutantes run off to...

I'll be waiting for that letter from your daughter, asshole!

Oh yeah, tell me baby...

Hey, little pussy boy, we spell it "cunt" out here, just like I think I spelled it originally, boy.

Never touched the skanky,,,

If I don't get that letter, boy, then you and your daughter must both be drunk, eh?

Finally shut you up, eh boy?

Have the bitch send me a letter on whatever letterhead YOU might make up.

Ain't that just speshul! He's got to go find somewun to fake him a lettter.

Have the bitch send me a letter on her firms letterhead, boy.

Great, then get your bitch daughter to send me a letter on her firms letterhead within the next two weeks!

Have your daughter draw up a contract, BOY!

Hey, 'Edurado', have your daughter get in touch with me, amigo

Guess that shut the little boy up!

Stuff it up your prancing ass, 'Tardo!

I'm LMFAO, since I've busted the f00kin faggot!

You are after all a drug addled 'tard boy who obviously knows little about the SWL/DX hobby.

You, on the other hand are nothing more than a sorry little homosexual 'tard

Liar, liar, pantalunes on fire! (1)

New history will be made when we crush CanaDuh!

Kan you just imagining that, you little faggot Cannucky boy?

Anybody, even Bozo, is worth more than some dumbass, faggot, Canuck!

Get busy, boy!

But you can't prove it, retard boy!

I know you faggots have dreams

Blow it out your ass, you dumbass Canadian! You and the rest of your dumbass countrymen, and women too!

You'd not be very happy if I returned, little bitch boy!

Go get some IBOCock, 'tard boy, and bring home a taste for yer mama.

Go give your boyfriend a blow job!

Talk about misery, you're in f00kin CanaDuh, boy!

Poor little cocksucker just had it handed to him

Eh? You sum dumass Canucuy bithyboy...

As long as it screws you Canucks, I'm a happy camper!

That's because you're a fucking liar!

Cry me a f00kin river.

Awwwww... the poor whiny dumbass Canuck is back at it again today.

Huh... you be just another stupid white boy outta Cleveland...

I suggest you get together with your "significant other" and bump butt with each other,

Because I hate White Boy Canucks who suck cock...

Best you shuffle down the alley! That's what your mama wanted!

Crazy Retarded Australian People?

"Even 2 cents is more than a totally worthless Canuck"

You can preDICK all you want, you fraudulent cock sucking, pathologically lying old bastard boy!

Hey, dumbfuck Canuck, I was not asked to leave!

I don't use Chink stuff

I went and bought ammo... I still gots it case them tard boys such as edweena gets stirred up.

And 10,000 rounds isn't a lot.

It was Russian ammo. I don't like the Chinese stuff.

Now where did I put that other case of ammo..

I don't use Chink ammo.

That's not Canuckian, boy!

Kiss my ass, pedant!

I'm LMFAO, Mr. Gay-Lick!

Obfuscate, you little prancer!

LMAO at the 'tard.

Thing is, you 'tards are pretty fixated upon one set of parameters.
That is after all why you are considered to be 'tards!

As always, your head is up your f00kin ass.

You fuckin' Liberal asswipes are always ready to give somebodys else's goodies away...

And, hopefully, my dumbass cousin in Mill Valley will leave me her Corvette.

Obviously, you leep your head up your f00kin ass all day long.

I don't 'fear' homos, oh faux one!

I fear nothing, as did those who preceded me who pledged their lives and their fortunes.

Liar, liar, pantalunes on fire! (2)

Apparently you are the 'bendover boy'....

Oh, I certainly have, time after time.

At least I went farther than you!

Good lubricant for you and the boys?

It's what dxAce uses!

that's good enough for me!

One can never slide the BS by dxAce

Not as well as you, fudge pack.

Go for it, dumbass!

Oh come on... it's Fall forward and Spring back. Everyone knows that!

Hit the road, drug addled fool.

Hey, I love kickin' gay-lick ass!

Pretty much what I indicated to you a while back, you f00kin prancer.

The only thing you know about short wave is that that is what your mother gave you when she sent your f00kin ass packin' outta Cleveland.

Screw the drug addled retards.

Nah, I only attack the messenger when he/she/it is obviously drug addled.

So, beat the rush and get the hell off of RRS, you f00kin retard.

Well, in you, we have a drug addled retard in our midst.

Get over it, you fake Hispanic piece of excrement.

And when you do confront HD, you'll have Cocksucker Dave and
The Prancer Boys to thank for it.

Damn... I'm of mixed race ancestry myself, what ever should I do?

Next time we come over the pond once again to save your sorry ass's we'll have to dismantle that stuff.

Heck, I bought 1000 shares of FSEAX the other day.

Don't do business with the Huntington Investment Company, in particular a fellow named Joseph Klein.

Not at all, we are both Miami Indians. ya got a problem with that, boy?

Then hit the road, you drug addled retard.

Just like you wish that you worked for me, retard!

Proven time and time again, fudge pack.

Get it, retard?

Dey done unnerstannn that us nateev boyyys R real Mericans!

I sure he is.

Insert your Gay-Lick reply here, boy:

And yet another Liberal rant

Nah, he was fake little cock sucker like you!

Your pathological lying is an offense to me, and more than likely an offense to God as well.

No medications here, cock sucker boy..

Stuff a watermelon up it

But that stuff isn't what dxAce uses!

Come on now, you being a nice Liberal, Carbon Footprint, Al Gore, Cock Sucking kinda Canuck Bastard..

I won R plantation up nord, dat dem dum ass Canuckys be oween us, ya be 'standin me?

Joe, are you trying to say we are all one in the same? We're not, err let me clarify that a little more. My name is Gregg, that is the only screen name I post under.

I learned a lesson from the "real pro troublemakers" on that see...lol. I mean heaven forbid someone have a google account and use a different monicker THAT HAS TO DO WITH THE GROUP THEY ARE IN. That is what I did. The two troublemakers made a big deal about it.

If I wanted to "trick" for lack of a better word or create sock puppets like both of them do - though they vehemently deny it. Why would I use google?? This topic is so simple a fourth grader can understand it but apparently those were the two that thought "ohhhhh- we caught Gregg - Ohhhhhh - he's busted."<rolling my eyes> If you post from google like I do, you can have thirty different monickers for thirty different groups and if a person googles just one of those monickers - it will show ALL OF THEM. So why would someone do that, already knowing that before hand? I could use one of numerous free anonymous usenet providers if I wanted to be all "cloak and dagger?"

DRUM ROLL Here is the answer. THEY WOULDN"T!!

They keep spouting this crap about IP address like it makes them sound smart or something, I knew about reading headers the first year I was on the internet. You don't have to read my IP address because google would show you all my monickers I use - screw the IP addy.<rolling my eyes>

No, Gregg is not saying you are the same people. He's simply saying, as you have admitted, that they came here at your invitation to do your bidding.

No proof. I have the courage to use my real name. If I was going to use anonymous screennames, I would, and avoid your threats to bother my employers.

To believe what you are suggesting we would have to ignore that you posted under all the names in this newsgroup, actually having conversations with yourself. Also, why did you become so vociferous and threatening when I exposed that all of you were the same person?
You claimed it was wrong to expose screennames. I really think that you failed to realize that all of the screennames showed in your google posting history.

Why did you fail to stop bringing me up every few days when I left like you promised you would? The simple fact is that you are no more morally righteous than anyone else in here. You don't have the guts or the intelligence to defend yourself, so you resorted to bringing the locust from rec.knives to protect you.

But don't pretend that you haven't lied or done your own share of hard work to destroy the atmosphere of this NG.

I'm still willing to meet you face-to-face. I live exactly 104 miles from your front door. You've said in the past, that you're in Louisville several days a week. You've even threatened to meet me in a field with your favorite weapon strapped to your back. Big words from a guy that runs to his friends for protection. You know where I work. Are you a man or not? I'm tired of your cowardly sniveling. Put up or shut up. Your choice.

Bruce, the majority in here knows what is going on, I know I do.
Anyone whoever posted in RRS knows of Bryant's history. It's the same M.O. - start off posting on topic stuff and then little by little get to the real business at hand. Peter made a great post on it before, it couldn't have been said better. You are wasting your time, him and Krypsie will literally twist and turn every word you have have said.
They then come to this group and others and throw up their hands and say "I didn't do nothing, I am the victim." It actually IMO is fascinating to watch but also - pathetic. There are two words for it psycologically speaking, but they would be lost in that verbage.

Ha! That dude doesn't ignore or forget ANYTHING unless forgetting something or "not being aware" or "I was mistaken if" etc etc.
benefits him. Then he can't remember anything. There are other terms for that also other than selective memory, that's just the easy phrase most people use.

Bruce, you said nothing to be sorry about. He browbeat many others in here. He would attack them personally or harrass them till they left. I saw it for yearssssss. And here is the scary part with fellas like him and Krypsie, they physically slow down and because of that it makes them even meaner, life is passing them by and unless something tragic happens - you and I and others have longer on this planet than they do and they can't stand it.

Lies, lies, and more lies. unlike many of Gregg's heroes in here, I'm still working, still winning awards, and living life to it's fullness. Gregg travels from group-tp-group inviting the locust to to do destruction. Keeep sharpening your knives, Gregg. That way you can imagine how big and toiugh you are. Why don't you you go out and get another big DX catch like WRNO!

Are you man enough to meet me face-to-face? As slow physically as you seem to think I am I couldn't possibly be a threat, right?

Coward.

EXACTLY and the "Duh" by him was being kind because he and Krypsie are trying to "lay the trip" on you and recruit you so too speak....lol...it is soooo easy to see watching from the outside and knowing the history of these two. Bruce, this guy (MB) "used to be my buddy" ;-) He would email me all the time and talk about everyone behind their backs when I was new in here. I wondered why he was emailing me of all people and asked him to stop. I asked politely, but it kept happening and I would ask again and finally I had to block him. Then his tone changed towards me and he didn't let up. He made fun of my religion / he made fun of my God / ANYTHING he could take a jab at - he did. I took and took it and finally I told my self that I had enough of it and it wasn't going to happen again.
I literally BEGGED him to leave me alone, just don't respond to me in anyway and we'll be fine. It would last no longer than two weeks and then he'd take his jab again. These guys are "mental" and that is really being kind but they are both vicious also. I have read their posts in this thread and because I won't respond to them specifically they feel they will just make up lies to try an lure me into their game and it ain't gonna happen.

But they do. It's funny, like I said before if I were the big troublemaker like MB and Krypsie would have you believe, would there not be a pattern? Why don't I have a problem in the Reds group? In the UFC group? In the survival group? Or the other six groups? And that's not counting the other four groups that aren't on usenet that are either loosely moderated or not moderated at all, one guy got booted off seven months ago but that was after close to a year of what MB and Krypsie do on usenet EVERY DAY. I don't have a problem in here either, everything was dandy- MB took his act out of here and then along came Krypsie and now MB is back<shaking my head and rolling my eyes>. :-D Gotta love usenet.

This IS what I am guilty of, I went over to rec knives to ask questions about knives and because I didn't believe Kramer/Krypsies crap - Krypsie followed ME over to RRS to sniff around and see what this Gregg was all about....lol. He saw the battle with MB and said "thank you lord this is my inroad" they started deeply tongue kissing each other and Krypsie won't leave here and if I post in another group he will bring it here. That is the short version and you have called him on it before and that is why I asked you Bruce to not even engage him because that is EXACTLY what he wanted. And here we are today. <sigh>

Damn, you are mental. I never sent you any backchannels. I did make fun of your posts claiming that that Revelations clearly proclaims that Russia will re-form the Soviet Union and that was the "Magog" spoke of in Revelations. That's not making fun of Christianity. That was making fun of your attempts to re-interpret the Bible to support your own twisted right-wing politics.

I begged you p[ublicly to leave me alone and just let me post logs. You claimed that was just a conspiracy on my part to twist people against you. You admitted bringing in your foreign goons to take care of me. July and August of 2009. Anyone can check the archives for themselves. Do you want me to post the URLs proving your lies, once again? The last time I did that you had your friends invade the group until even Steve Lare lashed out at their nonsense. The you asked them to leave.

A liar and a coward. Fairly pathetic.

OK, I'll play this once with you. You DO KNOW you have serious mental problems don't you? You need to be honest with your health care provider and have him send you somewhere where you can get the help you need Michael and I'm being serious because your physician prescribing you anti depressants apparently isn't working......you need "real help" - where they have a couch and you can lay down and get to the core issues as too why you are the way you are.

Why would I need a weapon with you? Are you trying to scare me, I'll play the reverse bullcrap you do OK and then tell me how it feels. Are you threatening me Michael? I KNOW FOR A FACT you were driving by my house three days ago. I'll quit....lol...I can't even do it - you're not worth it.

It kills you that this group was going smooth because YOU left with your tail between your legs and everyone in here knows it. As of April 28th I have no need to go to Louisville. You are more than welcome though to come to Cincinnati, are you going to beat me up Michael? Is this how you're going to play it now? All the sudden the machismo is dripping through your every pore and you're going to give ole' Gregg the lickin' he (in your baked mind) deserves? LOLOLOL - Oh quit it Michael, just quit it....you are embarrasing yourself. You would have a bowel movement if you met me and tried to get all hard with me.<rolling my eyes>

Keep it right here where I am safe from the thumping you would dish out. Now put up or shut up...lol....you're killing me MB - you haven't changed a bit but this group sure did till you and your partner in crime had to rile things up. I can hear you two now (hands raised in the air) "What? We didn't do anything." You guys are sick and I don't need the moral highground to say that either.

Since I was already subscribed to rec.knives BEFORE you entered the scene, I'm telling you once and for all that Kramer was long gone from there. He no longer posted there when you first commenced posting in rec.knives. You saying that you had discussions with him in rec.knives is merely a product of your overly fertile imagination.

There all I kinds of things you have to consider that you didn't really mention. Like what part of the country are you in? Are you in a house/apt./condo etc. etc. How much room do you have to put up an antenna? What type of listening do you want to do, listen to the big SW stations / utility monitoring / dxing etc.

I only have experience with the 909/398 and a little with the 7600, I've never used the other two. I am sure you will get all kinds of different answers from everyone. Here is the link to the 909 you were mentioning that explains more about it. Good luck and let us know what you decided. :-)

Anon - ? How will you be using the Radio ?

The Grundig 750 is more of a fixed "Shack" Table Radio with a 4" Speaker for easy earphone free listening.
http://www.universal-radio.com/catalog/portable/0750.html

The other three Radios : Sangean 909, Grundig 3 and Sony 7600 are all good -if- you are looking for more of a 'portable' Radio to move around with you; or take traveling. My preference of the three would be the Sony ICF-SW7600GR with the AM-Sync feature.
http://www.universal-radio.com/catalog/portable/0360.html
-if- Used as a fixed "Shack" Radio all three could use a 3"~5"external speaker and/or a set of earphones.

Plus -if- the Radio is going to be used as a fixed "Shack"
Radio don't forget an external Outside Wire SWL Antenna to increase what you can pick-up and hear on your Radio.

Everythings free out here but you don't have to "subscribe" to anything.

I thought you were a tad smarter than that.
Seems I'm wrong.

Well, well, well! How about that! Gregg was warning us that a load of new posters would suddenly appear asking basic questions and, lo and behold, here they come! Anonymous too! They must know something we don't!

You know, I reckon the DTS have been educating Gregg, a course in trolling 101. Lesson 1, "How to set up fake aliases"! Just seems too suspicious that, after warning the group about these mysterious newbies, he would engage with one as if to give the impression he is such a helpful chappie here.

It all looks a trifle sus when he doesn't even answer the question. The question was "what radio should I buy?" and he gives a URL for one that he supposedly has had experience with. Why not provide links to the other three? Why not give a run down on his experience with the 909? Why not do the same for the 7600? In fact, the URL Gregg so kindly provided is just an advertisement for mods to the 909! Hardly a review or even a comparison of the radios. I'm sure that the original poster, if he/she were genuine, would want some opinions based on other users experiences.

Gregg's post creates more questions than it answers. I think that Gregg needs to do lesson 2 of trolling 101, "Altering your writing style when using anonymous aliases". He should watch his spelling a little more closely too! That way it wouldn't be so blatantly obvious that he is answering his own sock puppet's questions.

The true hobbyist's response would be "all of them." But that's not always practical.

You neglected to mention the type of listening you do. Or whether you're planning to use your radio for fixed base operation, or for travel. Or which type of listening you do: Utilities? Program listening? DX?

Truth is, of your choices, none is a particularly dramatic receiver. Of the four, the popular choices are the Sangean, and the Sony. The Sony and the G3 have synchronous detection, which is a nice tool for eliminating or reducing selective fading distortion, but it's not a matter of life and death if you don't have it. SWL's have not had sync for years, and only Larry Magne had to be hospitalized for it.

Grundig 750 is another retro nod to the classic Grundigs of yore. Nice radio. Neat form factor. Decent performance. Nothing special. Good selection of features. And pricey. The state of the technology for a radio in this price class would make features like synchronous detection a simple matter, or even an IF output for DRM reception, but these are not included on the version shipped to USA. 750 has been rather inconsistent in QC, like its Tecsun built stablemates, and reviews have been mixed, though generally positive, if only lukewarm. That said, this one handles like a more serious tabletop, and is built with fixed installation in mind. Inputs for high performance antennae, and a pad for reducing overload. It's portable, in the sense that it has a handle. But, so does my Hammarlund BC-794 Super Pro, which is not exactly a Walkman.

G3 has nice features, but not precisely stellar performance. Reviews have been lackluster. G3 detects RDS on the FM band. Handy for road trips.

Sangean builds a nice radio. QC is consistently good. Build quality is above average. 909 has earned high marks for it's ease of operation and it's performance. Decent balance of features. Ear pleasing audio.

Sony is renowned for inconsistent and arrogant customer service policies. You can tear your hair out dealing with Repair. And historically speaking, you WILL deal with repair. But, of the four, the Sony, in production for a long time, and has consistently received high marks for performance, though audio quality can be harsh and fatiguing over a long period of time. Many users here rave about this radio.

All of your choices will provide stereo audio on the FM band through a headset. I personally like this feature on my own portables.

If you're not planning to erect an external antenna, then any of them may be a decent fit for you.

Best value: of the four you've mentioned, Sangean 909 and Sony 7600 offer the most for your money.

If you ARE planning to erect an external antenna, though all will overload with too much antenna, G3 and 7600 are particularly known to easily overload. In which case, the Sangean and the Grundig 750 may be more productive choices.

Any of them may be found at brick and mortar retail stores. Try them out. Multiple times, if you can. See how they fit your needs and expectations. Compare handling, ease of operation, ergonomics and performance off their built in antennae. You should get a good idea of at least what you don't want.

After handling them all, buy the one you're most comfortable with. If you plan to stay in the hobby, you'll spend a lot of hours with your radio. You should enjoy it.

Same as me! Used to do a lot of whittling when I was a kid! Still got the scars! These days though I just use knives as a utility thing. Way back, I made quite a few special purpose ones out of power hacksaw blades. Might still have one or two in my tool shed if I look hard enough. Made a few scrapers out of the hacksaw blades too, if I recall correctly. I will still have those as I use them whenever I'm rebuilding my rods. Excellent for scraping gaskets and the like and rarely ever need sharpening.

I was not implying that you are one and the same as the thugs you brought over. The point that I was trying to make is that you originally invited the goons over and that those turds are -still- here AS -YOUR- PROXIES and that every time Bruce saw a post from one of the turd twins, he was [indirectly] getting crap from you (as you were responsible for bringing them over). This station, R. Conakry, and several other African stations were significantly improved early this morning around their local sunrise (0430-0700z). The Southern African relays were booming in again, and Conakry made a fair showing of itself. If conditions stay the same or improve, some others may pop up too. I'd love to hear Afrique Numero Une on 9580 again - been awhile.

As a followup to this - I contacted NASWA to see how they'd suggest handling this issue if it were for certification - Gary N. of NASWA kindly offered to certify the card for all three countries if I provided a scan of the card and a weblink for the HFCC/Eibi/Aoki schedules that show that the freqs listed are unique for VoR at those TX sites. This I will do later today.

Dude, you've always been on the edge of aggression. I sure didn't hear you complaining back last summer when Gregg was talking about meeting me in a field with his favorite knife strapped to his back. Or anything to DX Ace anytime he acts so big and tuff. So add selective hypocrisy to your self-reflection goals.

Twerp, right back at'ya.

Here in KY, ANU-Moyabi is pretty regular in the late afternoons around 2100 to 2200 UTC on 9580. Not hearing Gabon on any other frequency at any time of the day. Around 0300 UTC, Ethiopia on 7110 and Sudan on 7200 are also pretty regular. Tunisia is strong on 7275 after 0500 UTC. Equatorial Guinea is solid in the afternoons with English religious programs on 15190. CVI from Zambia shows up randomly at different times of the day, propagation permitting.

My vote would be for the 7600GR or G3. The 7600GR is more robust, but the G3 is smaller, lighter, and has a much better display screen. Reception-wise, they're pretty similar.

The 909 is not very sensitve, eats batteries, and lacks sync detection.

I own all of these radios. I do not own the 750, nor do I plan to acquire one. The lack of portability and sync detector are deal-breakers.

Good for you, Mike! Here on the West Coast, we are largely in the dark when it comes to Africa, although EQ Guinea and Tunisia show up a lot. Ethiopia? Sudan? Moyabi? Just a dream - for now. Did hear what I think was Ethiopia on 7165 one fine morning - and Uganada too on 7195 - earlier this spring/winter, but that was a one-shot.

Have you heard Chad on 6165?

Not that I think Sync detection is the end-all, but I'd go with the 7600 too, just because its probably the best of the lot you mention. I do really enjoy my 398/909, especially with the Radiolabs mods (it is nice and sensitive, nicely selective too, much improved sound quality and good RF gain), but it has no Sync, and as Mike suggests, is hungry for batteries. I have read where the G3 sync loses lock very easily (at least the early ones), and that can be hugely frustrating, so if you need sync, get the 7600.

If you can find an Eton E1 for an acceptable price, that would probably be your best choice of all in current portables. I'd forget the 750 - it's a step backwards IMHO.

Huh - I've been hearing lots from Meyerton (as recently as last night), including Channel Africa, BBC and TWR if I am not mistaken. A few off days when it storms, but generally there. Must be the directionality...It is one of my most dependable catches! FWIW, I'd rather hear the stuff you're getting :-)

For some reason, I cannot get the VoA Botswana relays very well the last month. prior to that, they were regulars.

ANOTHER WARNING ....

Please get..informed......

: The facts about Shariah law

An interesting article about Shariah Law, and why we should be educated on this subject!
This takes us back into the dark ages!!!!!!

Joys of a Muslim Woman ... by Nonie Darwish.

In the Muslim faith a Muslim man can marry a child as young as 1 year old and have sexual intimacy with this child, consummating the marriage by 9 years old.
The dowry is given to the family in exchange for the woman (who becomes his slave) and for the purchase of the private parts of the woman, to use her as a toy.
Even though a woman is abused she cannot obtain a divorce.

To prove rape, the woman must have (4) male witnesses.

Often after a woman has been raped, she is returned to her family and the family must return the dowry. The family has the right to execute her (an honor killing) to restore the honor of the family.

Husbands can beat their wives 'at will' and he does not have to say why he has beaten her.

The husband is permitted to have (4 wives) and a temporary wife for an hour (prostitute) at his discretion.

The Shariah Muslim law controls the private as well as the public life of the woman.
In the Western World Muslim men are starting to demand Shariah Law so the wife can not obtain a divorce and he can have full and complete control of her. It is amazing and alarming how many of our sisters and daughters attending American Universities are now marrying Muslim men and submitting themselves and their children unsuspectingly to the Shariah law.

By passing this on, enlightened Canadian and American women may avoid becoming a slave under Shariah Law.

Author and lecturer Nonie Darwish says the goal of radical Islamists is to impose Shariah law on the world, ripping Western law and liberty in two. She recently authored the book, Cruel and Usual Punishment: The Terrifying Global Implications of Islamic Law.

Darwish was born in Cairo and spent her childhood in Egypt and Gaza before immigrating to America in 1978. When she was eight years old, her father died while leading covert attacks on Israel . He was a high-ranking Egyptian military officer stationed with his family in Gaza.

When he died, he was considered a "shahid," a martyr for jihad. His posthumous status earned Nonie and her family an elevated position in Muslim society. But Darwish developed a skeptical eye at an early age. She questioned her own Muslim culture and upbringing. She converted to Christianity after hearing a Christian preacher on television.

In her latest book, Darwish warns about creeping sharia law - what it is, what it means, and how it is manifested in Islamic countries. For the West, she says radical Islamists are working to impose sharia on the world. If that happens, Western civilization will be destroyed.

In twenty years there will be enough Muslim voters in CANADA to elect the PRIME MINISTER!
I think everyone should be required to read this, but with the ACLU, there is no way this will be widely publicized, unless each of us sends it on!

Oh yeah? You going to keep sticking to your story huh? Like I have said sooooo many times along with the DTS - you are just a troll and a pathetic liar. I decided instead of letting you just continue on with your lies unabated that I would provide the proof you tool....lol. Refer to the new subject header in RRS labeled "Krypsie Busted."

What did you think was going to happen? Didn't you think if you would just keep telling the same lie over and over again that sooner or later I was going to say "enough is enough?" I put up with it for yearsssss with MB - but I'm NOT giving you the satisfaction of years of hammering me and others. Read the thread and pound salt you troublemaker and liar.

I first posted on 4th of July, 08 in rec knives titled "New Poster" under the monicker "Benchmade" - named after the knife company Benchmade which I have three of their pieces now. KRAMER responded in that same thread, not directly to me at that time though....his handle "Steve@seatraveler.com."

You then included yourself in a thread on July 21st at 11:26am in defense of your boyfriend Steve when I was asking the guys (DTS) if "they were just jealous of Kramer." Kramer responds (of course) in the affirmative and glad handing me on the back saying "Good job, you've only been here a couple days and have everything figured out." And then you piped in for the first time to me.

Read the new threads, I don't expect an apology, I just expect more of the shuck and jive. But that's the beautiful thing about the truth. You were trying to convince everyone in RRS what you said was the truth - and it simply was not and you knew it. You're busted!!!! :-D

Bwahahahahaha - - -you old coot - have fun eating crow and please leave this group, you offer NOTHING to usenet but trouble. I noticed though that I contributed to rec knives (I stopped counting) at over FIFTY THREE POSTS about knives and ON TOPIC!!! You, not even a handful while I was there. Just your typical crap you post everywhere

You have claimed on and on, though you knew you were lying - saying Kramer was long gone before I started posting in Rec knives. I knew you were lying and you knew you were lying. Instead of letting you just spew forth your lies here is the proof you liar. In all its glory for everyone to see you for the liar that you are.

I am Benchmade / Kramer is "Steve@seatraveler or his SteveKramer@gmail depending on what thread you want to read and of course <ahem> you are you. Notice I was asking Steve if they were just jealous of him (I had no idea at the time) and ole Stevie patting me on the back with the "good job son" not verbatim but you get the clue and then you step in for your boyfriend.
Enjoy the thread, I know I did. :-)

1826. O.T. When Kramer Turned On Me (Kicking C.Bronson's Ass)

This was when all the trouble started, they posted Kramer's "lie" about kicking Chuck Bronson's ass (great reading BTW - a classic.)

I then say "Oh my - what a story" not verbatim but you'll see and then the ole' Bankok Banger himself replies to me in his own slick bullcrap way - the ole Pres. Clintons "it depends on what your definitions of 'is' is." Classic!!!

What happened in that group was no different then what happened here with MB, none whatsoever. MB lied and continued to lie though Steve and EVERYONE else KNEW he was lying and downplaying his arrest like he wasn't arrested....not handcuffed etc. etc. etc. The difference is over in rec knives these guys smell the bullshit as I do and they called him on it and he had to tell one lie to cover this lie to cover this lie etc. etc. etc.

If MB knew what I KNEW about his arrest he would keep his piehole shut, I can name girls on his debate team (their maiden and married names) and say things that there would be NO WAY WHATSOEVER I could know unless I spoke to them MYSELF. It isn't hard, it just takes time and doing what I do for a living it is childs play. Enjoy this classic thread and remember, this crap started and now is porven for all to see - because I went to Rec Knives and asked about knives and ran into Kramer and simply asked him some questions and then his boyfriend (Krpysie) comes to his aid and it hasn't ended since.

You are busted too!!! Do you want me to provide think to show your lies like I did Krypsis? Where is the "strapping a knife to my back" thing coming from you big fat liar? Again, you KNOW I didn't say that

- I KNOW I didn't say that. I said though I could put you in a "rear naked choke".....put please don't over dramatize your silly posts to try an convince others I said I was going to stab you. I ask again, why would I need a weapon against you?<rolling my eyes> Carrying an weapon should only be used in a last ditch effort to save your life, I wouldn't need a weapon against you Mike unless you are actually insinuating you are going to try an kill me or something. Is that what you are implying?

FWIW I HAVE carried a knife in the small of my back before, I can't even tell it's there. When I wear my boots (not during the summer), I carry a boot knife - what's wrong with that? If I am assaulted by an old college professor while I'm walking out of JCPenny's and he has pummeled me and getting ready to end my life....yep...I'd reach for my knife if my bullet didn't get him first. ;-P I WILL NOT be a Victim Statistic over nutcases like you walking around in society with a chip on their shoulder, if there is no choice and I have to defend myself they're going to feel it also.

The 909 with the mods IMO is a better receiver than the 7600. Synch is nice but like you and others have said - it isn't the end all in picking a receiver unless ....well....never mind.

How it "started"? Sorry, that's a non-issue. I don't care "how it started". YOU admitted YOU brought over the thugs. No need to go any further than that. Period. End of story.

Let me give you a final (and very apt) analogy...

Al Capone was a swell fella, never hurt a fly. But he brought in out-of-town thugs to do his dirty work. Is he just as guilty as the trigger men he brought in? According to American jurisprudence, yes, he is just as guilty.

Nothing at all to do with "how it started" or are you and the turds the same person.

I hope you finally see the parallel with you bringing over the turds and why I consider YOU the root of the trouble for bringing them over; I can't make it any simpler than the analogy above.

Moed Kattan 17a: If a Jew is tempted to do evil he should go to a city where he is not known and do the evil there.

Erubin 21b. Whosoever disobeys the rabbis deserves death and will be punished by being boiled in hot excrement in hell.

Gittin 57a. Says Jesus is in hell, being boiled in "hot excrement."

Sanhedrin 58b. If a heathen (gentile) hits a Jew, the gentile must be killed.

Sanhedrin 57a . A Jew need not pay a gentile ("Cuthean") the wages owed him for work.

Baba Mezia 24a . If a Jew finds an object lost by a gentile ("heathen") it does not have to be returned. (Affirmed also in Baba Kamma 113b).
Sanhedrin 76a. God will not spare a Jew who "marries his daughter to an old man or takes a wife for his infant son or returns a lost article to a Cuthean..."

Sanhedrin 57a . When a Jew murders a gentile ("Cuthean"), there will be no death penalty. What a Jew steals from a gentile he may keep.

Baba Kamma 37b. The gentiles are outside the protection of the law and God has "exposed their money to Israel."

Baba Kamma 113a. Jews may use lies ("subterfuges") to circumvent a Gentile.

Yebamoth 98a. All gentile children are animals.

Abodah Zarah 36b. Gentile girls are in a state of niddah (filth) from birth.

Abodah Zarah 22a-22b . Gentiles prefer sex with cows.

Sanhedrin 106a . Says Jesus' mother was a whore: "She who was the descendant of princes and governors played the harlot with carpenters."
Also in footnote #2 to Shabbath 104b of the Soncino edition, it is stated that in the "uncensored" text of the Talmud it is written that Jesus mother, "Miriam the hairdresser," had sex with many men.

A passage from Sanhedrin 106 gloats over the early age at which Jesus died: "Hast thou heard how old Balaam (Jesus) was?--He replied: It is not actually stated but since it is written, Bloody and deceitful men shall not live out half their days it follows that he was thirty-three or thirty-four years old."

Shabbath 116a. Jews must destroy the books of the Christians, i.e. the New Testament.

Gittin 69a . To heal his flesh a Jew should take dust that lies within the shadow of an outdoor toilet, mix with honey and eat it.

Shabbath 41a. The law regulating the rule for how to urinate in a holy way is given.

Yebamoth 63a. States that Adam had sexual intercourse with all the animals in the Garden of Eden.

Yebamoth 63a. Declares that agriculture is the lowest of occupations.

Sanhedrin 55b. A Jew may marry a three year old girl (specifically, three years "and a day" old).

Sanhedrin 54b. A Jew may have sex with a child as long as the child is less than nine years old.

Kethuboth 11b. "When a grown-up man has intercourse with a little girl it is nothing."

Yebamoth 59b. A woman who had intercourse with a beast is eligible to marry a Jewish priest. A woman who has sex with a demon is also eligible to marry a Jewish priest.

Abodah Zarah 17a. States that there is not a whore in the world that the Talmudic sage Rabbi Eleazar has not had sex with. On one of his whorehouse romps, Rabbi Eleazar leanred that there was one particular prostitute residing in a whorehouse near the sea, who would receive a bag of money for her services. He took a bag of money and went to her, crossing seven rivers to do so. During their intercourse the prostitute farted. After this the whore told Rabbi Eleazar: "Just as this gas will never return to my anus, Rabbi Eleazar will never get to heaven."

Hagigah 27a. States that no rabbi can ever go to hell.

Baba Mezia 59b. A rabbi debates God and defeats Him. God admits the rabbi won the debate.

Gittin 70a. The Rabbis taught: "On coming from a privy (outdoor toilet) a man should not have sexual intercourse till he has waited long enough to walk half a mile, because the demon of the privy is with him for that time; if he does, his children will be epileptic."

Gittin 69b. To heal the disease of pleurisy ("catarrh") a Jew should "take the excrement of a white dog and knead it with balsam, but if he can possibly avoid it he should not eat the dog's excrement as it loosens the limbs."

Menahoth 43b-44a. A Jewish man is obligated to say the following prayer every day: Thank you God for not making me a gentile, a woman or a slave.

Talmud: Gittin 57b. Claims that four billion Jews were killed by the Romans in the city of Bethar. Gittin 58a claims that 16 million Jewish children were wrapped in scrolls and burned alive by the Romans. (Ancient demography indicates that there were not 16 million Jews in the entire world at that time, much less 16 million Jewish children or four billion Jews).

Minor Tractates. Soferim 15, Rule 10. This is the saying of Rabbi Simon ben Yohai: Tob shebe goyyim harog ("Even the best of the gentiles should all be killed").

"According to the Talmud, Jesus was executed by a proper rabbinical court for idolatry, inciting other Jews to idolatry, and contempt of rabbinical authority. All classical Jewish sources which mention his execution are quite happy to take responsibility for it; in the talmudic account the Romans are not even mentioned."

I've owned the modded 909. It was better than the unmodded 909. But nowhere near the 7600G or 7600GR. All of them are far less desirable than either a Sony ICF-2010 or an Eton E1.

And Gregg, as usual, is wrong about sync. It is very important to DXers trying to hear weak signals adjacent to much stronger signals.

Be careful, he'll start rolling eyes and other body parts pretty soon!

==========
Structure/Ownership

BP Group is the top level of the company hierarchy. For organisational purposes Group is divided into 4 divisions: Exploration & production, Oil, Chemicals and Gas & Power (see divisional chief executives above). Figures for production volumes and financial performance are reported separately for each division in BPs quarterly Financial and Operating Information. Most senior figures within BP Group including John Browne himself have made their way up through exploration and production, and despite BPs re-branding as an environmentally aware energy company it is this division which continues to drive the direction of the group.

Yup, when someone makes a valid point that gets you dead to rights and fits you to a "T", put your head where the sun don't shine and go into the 'ignore' mode.

Sounds like a plan! ;-)

FOR ANYONE who actually gives a damn about radio right now...

RUSSIA, Voice of Russia, 13775 kHz via P-K, May 2, 2010 at 0532z.
Signed full data card "House of Music" from its current architectural series celebrating 80 years of SWBC - For reception report by mail, in 31 days. VoR is definitely interested in getting RRs and sending QSLs
- not too hard to QSL a quarter of the world's landmass if you just concentrate on Russia!

The Distinguished Troll Society has been asked by Gregg in rec.radio.shortwave to come over and destroy that group the same way we did to soc.culture.thai and rec.knives. We are at out best when causing mayhem and look forward to having our ranks swell with new members. I understand that attaching an external antenna will disable the build in AM ferrite antenna.
My question, is this is a good thing? Will I pick up more with a 100 foot longware versus a standard ferrite antenna?

Hey, now now Fred. ;-) I didn't put out the bat signal quite yet.

I'm watching this Biography thing about Gary Coleman, pretty interesting, lots I didn't know about him.

But yeah, I definitely did a little research and made a few calls. Ole Krypsie Kreme has been spouting nothing but lies so I provided the links to show he was lying.....like we didn't know already.
Interestingly enough though, not a peep <heh> except from the teacher at a lowly college in Louisville who claimed he had his PhD but has nothing of the sort. Who previously was racked with charges for getting high with his debate team on a road trip - actually wayyy more than that I had found out. That is just what he pleaded to. Kind of puts another definition on the term "road trip." And of course he didn't reply on the thread that busted his boyfriend.

So yeah - just like I said - it looks like MB is back for good. It will be the same MO, that is why it is called M.O. - he can't change-it is just his nature and Krypsie is here also. I had no idea going to a knife newsgroup would bring about such nuts as these two combined (thanks Krypsie)......I mean we were full of our limit of trouble with MB. Everything was going smooth, human behavior- you gotta love it on usenet.

Now we have "Heil Hitler" siding with the troublemakers, which is expected I guess <shaking my head> At least we'll get the Steve and Mike show back, it was quiet for a while. We'll see. :-)

My hunch is yes, and it will be less directional. If you are in an area where there are strong AM signals, it could overload and give you trouble. Otherwise, it could be DX paradise.

You could always buy or build a larger loop AM antenna - you get stronger signals and better directionality.

Good luck!

LIkely not. Although you'll notice more apparent stations, these will, in fact be images created by overloading the front end. Many of these images will be covering up otherwise available catches.

100 feet of wire, for many receivers, is a lot. But for a portable, it's nearly always way too much.

30 feet would be more like it for your radio.

Yeah, you really did find it boring in RRS, didn't you Gregg. Nothing makes you more happy than having a few posters to attack, eh?

GOw,

Me quoating myself

For 'portable radio like the Sony ICF-SW7600GR, consider the "Portable Wire Antenna" (PWA) that was created and written about by Tom Sevart [N2UHC].

Portable Wire Antenna "PWA" for the Sony ICF-2010.
To 'quote' Tom Sevant "This is an antenna I put together after having problems with overload on my Sony 2010 portable shortwave receiver" GoTo= http://www.geocities.com/n2uhc/portablewire.html sorry dead link/url -but- here is an archive copy http://web.archive.org/web/20021006145401/http://www.geocities.com/n2uhc/portablewire.html

FWIW: Basically, the PWA is a a short to medium length
"Random Wire Antenna" that is 'couple' via the a 'portable' radio's Whip Antenna for improved reception.

HOW-TO-USE-IT - Place the "Coupling Coil":

#1. Vertically [Over] the 'portable' radio's "Partially Collapsed"
Whip Antenna for Improved Shortwave (SW) Radio Reception.
- Vary the "Length/Stub" of the Whip Antenna to 'adjust' the amount of effective coupling and Signal Transfer.

#2. Vertically [Over] the 'portable' radio's "Fully Extended"
Whip Antenna for Improved FM Radio Reception.

#3. Horizontally [Near] the 'portable' radio's AM/MW Ferrite Rod
Antenna for Improved AM/MW and Longwave Radio Reception.
- Adjust the 'position' of the Coupling Coil to vary the amount of effective coupling and Signal Transfer.

From someone who has been in that spot and done both. Are you saying you don't want to capture anything from the BCB - just shortwave? You won't capture SW signals (not much) on just a standard ferrite antenna. Please explain a little more.:-)

Right you are, Larbie!! We can destroy this group as easily as we did soc.culture.thai and rec.knives. We have Gregg right here to feed us inside information too.

Maybe we should elect him president? Whadya think?

No, Fred Nurk said that! Look above and you'll see it quoted there! I merely asked you to verify it! What I find extremely interesting about Nurks post is that he quite clearly and openly states that the DTS's intention is to destroy rec.radio.shortwave just like they destroyed soc.culture.thai and rec.knives and this at your behest! Even more interesting and, dare I say, worrying, is your tacit agreement with the DTS' stated aims.
As for me bringing trouble here, remind me again who it was who invited the trolls in here to deal with the likes of Mike Bryant and sundry other posters with whom you seem to have had "issues".

> When you leave - your friends leaves.

I'll raise a couple of points here! First and foremost, they are YOUR FRIENDS, NOT MINE! Recall if you will their oft repeated claims that YOU have been inducted into the DTS which, should you need reminding, is their clandestine little troll group, now also yours.

Secondly, and history will verify this, the trolls will not leave even after every legitimate poster leaves. Take a look into rec.knives! The trolls are pretty much the ONLY POSTERS in that group nowadays. I don't post in soc.culture.thai but the DTS still do! So much for your fine little theory!

What "bait laden anonymous posts" are you referring to? The only one I've seen is the one by "Anonymous" asking for advice on four radios. I was thinking to respond as I have a Sony 7600 but mine is the first model of that series,long superseded and no longer available new. Since I do not have any of the other models mentioned, I felt I wasn't able to offer any comparative advice so I didn't post a response.
Then I saw YOUR response to that one where you really didn't offer anything at all and gave a totally meaningless URL. It was then I suspected that you may be the originator of that anonymous post so that you could give yourself the opportunity to present as a very helpful fellow on RRS.

> you pegged from go get and you prove it with EVERY POST. Instead of Larry posts some reasonable and, dare I say, interesting comments so I thought I would respond in kind. I have no beef with Larry.

What is the ratio of your posts on topic versus hanging crap on the

do you have in here posting off topic crud?

Just look at what you wrote. excerpted from above!

Now, to me at least, that reads like you're thrilled to have the "Steve and Mike show" back into action. Since you were a major participant in haranguing Mike, I can honestly believe that you are!

Now this, also excerpted from above!

Well, for a person who purports to be so careful in not crossposting off topic stuff to other newsgroups, you slipped up badly on this one.

Maybe, just maybe, you didn't slip up. Maybe you wanted it crossposted to alt.troll so even more of your brethren will come and infest RRS. Well, Nurks post, that you so carefully quoted in its entirety, will almost certainly attract trolls from far and wide. Regulars on RRS will have you to thank when this newsgroup becomes a real trollfest.

And we shouldn't forget the foaming-at-the-mouth warmongering of Fox News, the not-too-secret motivation for which is Zionism of both the Jewish and Christian kinds.

All the religions derived from these Middle Eastern nomads are cruel, primitive, and unworthy of the people of Pericles, Pythagoras, Nietzsche, and Darwin. And they're preposterously false, too.

Christianity, Judaism, and Islam are engulfing the world in an insane death spiral of fanaticism, mutual hatred, and war that may well end with nuclear devastation.

We should distance ourselves from them.

With every good wish,

I use my Sangean ATS 505 (aka crappy plastic portable) for AM broadcast only. I mainly use it when I'm out in the shed when I'm working on my cars. It has better sound quality than my 7600 but that's its only redeeming feature. Needs a wall wart most of the time though as it really chews through batteries.

My Sony 7600 was the one I used to take whenever I travelled overseas and that happened a lot in the 80s and 90s. With its whip antenna and the supplied extendable longwire, it would pick up as well or better than my Yaesu 7700 and 8800 desktops. There was a time I used to cart an old FRG7 around on my overseas trips. Took up a lot of room in my luggage but it was worth it as I could keep in touch with events back home.

Dave,

How DXAcish of you!

1. Not everyone has your vast resources.
2. Some of us just like cheap crappy radios.
3. DXing with a portable is a skill unto ittself, kind of like UltraLite DXing.

Now go decode some .01 watt PSK from the opposite side of the planet.

I do my program listening on the internet. I have no need for a sync detector (too late to save AM radio). I have an 80' antenna. Too much sensitivity would be worse than slightly less than average (for portables?)

You really aren't all that bright, are you Gregg? What does this thread really prove? Well, for one, it proves that my memory, at 72, is a little flawed. Not surprising really. As I said, I don't keep posts beyond a couple of months. That thread was 2 years ago! That was about the time I was retiring from my work and setting up as a consultancy. Had a lot on my plate at that time so it wouldn't be surprising I mixed a few details up 2 years later. I don't go hunting through back threads like you and your troll mates do.

What else does this thread prove? This thread proves that you are a troll and that you harass people on usenet using multiple aliases. In fact, it shows the genesis of your trolling on rec.knives. Think about that!

Just what was in that thread that made you want to target Steve Kramer? I notice that I made one post in that thread. I pointed out to Steve Kramer that the trolls had been infesting soc.culture.thai for quite some years.
Here is the segment, unedited, that I added to that thread!

Krypsis wrote:

newsgroup, look no further than s.c.t. You are not the only person the trolls have harassed over the years Steve. They have harrassed quite a few in the past and, with one notable exception, none of them post any more. In fact, I would venture to suggest that s.c.t has no relevant (to Thailand) posts at all. Even the last few diehards (the likes of Sandy Cruden and others) have deserted s.c.t after a valiant but ultimately vain effort to maintain the newsgroup as a forum of Thailand related articles. Only Tchiowa remains of the original posters and he has been a victim of the trolls for a long, long time. No doubt others look in from time to time but they never seem to post. Why would they?

I only have a passing interest in s.c.t as I used to spend a lot of transit time in Thailand whilst on my way to neighbouring countries as part of my work for the Aust. Federal Govt. Still, there used to be quite a lot of interesting information posted on s.c.t but all of that has gone, destroyed by the trolls. They will do the same to rec.knives as there is nothing left to be done at s.c.t.

I spend most of my time in s.c.v and I trust the trolls will find nothing of interest in there. They would need to learn Vietnamese as most discussions are in that language. They won't even find my posts there unless they can read Vietnamese.

Best course of action is to do as I do and relegate the trolls to the kill file.

Now please tell me where, in the text excerpted above, I step in for Steve Kramer? I offer only advice on the past history of the trolls in s.c.t and summed up with a method for dealing with them. You will also note that I predicted that the trolls would do to rec.knives what they did to s.c.t. Well, that prediction has indeed come to pass and rec.knives is merely a shell these days, existing only as a playground for the trolls. My next prediction, thanks to YOUR EFFORTS, is that RRS will soon suffer the same fate.

Contrails by themselves are just ordinary cloud created off the back of the low pressure of the jet wing, not very bad. It is the potential jet fuel products within them that may be trouble, but those are everywhere anyway.

A $50 boatanchor like an S-38 would outperform any of those radios for weak signals. I have a National NC-125 with a Q multiplier that'll out-HFBC DX almost all transistor radios. It drifts a litlle, but what do you want for $50?

I'm not being a snob, but there are physical realities to deal with here. All but the very finest solid state front ends suck. They appear slightly deaf. That's all. I'm not trying to insult anyone.

My Panasonic RF-2200 is the best"plastic" portable for AM DX'ing. With its swiveling ferrite antenna, it will pull in stations that my other radios won't.

Abraham was a fiction of someone's overactive imagination and the Old Testament seems to be merely an after the fact justification for having murdered and mutilated your neighbours for their lands and possessions.

Want to kill your firstborn? God is there to help. Ever fantasize about all night wrestling matches with another male? God will send an Angel to oblige. God loves you and hates all the same people you do.

The 'God made us do it' justification was/is very common and some United States' Presidents have a DIRECT line of communication to the Almighty.

I'm still amazed at the misrepresentation of the Exodus from Egypt. It wasn't an Exodus at all, but a forced expulsion. When Pharaoh found out that seven years worth of grain was missing from the silos, he got mad.

It appears one his most trusted Officials had been doing a thriving business with his foreign brothers. Off the books.

Never again did Pharaoh save drowning babies in reed baskets. They're ever so ungrateful AND you have to keep a constant eye on your savings.

Of course, that was a long time ago. In these enlightened times, our savings and commodities are completely safe from plunder.

My GE Superradio does almost as well as my RF-2200. The 10kHz MW spacing really helps. When dealing with SW broadcast separation of 5 kHz or less, the RF-2200 can't hold a candle to some of the portables with sync whn it comes to selectivity.

Well, the S-38 may be a bad example to choose and sounds like you may have never used one.

On a fundamental level, there are three key characteristics of a receiver, the three S's: sensitivity, selectivity and stability. Unfortunately, the S-38 has "None of the above". No insult intended, the S-38 was a nice (and nostalgic) radio, typical of the most very basic entry level radios of the day.

I hesitate to speak in general terms because there are so many exceptions, but most modern, inexpensive solid state radios (what you call 'crappy'), have better sensitivity and stability than the inexpensive old-timers, while sorta kinda lacking in selectivity.

Just my 2 cents...

P.S.

You say above the S-38 would perform well with weak signals -- implying they had good sensitivity. I would disagree, as they had -NO- RF stage, just dumped the antenna into the mixer/oscillator stage like the typical "All-American Five" because, well, that's what they were, but just re-tuned to cover short wave.

Hi - Anyone here know of sources for either:

~Foreign postage stamps, or ~International Business Reply Envelopes - allows instant pre-addressed no-postage return mail under 2 oz.

This latter item is an official USPS sale item advertised on their website, costs about a buck and a half, but is not apparently available via mail order from USPS (the search engine does not turn it up as an item). It sounds nearly ideal to give a prospective QSL issuer an easy way to ship.

Hello,

From memory I also thought that the external antenna is for short wave only (so not for the AM broadcast band). The manual, however, says that is does work on "MW" also (page 35GB). I don't have the receiver over here so I cannot verify it. The manual also says it outputs DC, so you need to avoid a short between the ext. antenna input and ground of the receiver.

Unless you are in a very remote area, 100ft wire at reasonable height above ground will overload the receiver very likely. You can better use a shorter wire far from interference sources and use coaxial cable between the antenna wire and your receiver.

You need to connect your wire to a large metallic structure or ground away from interference sources, otherwise the cable will guide indoor interference to your antenna.

Best regards,

You can speak to you local post office and set up an account. I know I did that eleven/thirteen years ago. They did or had access to the IBR envelopes then.

Oh cry me a river- as soon as I saw that I literally rolled my eyes and snipped the rest of your pathetic post. Your busted buddy and you know it and just because no one else is responding though they read it....lol....trust me everyone read it. They ALL know what you said was A LIE.

I mean, I knew it and anyone with a brain knew it, but now all the sudden your blaming your age....Bwahahahahahahaha!!!! Apparently you're getting a little "long in the tooth" there Krypsie and you need to go to the old folks usenet discussion boards, do you want me to provide those links for you....lol.

You are now OFFICIALLY on my ignore list, I proved what I wanted to proove about you to RRS and anyone with a brain (though they won't say it without fear of retribution from you) that YOU ARE THE TROUBLEMAKER and you want to stay here to do nothing but start trouble, it is your nature and anyone with a lick of common sense know it.

You can now talk about my momma and my daddy if you want, you can press every button of mine you want, but you will get no response from me again. See, that is how adults deal with their children when they jump up and down and hold their breath and try to get attention. Now go stay in your corner, until I see that you apologized to your Daddy (that would be me ;-) you will not get any more attention. Now go, get in that corner before I tan that ass. : o)

He's toast Larb and I thought this guy may be a challenge. Oh I'm getting old blah blah blah. Whatever you freeking nut! Now watch how many times this guy will mention me either in a post or starting of a thread, such a child but that's OK, until he tells me he's sorry he won't be spoken to.

I hear you. When I want to try an copy some dude from Guam keying three watts from a coat hanger mounted to his pie pan plate - - I can copy it with the HQ129X with the Q Multiplier. If I want to DX the BCB
I use either the 129X or 140. Hammarlund knew what they were doing when they made certain receivers no doubt.

Mikey, there is nothing crazy about our boy Gregg. He is a troll. A very good troll. In fact, we want him to be president of our Distinguished Toll Society! Hey brother, we already GOT the bat signal from you in back channels. We know what you want and were here to help you all the way. We will shut down this stupid newsgroup just like we did to the others. You helped us shut down rec.knives even if you're too humble to admit it. * As one of the original members of the DTS let me say it is never our intention to destroy any newsgroup.
And WE have never done so.
We (the DTS) merely sort out the blowhards and bullies from various groups and give them a taste of their own medicine, and guess what?
They don't like it, as evidenced by the repeated bleatings from that old fool Krypsis.

Some like Kramer try and hang on, but this Krypsis klown will be a short lived phenomina.

Mark my words.

OK - looks like R. Conakry is a tough place to get a QSL from by mail - although it looks like e-mail might be easier.

So, I am sending them a detailed reception report with cover letter en Francaise, an SWL card I made with full data on back and a lovely local photo on the front, a self-addressed envelope with $3 US for postage, and a double-sided, personalized, handcrafted (well, PC-crafted) full color, full-data QSL card in French; all they have to do is sign it, pop it in the envelope and use that $3 to put a stamp on the darn thing.

I even offered to give them the forms for the QSL by e-mail if they like it (it's pretty nice if I do say so myself :-).

Wish me luck - Guineenne QSLs don't grow on trees...

In Mississippi, bleach was believed to have integrative powers. The stuff whitens and it was thought of by the KKKuhulin Klass as a potential tool for assisting assimilation.

Ethnic cleansers have often used chemicals on the victims. Cuhulin seems to have stumbled on leftover surplus bleach, most likely from the 'fifties or 'sixties. We can tell by his speech patterns that he is among the better educated members of the Bleach Toting Community.

Michigan still records massive sales of Bleach. Unfortunately, that supply seems to arrive from China and Russia. It's whitening efficacy is rather suspect.

One ethnic cleanser (aka Bango Blanco) in that State claims to have twenty thousand gallons of it hidden under his house floorboards. He is saving it for the future 'cleansing' wave scheduled for 2012.

Awww... come on Larbie! No need for false humility here. We know why we formed the Distinguished Troll Society and how you helped to get us organized. You yourself said many times in rec.knives how our purpose was to completely shut down the group, and damned if we didn't do just that too! Then our lil buddy Gregg came along and joined in the trouble making like a real trooper. We all figured he was a stand-up troll so we invited him in. Truth is, now there is only old Kyropty to pick on. Everybody else left rec.knives a long time ago. That group is officially dead. Liberty Net: May 29, 2010

by Kevin Strom, WB4AIO

THIS WEEK the Liberty Net had some of the most heartfelt and engaging remarks ï¿½ and some of the cruelest and crudest flagrant illegal interference ï¿½ ever heard on amateur radio.

The Federal Communications Commission is supposed to protect us from intentional interference. The place to send your reports of jamming of the Liberty Net is fccham@fcc.gov ï¿½ and their telephone number is 717-338-2577.

According to N8WGM, they also request that you send them recordings of the jamming to support your complaints. The address for recordings to be sent is FCC Enforcement Bureau, Amateur Radio Division, 1270 Fairfield Road, Gettysburg PA 17325. Especially interesting ï¿½ to us at http://3950.net as well as to the FCC ï¿½ would be reports from those getting a local ground wave signal from a jammer.

Here are just a few of the highlights of this weekï¿½s discussions:

ï¿½ The amazing story of a recent Norwegian immigrant who came to America looking for liberty ï¿½ and who was deeply saddened and disappointed by what he found here. (4 minutes)

ï¿½ It isnï¿½t only Obama and his followers who have trashed the U.S. Constitution ï¿½ itï¿½s been going on for many decades: never forget that George W. Bush referred to the Constitution as a ï¿½god-damned piece of paperï¿½ that stood in his way. (9 minutes)

ï¿½ The story of a North Korean submarine being involved with the Deep Water Horizon disaster just wonï¿½t go away. (27 minutes)

ï¿½ Obamaï¿½s Treasury Secretary rushed to Germany when that country instituted new rules banning naked short selling ï¿½ to urge that Germany rescind these regulations because they might stop Germany from being used as a base by currency raiders. It is clear that the Obama administration is literally owned by these financial parasites. (28 minutes)

ï¿½ The ï¿½job creationï¿½ statistics are wildly inflated, since anyone who works one hour per month is counted as a ï¿½new job.ï¿½ The Census Bureau is guilty of thousands of phony ï¿½job creationsï¿½ too ï¿½ by purposely firing and then rehiring the same workers, with each rehire counting as the creation of a ï¿½job.ï¿½ (48 minutes)

ï¿½ Muslims want to build a $100,000,000 mosque in New York City, causing a public clash with 9/11 survivors ï¿½ and showing us all the folly of having a multicultural society. (2 hours 13 minutes)

ï¿½ Obama told Mexico that the recently-deployed troops on the U.S. border were not put there for stopping illegal Mexican immigration ï¿½ immediately after telling the American people the exact opposite. (2 hours 19 minutes)

Remember that you can receive the Liberty Net on the nearest clear frequency to 3950 kHz every Saturday night at 10PM Eastern Time, or listen live on the Internet via N2SAG or N2IRJ, or listen at your leisure via the mp3 files posted here at http://3950.net every week.

Once again, thanks to W1WCR for running this important discussion net, and thanks also to N2IRJ for making these recordings available.

soc.culture.thai - a few stalwarts lingering on but the place is merely rec.food.cooking - active, a fail for the trolls as the WOMEN in that

Your emailcam doesn't seem to be working Bruce! Could you check it out and run that by me again as I must've missed it first time around. Never was real good at lipreading anyway.

Anyway, it's quite obvious that Gregg doesn't care either. Seems he's already sent the "bat alert"?? out. Say, I notice you aren't quite so staunch in your defense of Gregg lately. I guess it's a bit hard to defend someone who confesses to his sins so publicly.

Send an SASE to:

William J. Plum
12 Glenn Road
Flemington, NJ 08822

Ask for his latest stamp price list.

Relatively pricey, but in many cases cheaper than tossing a few bucks in the envelope.

He doesn't seem to have the stamps from various countries that he'd had in years gone by but you might still want to take a look at his offerings.

Still, hasn't helped me get that Guinea QSL yet.

- The manual also says it outputs DC,

The DC Voltage is a 'sense' switching voltage for the external Sony active Antenna.
1 - Turn the Radio "On" and the Voltage tells the Active Antenna to turn "On".
3 - Turn the Radio "Off" and [No] Voltage tells the Active Antenna to turn "Off".

- so you need to avoid a short between the
- ext. antenna input and ground of the receiver.

This is not a problem since Sony built-in Circuit Protection because this is afterall the same plug used for the External Antenna Input Tip = Antenna [DC 'Sense' Voltage]
Barrel = Ground

- Unless you are in a very remote area, 100ft wire at reasonable height
- above ground will overload the receiver very likely. You can better
- use a shorter wire far from interference sources

The general Shortwave Listener (SWL) External Wire Antenna recommendation for most SWL

'portable' Radios is a Length of around 30~35 Feet.

- and use coaxial cable between the antenna wire
- and your receiver.

Coax Cable can help in RFI Noise reduction {pick-up) coming from the Antenna into the Radio.
More Signal & Less Noise = Better Listening

- You need to connect your wire to a large metallic structure or ground
- away from interference sources, otherwise the cable will guide indoor
- interference to your antenna.

Some SWL 'portable' Radios that are powered with Batteries only and not connected to the AC Mains will work better {more signal and less noise} with just the External Antenna 'connection' only and NO Ground connection. While others seam to work better {more signal and less noise} with both the External Antenna and Ground 'connections'.
-hint- try both

-IF- You are using AC Mains for Power or AC via a Wall Transformer : Then a good Earthen Ground
'connection' is recommended for Safety.

I align my own tube radios, and the S-38 can be wrenched to where it'll hear just about anything. I consider its major flaws to be the hot chassis and the drift. Rock steady stability is not necessary for weak signal AM DX.

Here I made an error: the braid of the coaxial cable at the antenna side (outdoor side) should be grounded (not the wire itself of course). A large metal surface or real ground provision can be used.

As RHF mentioned, Safety is important.
A wire that runs into your house without any form of protection will be dangerous when hit by lightning, no matter how good your house is protected.

Running the wire into your house via correctly installed lightning protection will make the difference between damaged electronic equipment or your house burned-down.

You will probably going to experiment to see whether it is worth to make a fixed antenna. In case of lightning, throw the wire out of you house. Also make sure that when the wire breaks, it doesn't come into contact with power lines.

Great! Sounds like an easy QSL if you can make out some audio. I may need to do an all-nighter here, to find the best time combo. So far, I have not heard more than a SSB whistle from this station; and we usually get PNG pretty well.

If you use a common 9:1 "MLB" autotransformer, all points of the Interesting, but...you can "wrench" all you want, but no RF stage is -still- NO RF stage. And yes, the "hot" chassis, metal cabinet and 50 year old crumbly rubber insulating washers are definately a safety issue.

I doubt that the Marxist monkey running the FCC cares when White patriots who believe in the Constitution are jammed.

Bruce, watch the DX clusters. He is on fairly often. I have talked to him before. In fact I called him without the amplifier and I did not realize he was calling me back right away. He must have recognized my callsign because he gave me a 59 and I doubt I was that strong.

Now that I think of it a friend told me that 6 and 10 meters were open that night so anything is possible.

Actually, no first RF stage is better than a crappy amp up front. There are many DX capable radios with a passive tuned front end.

Good post RHF. The big gripe many have on these portables is the old
"it eats through batteries."

The difference between the 7600 and the 398/909 isn't that big of a difference in battery drain. Now I know "someone" will say different in here as I expect but the way I always looked at owning a portable is that you should use batteries to begin with.

You can have the quietest environment. You can have the best grounded antenna etc. etc. But in respect to any portable, if you run it off batteries it's going to be quieter, period. If you listen so much to your portable that battery drain is a concern, you have two remedies.

Headphones. If you use cans your batteries will last a good long time. And number two, which I do. Have two sets (I have five) of rechargeable batteries and a good charger. Problem solved. If you are buying a portable and you are so worried about battery consumption - then IMO - you should get a desktop. :-)

Don't believe the DPRK has the resources to send a sub halfway around the world... they have enough problems just keeping their mostly antique garbage running at all. And it's not like the DPRK has refueling ships or points outside their own territory. They wouldn't be allowed through the locks on the Panama Canal, so they would have to at the very least sail west past most of Asia, India, Europe, the Atlantic and into the gulf. Long way to go on one fueling.

Aside from that, the US Navy and other institutions keep very close tabs on submarine traffic globally and we would have known of any sub heading in our direction.

Is there such a thing as a MP3 player that uses an AA battery, has a built in FM transmitter, and a USB interface for downloading files from the PC?

I already have a great .5W plug in FM transmitter to listen to stuff off my PC at home, but it would be nice to playback files on my little Degen DE1107 radio while at work. I've looked around and it's almost impossible just to find an MP3 player that still uses regular batteries. It would be fantastic if there was a C. Crane type FM transmitter with a built in USB MP3 player that wouldn't break the bank.

Thank for this. That Kuwait EE BC rarely makes it this far west in audible shape, but their AA BC to W. North America about the same time on 13650 is almost "local."

I was just thinking about the attack on the SK sub; I would not guess that they could take a sub across the Pacific, etc.

As I indicated, they would not be able to get a sub from the Pacific side to the gulf, at least not without doing the Tierra del Fuego route, which would actually be LONGER than going through the China Sea, Indian Ocean and Atlantic Ocean into the gulf. Either way, they don't have the equipment or resources to make that sort of trip. Why you think they put so much stock in missiles?

Don't know about one with a built-in modulator, but there are tons of little plug-in modulators for the iPod and clones. I believe they run off the player's internal battery, so you wouldn't have to change batteries constantly.

Also, if you have a player already, there are a number of nice little modulators you can buy that run off of either 1 or 2 AAA batteries and sound quite good. I have one that uses a single AAA battery, and has all 200 channels and excellent sound with fairly good range (about 20-40' indoors).

First, a DPRK sub torpedoing an oil well is waaay beyond bogus. A person would have to be amazingly simple-minded to believe such a fairy tale.

Having said that, I am currently reading a book about a WWII Diesel electric sub, and even back then, they had a nominal range of about 11,00 miles without refueling.

Absolutely true -- 40 years ago the US had a major hydrophone network (primarily made by Sparton Electronics) to detect subs , and as we all know, technology has increased spectacularly in the last 40 years. The chance of a DPRK sub getting through is between slim and none. And Slim just caught the last bus outta town.

We seem to have gotten off the track here. bpj and I were discussing the alleged attack on a south Korean ship by a north Korean sub. There wasn't any mention of the North Koreans going after any North American or Arabian Gulf targets.

In a not too surprising move, the State Department is working overtime even as we speak trying to manufacture evidence against Chavez vis-a-vis the BP disaster.

It's a tough situation for them, because as we all know, the Venezuelan submarine fleet has been stationed off Pearl Harbour for the last year and a half.

The BP Oil Spill Response Plan as presented in 2008. It appears they lied then and are lying now. Bastards.

They claimed they could handle a 250 000 barrel a day spill.

==========
Given the anticipated reservoir thickness and historical productivity index for the Miocene, worst case discharge is expected to be 250,000 barrels of crude oil per day. Calculations are based on formulas defined by MMS regulations.

2005. BBC radio reception - how far from UK to be usable on medium wave?

I am going on a cruise next month. I need a radio to keep up with the news/football. My question is - do I need to get a shortwave receiver or could I get good enough reception on medium wave? We are going from UK across the North Sea, up along the Norway coast as far as North Cape and then across to Spitsbergen.

If, as I suspect, I'm going to need a portable shortwave set what would you recommend? I've looked at many and they vary considerably pricewise. Would something less than £50 be just a waste of money? Otherwise, if medium wave would be ok - any suggestions?

Many thanks

I just cannot keep my name off the airwaves these days...

On CRI's "Listener's Garden" an e-mail letter of mine was just read thanking them for a QSL card and their English listener's magazine.
What fun! :-D

Pete, the BBC web indicates no SW or MW service to Norway, but as an old DXer I would think at night you should get MW and SW from BBC beamed to other areas.
Their main service to Norway/N. Sea is satellite - go to BBC's website for more detail.

A reasonablt portable in your price range is the Eton/Grundig G8 Traveller II. See http://www.hamradio.co.uk/acatalog/Recvs_Eton.html
Martin Lynch in the UK stock them, as do others
I have one and it is reasonable for it's price on MW and SW.

Have a good trip

Hello Gregg,

A good (outdoor) antenna, with good common mode decoupling in the coaxial cable will not change performance when the indoor side is (capacitively) connected to the mains wiring. If there is a difference in battery supply or mains supply, your coaxial cable is part of the antenna, hence susceptible to (indoor) interference.

Some receivers may suffer from mains hum, but this is not an antenna problem. I agree with you in cases where you run a wire directly to the whip antenna. In such cases the radio ground (printed circuit board ground) is part of the antenna and will change performance when connected to mains (via the wall adapter's transformer capacitance).

Evaluation is simple, check signal strength, when it changes when changing from battery to mains supply, mains supply interference may enter you antenna input.

Best regards,

- Good post RHF. The big gripe many have on these portables is the old
- "it eats through batteries."

- The difference between the 7600 and the 398/909 isn't that big of a - difference in battery drain. Now I know "someone" will say different
- in here as I expect but the way I always looked at owning a portable
- is that you should use batteries to begin with.
- You can have the quietest environment. You can have the best grounded
- antenna etc. etc. But in respect to any portable, if you run it off
- batteries it's going to be quieter, period. If you listen so much to
- your portable that battery drain is a concern, you have two remedies.
- Headphones. If you use cans your batteries will last a good long time.
- And number two, which I do. Have two sets (I have five) of
- rechargeable batteries and a good charger. Problem solved. If you are
- buying a portable and you are so worried about battery consumption -
- then IMO - you should get a desktop. :-)

The Sony ICF-SW7600GR runs on 6 VDC, so a single 6 VDC 7 AH rated Battery with a Charger will power an AC Mains 'free' portable SW Radio for a coupe of weeks to a month of Daily {All Night} Radio Listening.
http://www.atbatt.com/sealed-lead-acid-batteries/b/power-sonic/m/6v-7ah.asp
* Works great as a Camping & Field-Day Power Source that will reliably last the whole weekend and run 48 Hours of portable SW Radio Listening on one charge.
 Add a LED Utility Light {6 VDC} along with a Table and Chair and just listen . . .
http://www.amazon.com/gp/product/B002UN4F7Y

FWIW many 'portable' AM FM Shortwave Radios run on 6 VDC and have a Jack for an External 6 VDC Power Input for use with an AC-to-DC Wall Transformer.
Instead use a large longer lasting external 6 VDC Rechargeable Battery and reduce some of your potential AC Mains power source RFI/Noise from a AC-to-DC Wall Transformer.

Number one. I envy you.:-) Myself, having never went on a cruise and definitely never in the area you speak of, I am not familiar number one with your "football" which I take you mean soccer/rugby in your neck of the woods?

Which stations/freqs are they usually on? My guess is that you'll be able to pu any type of news just on the BCB (medium wave.) Regardless, just about any portable (SW), especially with you being on the water will suffice. Clip on 10 ft. of wire and you'll be good to go. There are many in this group outside of the US or maybe in the actual areas you speak of that can help you better.

But heck, go and pick you up a SW receiver. You don't have to drop a whole lot of money and see what you think, worse case scenario you could always (more than likely depending) sell it here or over in rec radio swap. Let us know what you decided on.

Bruce, I must have missed this post amist all the crap going on in the group over the last three days.:-) That is a SWEET picture. Hey, if it ain't broke don't fix it I say. Sure would have been easier for me in the day to do it that way but I was so new to the hobby.....I just felt I literally had to convince them I heard them ie; micro cassette tapes /hand written letters / post cards from my area and lots and lots of IRC's. I know I had to have sent over three/four hundred dollars over seas all together in IRC's and cash, I'm sure it made many happy and sometimes with nothing in return. :-) Live and learn, I won't do it that way again.

I received a call yesterday from a friend and I have a feeling I'm finally going to land of fantastic receiver from him free of charge. I think I may have an idea, but not for sure. But he has worked for the gubiment over 42 yrs. and has access to things I'm sure I don't even know about. I think I am going to have to upgrade my antenneeeeers here shortly. :-) All my fingers crossed!

Yeah, you're just a celebrity nowadays - I don't see how you live with yourself - Ha!. Between you and Ace I have alot of catching up to do, I doubt I could ever put in the time to do what Steve has, but who knows. If I can get everything situated in my room the way I want it (I use to) and maybe use a couple of pooters I'm not using and put them into service and dig up my two old coax's and just redo some things - it will make it easier. We shall see. Congrats on the CRI. You do know though, you really need to get a life. ;-P

Hey, I represent that. They read mine, though years back. I love listening to CRI but then when I think of how they "literally" own this country and all the jobs many americans would have loved to have had being over there.....I just kind of have to block it out or I don't enjoy their broadcast - - and SHE IS SOOOO FREEKING NICE and Excuse me!!

Would you stop for a moment?!
O...man...Haven't you thought-one day- about yourself ?
Who has made it?
Have you seen a design which hasn't a designer ?!
Have you seen a wonderful,delicate work without a worker ?!
It's you and the whole universe!..
Who has made them all ?!!
You know who ?.. It's "ALLAH",prise be to him.
Just think for a moment.
How are you going to be after death ?!
Can you believe that this exact system of the universe and all of these great creation will end in in nothing...just after death!
Have you thought, for a second, How to save your soul from Allah's punishment?!
Haven't you thought about what is the right religion?!
Read ... and think deeply before you answer..
It is religion of Islam.
It is the religion that Mohammad-peace upon him- the last prophet, had been sent by.
It is the religion that the right Bible- which is not distorted-has preached.
Just have a look at The Bible of (Bernaba).
Don't be emstional.
Be rational and judge..
Just look..listen...compare..and then judge and say your word.

Someone hijacked your user ID? Nice try Nurk! Trolls getting trolled?
Right!!! If I recall correctly, and relying on my memory again, you and your trolls hijacked the Nurk ID from a poster called Fred Nurk in SCT a long time back. Now that I think more on it, you harassed the living daylights out of that poor chap as well. Don't tell me, he was a bully too so you just had to hound him out of the internet. Fred Nurk (the original) had a rather quaint way with words. Is that what caused you to hound him out of SCT? I'm surprised you haven't taken after Cuhulin as well as he has a similar quaint way with words!
Yep, fred Nurk, the original was hounded out of SCT by our DTS for speaking funny! I thought he was quite harmless actually. Obviously you thought him a bully and a braggart and, in your self appointed role as a usenet policemen, you took it upon yourself to hound the harmless old codger out of SCT. Bravo, you're a real hero. Get Gregg to go look up that Fred Nurk and see if he can explain to me why YOU targeted him! I could never understand what it was you had against Fred Nurk. Maybe you just liked the monicker and got rid of him so that you would have sole user rights to it.

By the by, has Gregg worded you up about jumping the gun a bit on your attack here in RRS?? Remember what Gregg wrote a short time back? I will cite it here to refresh your memory if you like!

Gregg said he didn't put out the "bat signal quite yet". What does that mean Nurk? (as if we didn't know)
I personally think you fools should stop reading the batman comics and get back in touch with the real world. It's even worse when you actually fancy yourself as batman. Does Gregg fancy himself as Robin?
Of course, you actually stuffed up bigtime yourself when you responded to his post with this;

==========

Hey brother, we already GOT the bat signal from you in back channels.

==========

The wrong bat signal maybe?

Anyway, Gregg has well and truly shot himself in the foot now as EVERYONE on RRS knows that he is planning mayhem with you fools behind the scenes. Well, maybe not Bruce as he seems to think the sun still shines out of Greggs arse!
Hell, must be a load of emails travelling between you trolls to co-ordinate your trolling. Since we've now had a few quiet moments from you trolls, one can safely assume you've finally got the cease and desist bat signal from Gregg!

What a laugh!! Trolls getting trolled! ROTFLMFAO!!!!

Don't limit your thinking to SW and MW. I found that I could get pretty reliable night time reception of BBC on 198kHz in Paris and the south of France on my Sony 7600D. I would expect even better propagation across salt water (with my old Realistic TRF-10, I was able to get daylight BCB reception over more than 400 miles of the Mediterranean). I like the Sony digital shortwave radios (2010/2001D and 7600 series), and I have been positively impressed by the Grudig G5.

I stayed up too late last night, but here's a few of the rewards...

CANADA, CKZU-CBU, Vancouver B.C., 6160, 0600z-0645z, playing CBC Radio 1 program of oldies in English. SINPO = 35323. Fun program, host gives lots of etymology and history for the songs. Me like. Wrote a reception report.

CHINA, China Radio Int'l. via Xian-Xianjiang, 11620, 0803z through 0850z; English broadcast for Asia, SINPO = 35333. "Heartbeart" program plus Listener's Garden, in which, surprisingly to me, I again heard a letter of mine read :-) Wrote a reception report.

MONGOLIA, V. Mongolia, Ulaanbaatar, 12085, 0859z (IS) through 0930z in Japanese and at various times the next 1.5 hours. SINPO = 13221, improving to 25332. The early part of this full 2-hour block starts off weak, but by the 1-hour mark it is strong enough to write a fair reception report. Unfortunately, that puts it in the cusp of the Mongolian-Mandarin language block, neither of which provides an especially easy translation. After the 1.5 hour mark it switches to English, but not before it briefly goes off the air to reorient the antenna to a near N-S pattern, thereby negating the influenced of improved propagation path. Oh, well - there's always September...

PAPUA-NEW GUINEA, Fly Radio, 5960, various times 0600z - 1100z. SINPO = 13221. Always a bridesmaid but never a bride, Fly R. gave a notable carrier every time I sampled the frequency, but only occasionally did I hear the faintest hint of audio. Everyone is hearing this thing, so what I am I doing wrong? QRM from stations adjacent came and went, never a big problem. Noise was bad, as is usually the case.

PERU (?), R. Los Andes OR R. Virgen de la Alta, 5030, 1035z-1040z, SINPO = 22432. Heard what sounded like a Spanish language song followed by talk by a female host, who then unexpectedly went into a chant in a language that did not sound like Spanish. Only other possible in that time slot is Malaysia RTM Sarawak in Malay, and it clearly did not sound like that, so - this gets a tentative from me. R. Rebelde 5025, as usual, rains on its parade a bit. Will give this some more time as time permits; the signal was rather good for what is likely to be a 5 kW station.

ZAMBIA, The Voice (R. Christian Voice, CVC), Lusaka, 9430, 0525z onward, SINPO = 35333. English Christian features. Africa was doing an A-1 job last night, with this station and TWR Swaziland 70 kHz higher at 9500 both doing well. Other southern African stations were doing well too. So, for some reason, this is the first night running where R. Conakry on 7125 makes no appearance, even when 4025 kHz (possibly tiny Star Radio, Liberia) reveals a carrier.

Actually, I have a ridiculously rich life. I have a wife and son with whom I spend tons of time (just went to his spring band concert last night - in their new fancy concert hall), go to symphonies, take long hikes, ride my bike 15-25 miles daily, and I have a full time job!
This radio thing is just a hobby :-)

But good luck on that improved antenna system!

You're just mad because I don't write you charming letters ;-) They read a bunch of letters actually, and many from the U.S. They run a pretty polished operation there compared to what the old R.
Peking used to be...

Hmmm - I have several Muslim friends, very modern, very American, very ordinary - the ladies are attractive and don't wear burkas, the men and ladies both like hiking and photography, they enjoy doughnuts, burritos and Coca Cola, and have fun at parties.

Neither one of us wants to kill the other.

What foreign country do you guys live in? Mississippi? ;-)

Hello Cuhulin,

If this is true, this is also true for Christianity. Both Islam and Christianity share the same roots (Judaism) and sent people to war and call for peace.

Extremist groups you have everywhere. In the Netherlands we have also religious groups (Abrahamic) that believe women belong in the kitchen and gay people should be at least put into prison. That this doesn't happen over here is because at this moment they don't have sufficient power.

I wouldn't doubt that. What troubles me is that BP said they could deal with a 1/4 million barrel a day spill. They were obviously misrepresenting the facts in order to get a drilling permit. They lied for money.

Good thing that can never happen in Government.

Looka here,,, you know how/where to find the oil drain plug on your lawnmower?
There is a Stupid Moron democrap obama BUTT KISSER who lives across the street from doggy's couch, he is that old country boy from Edwards,Mississippi.Last Summer, he pushed his lawnmower over here, he rattled my front screen door.He said, Show me where that oil drain plug is!

The oil drain plug was covered up with some grass and dirt.I showed that Stupid Moron where that oil drain plus is.

He was too damn Stupid to look himself.

I had meant to say, I can't see your lawn mower from here,,, CAN'T.
Some of those new/newer lawn mowers do not have oil drain plugs.In that case, if you want to change the oil, you either have to suck it out with a vacuum pump or turn the lawn mower upside down.That is Stupid!
Always make sure any lawn mower you buy has an oil drain plug.If it doesn't, write to the engine manufacturer and Cuss them out.

Great! A lot of these Europeans are really tough out here in Say cuzz, What would happen if I hook up one of my old Model T Ford ignition coils to the battery in my 1983 Dodge van, and drive around like that when I go shopping? I could have the coil sitting on the front passenger seat.

That's what I have, a horizontal eggbeater. For 2000 square feet of lawn, works great. One of these days I'll scrap the stupid lawn

Hey, I hope you didn't take offense to that because I sure didn't mean it that way. I've never done the symphony thing before. I have been to a real nice concert hall on the campus at the University of Cincinnati, absolutely beautiful. Me and my Dad just opened the doors and walked right in before a football game and there were three girls doing the violine {sp} thing, sounded stunning.

The kids thing (two here) is a full time job in itself. ;-)

Our views diverge.

We work so that we can hand over money to the oil companies and their pawns in Government. Both organizations get our money whether they suck or not. Try saying 'No' to one of the so called public servants when tax time comes around.

Neither of them work for us. They work for themselves. The rest of us serve to launder the money flow between them. Campaign contributions to the politicos keep the flow going.

Be careful "shaking that head" thing.....someone may call you on
it. ;-)
I think both lights have its niche. I have two of the newer expensive ones. They definitely don't produce the same amount of light, though I'm sure their data says otherwise. I just use the simply "common sense" test. Pretty simple IMO, hold up an open book and look. Which type of light makes it easier to read? Until they come up with an even better type of lite that emits more lite, my majority of bulbs will be the usual.

I'm sure this will sound crazy to you Cuh, but last summer was the first time that I sharpened my lawnmower blades. I've had the mower for at least eight years, I just wanted to see if the difference in the cut was really noticeable. Between doing that and raising the platform a tad, I couldn't believe the difference in how the yard looks. Gotta love those bastard files followed by the stone.

You could expect to hear BBC on MW in the North Sea, and 810 Scotland quite far north, but nighttime propagation is difficult in these areas as the nights are very short (and light...). When you reach Northern Norway don't expect to hear anything on MW. I live just SE of North Cape myself, and we've had 24h daylight since mid-May. You could expect to hear SW with reasonable signals from 9 pm to 3 am on the 49 and 41 m bands with a decent portable (others here might want to define "decent" to you as I don't know). Signal levels are generally very weak here compared to continental EU or UK.

I try an not post on topics like this anymore - politics- and that is what it is (except when it comes to Israel). But I will simply say that I don't think anyone can make a legitimate arguement against what you said. Good post IMO.

Why shouldn't he do it? You do it all the time, even with all the "loose screws". Such a risk taker, eh?

It's a great pity you didn't use the "common sense" test when you allied yourself with the trolls. But then, common sense isn't a very common commodity in your neck of the woods, is it?

Pretty simple IMO, hold up an open book and look. Which Anyway, I'm glad you finally "saw the light" and recanted your bat signal to the DTS. That "backchannel" of yours must really have been buzzing after Nurk got his signals crossed!

Rotary lawn mower blades, no matter how sharp they may be, slash the grass, gives a ragged cut.Reel type blades cut the grass, similar to scissors.That is why most golf courses and people who want the best looking lawns use reel type lawn mowers.Cut a blade of grass with your scissors and compare that with a blade of grass which was cut with a rotary lawn mower blade.You can see the difference.String trimmers are the worst of all.

The problem is that incadesecnt lights are truely a full spectrum device.
They emit waves from far infrared (heat) to near ultra-violet over a continuous spectrum.

Most of their output is far infrared, about 90% of the total, and by the time they get to ultra violet, it's negligable.

Floursecent bulbs emit only ultraviolet light inside, and use that to excite phospors on the outside of the bulb. They absorb most of the UV light, and emit single color light. Household bulbs use a combination of the 3 primary colors of light (red, green and blue) to produce what looks like (but really is not) full spectrum light.

LED's also work the same way, combining but they emit the colors directly.

Both are combined in such a way as to look white. The problem is that the colors are generally set up to mimic daylight, (the light of the sky on a clear day), not sunlight. The human eye is used to seeing sunlight, and is more comfortable reading with it.

Incadescent light is the most comfortable for reading, being more like sunlight (actually it is even more red).

As far as efficency goes, incadescent light is about 10% efficent, although there are more efficent and longer lasting bulbs around, they have never really been markted effectivley.

LED lights are about 25-30% efficent due to problems with heat dissipation, the fact they are DC devices in a world with AC power and so on. There have been claims of almsot 50% efficency in the future, but so far they are just claims.

Flourescent lights are around 35% efficent, which currently makes them the leader in lighting.

It's IMHO actually a false claim because due to the difference in spectrum output, I find that I (and my family) all need higher power lights to read if they are flouresent. That's why although I've been using CFL's for 13 years or so, we still have reading lamps with incadescent bulbs in them.

What I am hoping to see is a varation of the 360 degree LED with improved efficency. These are similar in design to flourescent lights. The LEDs are encased in a block of plastic, which instead of clear like traditional ones flouresceses (glows).

The ones I have been using to replace radio dial lamps glow brightly in a daylight white color in all directions, I'm hoping to be able to buy them in "warm" (redder lights for reading) in the near future.

Until then, IMHO you are wise to replace all of your incadescent lights for general illumination with flourescent ones, the "regular" kind being cheaper to maintain than CFL's, but to make sure you have a large supply of replacement bulbs for your reading lights.

Geoff.

Before the invention of the Incandescent light bulbs, there was Arc Lights, sort of like striking an Arc with an electric welding machine.They were very Bright harsh lights too, but they didn't last long.

We can weld anything but the crack of Dawn ~ old Shack's Welding shop (radio commercials) that used to be across the mighty Pearl River from doggy's couch.

I believe Mr. Franklin said a liberal democratic republic is fairly high maintenance and requires a vigorous and confrontational mass media that always speaks truth to power; as well as a well educated electorate. We lost her when the news divisions started giving people what they wanted to hear, rather than what they needed to hear.

We have become 100,000,000 sets of "hear, see, speak no evil" monkeys.

How do you want to die? Burn to death from the flaky power supplies used in those damned CFL bulb bases?
Or do you prefer the more subtle means of neurological hemorrhages and clotting by inhaling the VERY TOXIC gas that will come out when you accidentally drop one on the floor? No it won't happen right away...it will take hold years later, probably by the time you start developing lesions and growths from that cell phone

Well, I suppose some people use concrete as xeriscape - I think a colorful garden with native, low-water plants and a tile deck for sitting the shade would be nicer. I HATE watering this lawn all summer...

That might work, I'll give it a try a few AMs. - I was just wondering if their sunset time (maybe 1030-ish just now) might be better than my sunrise, or Vice-versa. Have to be later this week - got a couple of heavy work days coming up.

That's a horrible sound. Interesting that the beep or "buzz" is not a tone of constant volume, but varies slightly in its intensity during it's 0.8 second duration, like a trumpet blow or a foghorn. Blatt blatt blatt...

Also interesting are the rare but not unnoticed voice transmissions - garbled, apparently - that spew forth there.

That isn't what makes the vanes go around. If it were light pressure, both sides of the vanes could be the same.

Excuse me, that should be 9875. Propagation on 31 meters is normally pretty bad here after 0400, so I was surprised to hear this coming through. Unsure whether it is daily or not.

With WebTV, you don't have to type anything before or after any dot com websites as long as there isn't anything after the dot com.(.com) If I hit my options key, up pops a panel and one of the links says, go to, and up pops another panel which is a search window and the search window already has the http:// thingy.With WebTV I don't need to type http://www.and .com

It requires more pollution over time to operate the old school bulbs.
This includes mercury, radioactive trace elements from coal, and CO2.

They are going to build a new wastewater desalination plant at the low end of town. Sewer rates are going to jump dramatically, but you get an exemption if you use a minimal amount of water. Therefore I don't water (except what dribbles out of the cooler hose). The Bermuda grass and oleanders are doing fine.

Indeed - and instead of being in a compact, eminently manageable form and amount, it is spread out en mass across the atmosphere and landscape, affecting all the life on the planet, and unable to to be controlled or avoided.

Oil pushers make the same goofy arguments about solar panels - too many toxic elements in a panel. Same retort applies.

Should have given that advice to Gregg! He was the one who chose to go down the trolling path! But them, would he have listened? He's not the sharpest of blades, is he?

Not sure what you mean exactly - but human output of carbon and etc.

OK, copy that too. Can you explain this for me, with the combination of your radio knowledge and these different bulbs etc. Why in your opinion won't anyone replace my LED (am I saying that right?) on my modded 394. I want that crap green gondo and replaced with the indiglo blue like RadioLabs do with their 398/909.

I asked them and never received a response which was kind of surprising in how good they usually are in answering emails. Are you familiar enough with what I'm asking - is it even possible? I know it can't be for the lack of room because the 909 is a portable and the 394 is a desktop. Can't hurt to ask you - no one else knows apparently. :-)

Ok, would that explain this then? I used to have a reading lite that was red, it wasn't a hot red or anything - but at least "for me" for some reason that was the best reading light I had.

Exactly. I tried the newer ones for reading, it just wasn't going to work for me unfortunately. My hope was to use two of them in front of the house with each light encased in its own housing. I guess because of the differences of temperature throughout the day into night/ cold/humidity etc. they didn't last five months (I think) and they're too expensive to use them if they're not going to last longer than that.

Yep, refer to earlier on my post about the red for reading. I've also noticed on CB's nowadays. It seems to be the fad of using all different kinds of LEDS on the radio and Nitro Knobs, from what I hear they are pretty expensive. There are all kinds of youtube vids of these radio modded out, I must say they are somewhat eye catching if anything else. :-)

What things? The bulbs or cell phones, or both? FWIW - whenever I use my cell I use the speaker mode. I feel I know enough to not TX right on my head. Everytime I see someone using their cell in that matter it crosses my mind.

And the BT technology, I'm not real familiar with how that works, I have an idea though. But using anything like that - that someone can copy what you're saying isn't a good thing IMO and even worse is that if it's on (though you're not using it) anyone with a lick of common sense and the correct piece can listen to everything you're doing / saying / in your vehicle. I suppose many people either don't care or don't know, it has to be one or the other IMO.

I had to go find a service manual for it to answer this one. There is a row of surface mount LEDs soldered to the logic board. On top of this is an LCD screen. The manual goes into no detail, so I have no idea of how it is mounted or connected.

If, and I say if, the LCD is just stuck on there with some tape or glue, and is connected to the circuit board with a cable, then you could probably remove it without damage, and replace the LED's with another color. or put an opaque strip over them and a new strip with a different color. That may be a little more difficult because you have to find a place to draw power from.

Then you just stick the LCD back in place and it works. :-)

More likely the LCD is instead soldered to the board. It may be surrounded by a metal shield as LCD's are very noisy electricaly and it could interfere with your reception. The shield may be soldered to the board too.

Removing soldered on shields is difficult and removing soldered on LCD's is time consuming, which translates to expensive.

By my count, there are at least 28 pins or connections on the bottom of the LCD.

So I expect that the cost of replacing the LEDs is very high, far more than the radio is worth. When the radio was relatively new, if you needed to replace the LCD or an LED, you would just get a new logic board from Radio Shack.

Now you would have to find a dead radio with a working logic board, such as one that had the front end destroyed by lightening and use that.

I hope that answers your question.

Geoff.

I don't know about you guys, but I like my filament bulbs in the winter.
The lack of efficiency just helps heat the room I am in, so no big deal.
My summer bulbs are CFL's, soon to be LED's when the price comes down to something a mere mortal can afford.

In the winter, this is probably true - what you lose on light efficiency you save on heating. Then, the question becomes - per unit of tangible heat energy, what costs less - the electricity to light the bulb or the "other" source?

I am sure this can be calculated, but not by this guy! :-)

I have a big reason to not want the CFL's in the winter, radio noise.
DX sucks in the summer and the noise level goes up in the evenings when everybody turns on their energy saving noise makers.

Understood, the older ones were terrible - but the new ones I have purchased are RF quiet as a mouse. If there is any noise, it's much lower than the background. I can have all these new CFLs in the house off or on and the radio S/N is the same.

Don't ask me which brand just now - I'd have to run and get the package from the garage; but if you shy away from CFLs, this is one less reason to do so.

Imagine how much MORE efficient those lamps would be if they DIDN'T eminate energy in totally useless RF ranges...

The most efficent way to heat is by moving heat, not creating it.
A refrigerator works by moving heat out of the cooling compartment into the room. This is a specific case of a heat pump.

An air conditioner is a similar case. Some air conditioners can be run backwards, i.e. used to suck heat out of the air and deliver to a room.
These are called in the US "heat pumps", which is silly as an air conditoner of any kind is a heat pump.

Here they have hit the market big, with a large reduction (almost to nothing, VAT only) on airconditioners, there is a big influx of models and lots of competition. They are called "inverters" here.

The next most efficent way of heating is fire. Either radiated heat from a fire, or transfered heat via pumped air or water. My son just moved into a new apartment and it has a Junkers (German) gas heater. The heat transfer is so efficent, the case and exhaust pipe are plastic. It's smaller than a a microwave oven, interior wall mounted and heats a 150 square meter apartment.

A neighbor has a 20 year old Junkers, and it is a huge metal box the size of a medium sized refrigerator, mounted on an outside wall with a metal vent pipe. My guess is that most of the heat gets radiated by the box and vent pipe and goes up the chimney as it were.

The technology has improved immensely.

A fireplace is the exception to the rule because since it is in a room with people it needs to be properly ventilated and more heat goes up the chimney than into the room. Add into it the fact that the room requires a constant flow of fresh (outside) air, which is cold and you get very close to a net loss.

A stove is better as you can control the amount of air in (and therefore out), but not a lot.

Electric resistance heating is really poor, not only does it give you so little heat per kWh, electricity is expensive. The average kilowatt hour in the US at your home starts out as 3kWh at the generating plant.
Since more than half of the electricity in the US comes from coal, and most of the rest from oil, think about it.

I always laugh because people here buy these sauna heating panels. They are about a foot square and consume/output 400 watts of heat. This means if they are on full they reach over 120F, which makes them impossible to put anywhere near people. If you turn them down to a safe and comfortable temperature, they consume less electricity, but put out less heat. They also are less efficent at the lower temperatures.

So the answer is if you live in a climate that does not drop below freezing an electric heat pump (backwards air conditioner) is probably your best "bang for the buck". Probably you could get away with electric auxilary heating for the few days it becomes so cold that the heat pump can't suck enough heat out of the air.

If you live in a colder environment, then you probably would need an auxilary heater such as a Junkers or the US equivalent.

Then there is the whole notion of solar heat collectors. There are special ones designed to keep GPS satellites warm and can reach 250F from "earthshine". A former co-worker was going to install them in the UK, I never did hear if he did and if so, how they worked out.

Note that heat and electricity storage systems are expensive and not always practical, so any solar heating system needs a backup.

With that said, we have a solar hot water heater and it does enough heat for 3-4 showers at night May through September. It does not see the sun until 11am, so if you want a hot shower in the morning you have to use an electric heater.

Geoff.

If/when you sharpen your lawnmower blade, use one of those conical balancer thingys and make sure the blade is level after you sharpen the blade.Ergo a blade that isn't resonably balanced will cause vibration and that can cause the crankshaft oil seal on the bottom to start leaking.

A few years ago after I changed the oil in my lawnmower, I didn't have enough of 30 weight oil to bring the oil level up to where it is suppose to be.I added some 20 weight 40 weight oil.
That Stupid Moron old country boy from Edwards,Mississippi said, You are putting the wrong kind of oil in there, it says use 30 weight oil only.

That MOFO Broke my chainsaw last Summer and HE tells ME what kind of oil I should put in MY lawnmower,,, as long as I have been mowing since around 1950!
My old lawnmower still runs as good as new.

This one often booms in out here, much better than their near-contemporary EE BC. I never thought this would happen, but have a QSL for this one :-).

One of the U.S. West's strongest signals, on every freq.they use.
RNZI is audible all day.

Matches Ukraine from earlier in the season; could well be their site.
Try a reception report and see what the QSL says.

HI - I'd have to unscrew 30 bulbs - and even at that, these new ones make no difference at all. The noise of the bulbs are below the noise floor of the radio and the atmosphere, even on quiet days.

One word to remember Cuh. MotorKote.

It is hands down the most incredible product I have ever bought, period. The stuff was originally made for the big trucks and the owner ops were blown away by what this stuff did to their engines and they started putting it in their transmissions.

Then people started using it in everything. Now they have it in sprays etc. etc. One of my relatives has one of those big old tractors (this thing looks ancient), I mean old. He thought he was going to have to do some engine work on it. I told him to check this out and we poured some MotorKote in it and badda bing - problems fixed. That stuff is the shit. I've motorkoated my cars and truck and boat motor and lawn mower - anywhere where there's metal to metal contact I put the Kote on it. You should pick you some up and you'll see what I mean and be a believer. End of commercial. :-)

- make no difference at all. The noise of the bulbs are below the

BpnJ,

That's a whole lot of un-screw-ing to do in just one night * much simpler *
Run the Radio on Batteries and Kill the House's Mains

Honestly if you do this and can not hear a difference : Then the background RFI/EMF Noise in your neighborhood is so high that CFLs are in-fact relatively 'noise free' as far as your home rf environment is concerned.

Thanks everybody for your advice. I have just come home with a Eton G8 Traveller radio. Only just started playing with it but it seems excellent and exactly what I need on this trip. What I didn't mention on my initial post is that, hopefully, over the next few years my wife and I will be doing perhaps three cruises a year. I've been taken on as a cruise lecturer. The deal is no pay but free trips for us and half price drinks! It's a tough and dirty job but somebody has to do it!

I have migrated completely over to the compact flourescent bulbs. I find that they put out plenty of light while using a lot less energy.
Perhaps most important of all, at least for me, is the fact that they last much, much longer than incandescent light bulbs. It's nice not having to worry about replacing spent bulbs all the time.

Here's what the E4X log looked like after things finally wound down:

80.267 QSO in E4X Database.
23.042 Unique Callsigns.
165 DXCC. 39 CQ Zones.
First QSO at 27/05/2010 @ 20:01
Last QSO at 07/06/2010 @ 06:40

I eventually made it into their log on 20m CW and that's plenty for me...I don't have much of a stomach for the kinds of pileups E4X was inspiring. They were huge. Haven't heard pileups that large since K5D on Desecheo Island.

Thanks to all the guys on the E4X team for giving us some interesting DX to chase.

When i used gas mowers I would buy them used, change the oil once when I got it, keep the oil topped off, and leave the mower with the house when I moved. I didn't care if the house burned down back then.

I'm descended (through my father) from Daniel Boone's in-laws - the Bryans. When I lived in Utah, it was always fun to point out that the LDS relied on scouting reports made by an ancestor of mine out of Louisville in the 1820's.

These are serious allegations. Can you provide us with a quote of the president blaming the Macondo blowout on Bush and Cheney? As he is doing "nothing but" that should be an easy task.

I maintain the blowout is my fault because I insist on driving everywhere I go.

My son's ancestors on his Mom's side are partly from Kentucky - including one Princess Cornblossom, daughter of Chief Doublehead and wife of "Big Jake" (something?) who was a Revolutionary War hero. (I am taking this from memory very early in the morning, so I may not have every detail perfect).

Where was E4X?

We had a special call station in San Leandro, California (next town over) yesterday (W6?) celebrating the 110th anniversary of the RR station. I heard voice on 20m, and there was a small pileup there, parly because she could be heard but could not hear the others. Oh, well...

I won't deny that - I have said about a hundred times that the RFI here is intense at times. However, even when it is RF quiet - and that does happen late at night - the bulbs are quiet.

I know this is hard for you to accept, so I won't try any longer, but you need to understand that the world progresses even if you don't.

Me too. I am to blame for my addiction to oil, and thus for the millions of animals that are dying and the ruined livelihoods of the people who depend on the Gulf.

Nope, you hijacked the name from a Fred Nurk that posted in sct way back. What's more, you've NEVER been an amicable poster.

You've already had way too much to drink if what you're writing is any indication.

ALBANIA, Radio Tirana, 7425 kHz, April 17, 2010 during my local evening (have to check time). Partial data card (date and freq. only), unsigned but with a handwritten ending "English Section." Very thin paper stock, picturing an abstract pen drawing of a young woman in traditional garb. with station logo and words "Albania" and "Radio Tirana." In airmail envelope with complimentary postcard of the ancient Butrint Amphitheatre with a handwritten signed note, "Thank you for writing to us, Best Wishes, Radiso Tirorys (sp)." Received in 51 days. This was a very tough station to hear and understand, very weak signal here in WNAm, so I am pretty pleased with this one.

Depends on propagation and what I send for. In March we had some good propagation so I sent out a bunch of QSL's to the far east. Recently I sent for a couple local things like the Indy Speedway QSL's. I might send a card to the new stations I worked in Iceland and Kazakhstan but then I already have QSL's from those countries.

If someone asks for a QSL, I will send one. I don't exchange with everyone I talk to. The postage cost is too high. The card I sent to Hong Kong came back with a $3 stamp and I only sent $2 and self addressed envelope to cover the return. Now that is a $3 Hong Kong, China stamp so I don't know what its actually worth but you see where it can get expensive for all involved.

I just talked to a guy in Cuba with 100 watts while I was sitting here and he contacted a few stations in Europe so conditons are not bad on 20m. Still waiting to hear Arnie Coro on the air.

BpnJ,

Have a SW Radio with Batteries installed at-the-ready.

Wait for the 'next' Rolling Brown-Out or local Power Failure in your neighborhood.

That will give you a real good idea of the true atmospheric background noise floor -versus-The Environmental RFI/EMF Noise Level of a modern urban environment.

You have several Circles-of-Noise all around you :
1 - Your 8 or so next-door neighbors and all that RFI/EMF generated and emanating from their homes within 50~200 feet of your home.

2 - The 8 or so adjacent blooks nearest you and all that RFI/EMF generated and emanating from those homes within 200~800 feet of your home.
3 - The rest of your neighborhood, town, or city from 1000 Feet out to a Mile filled with RFI/EMF generating devices.
4 - Beyond that the World at large and every man made device in it.

it's a noisy noisy noisy world we live in : ~ RHF

Dave not all the household wiring throughout a home is installed correctly and that leaves a 'potential' for problems from devices that are plugged-in and screw-in to them.

Use a modern Lighted On/Off Switch with LED Lights and you just might notice a presistant
After-Glow in the LED Lights in the Off position.

Dust-to-Dawn Photo-Cell controlled Light Circuits are another source of Lights not being 100% Off.

Heh,
A lot. I think some of mine were the older or first generation and burned out and got replaced with the newer ones. My main source of noise in my bedroom/listening room is an SCR controlled touch lamp.
Even if it is not on it still makes noise. HUH?

2263. CONFIRM QSL: Frank Rossio Has A Flatulophilia (Fart) Fetish!

Dear Short Wave radio community,

As you very well know the West Coast United States
75 and 80 meter bands have been inundated with a pack of haughty old alcoholics, pranksters, perverts, punks and pricks.
We believe in free speech but an number of times (00500(PST Zulu) -1000 (PST)
on the frequency 3840MHz the following short wave operator KK6FR, fondly known by his pack rat cronies as Desert Fart Frank, Desert Frank, Ass-Lips and Fart Sniffer located
in the Mohave desert is down right obscene. Anyway Frank Rossio, a rotund Irish sounding, crook nosed pork belly with a lazy eye prick located at

Frank Rossio
PO Box 294034
Phelan, California 92371
USA

has continually subjected to dx'ers on the frequency with suggestions that they "smell the fart from a man or any woman's asshole to think that the concentration of the gas was one fermenting in their colons" which is true? But for Frank to implore the other operators on 3840MHz and the mass dx audience to do that is obscene. We had our five year old children rolling over the floor until we sent them to their rooms. Also one zealous fairy sounding like operator continued the QSO with the memory of KK6FR and one other unnamed operator (we think it was WK6F) "playing the fart game over the air!" That is they tried to out fart each other into their microphones and crank up the compression and digital effects, Frank (the pig) said he was using a mx200 harmonizer and the other huckster was just barely a 10 over twenty.
Remember fellow ham operators Frank is braging that he is operating well over the legal limit then continued his fart charade and then directed his animus at Laura Smith, the FCC Helga of the U.S of A. Therefore we'd like to go on the record that since Frank Rossio continues with his fart lingo and blaspheme that Frank Rossio has a genuine fart fetish - in medical terms is a flatulophilic. There is a distinct chance the Frank may even be sexually attracted to his fellow flatulophilic that currently infest 3840MHz. Those of you on QRZ should email Frank and tell him to get his shit together and see a psychiatrist over his flatulophilism before he hurts somebody out there in the desert. Also dx complaints about the demeanor of Frank Rossio such be emailed to Laura Smith at fcc.gov please also include in your messages to Laura Smith about implementing an operator "Corrective Consultation" policy for the Frank Rossio types.

Thank you
Lynn and Dean Zimmerman

That would be great for me since all my radios have tubes. Built in night lights. I've been thinking for the last 20 years how that event would destroy all the newer, smaller chips with millions of transistors on each one. Poof! No more high tech. Nasa says we are overdue for an event from the sun.

It may be an old mil hf link that refuses to die... Wiki has reference to a site in RR,(radioscanner.ru),where several people ,being local residents actually tried and failed to identify the exact QTH! One of the posters claims it to be a 'normal operating condition' (the constant buzz). According to him it is NOT a special modulation technique. It has been a mystery since the '70s.

BB - So un-plug it - idtars ~ RHF

Had a new round Overhead {Center} Ceiling Light Fixture that used 2 Panasonic Quad Tube {2-Pin} CFLs cause it was producing 'noise' when it was On.
http://www.lightbulbemporium.com/18w_quad_tube_cfls.asp

The replacement was a Costco Overhead {Center}
Ceiling Light Fixture that used 2 regular E27 Screw-in CFLs and the Noise was gone. Plus the regular E27 Screw-in CFLs cost Half as much as the 2-Pin kind and -if- you want to, you can even use good old E27 Scew-in Incandescent Light Bulbs of new E27 Scew-in LED Light Bulbs.

Ha!!! Yeah, I remember those days when my Cincinnati Reds posters came down and were replaced by all the coolest looking black light posters made. My room was upstairs in a loft setting. My folks bought two very long black like tubes that I screwed into the top of my wall. Looked incredible....lol. Then of course the two big strobe lights and two big ole beanbags that I would hide "the good stuff" in ;-) I have to say, my friends thought I had the coolest room.

CONFIRM QSL: Frank Rossio (KK6FR) Has A Flatulophilia (Fart) Fetish!

Dear Short Wave radio community,
As you very well know the West Coast United States
75 and 80 meter bands have been inundated with a pack of haughty old alcoholics, pranksters, perverts, punks and pricks.
We believe in free speech but an number of times (00500(PST Zulu) -1000 (PST)
on the frequency 3840MHz the following short wave operator KK6FR, fondly known by his pack rat cronies as Desert Fart Frank, Desert Frank, Ass-Lips and Fart Sniffer located
in the Mohave desert is down right obscene. Anyway Frank Rossio, a rotund Irish sounding, crook nosed pork belly with a lazy eye prick located at

Frank Rossio
PO Box 294034
Phelan, California 92371
USA
(ps. if you punch that into google maps shows the actual location of the little sniffer)

has continually subjected to dx'ers on the frequency with suggestions that they "smell the fart from a man or any woman's asshole to think that the concentration of the gas was one fermenting in their colons" which is true? But for Frank to implore the other operators on 3840MHz and the mass dx audience to do that is obscene. We had our five year old children rolling over
the floor until we sent them to their rooms. Also one zealous fairy sounding like operator
continued the QSO with the memory of KK6FR and one other unnamed operator (we think it was WK6F) "playing the fart game over the air!" That is they tried to out fart
each other into their microphones and crank up the compression and digital effects, Frank (the pig) said he was using a mx200 harmonizer and the other huckster was just barely a 10 over twenty.
Remember fellow ham operators Frank is braging that he is operating well over the legal limit then continued his fart charade and then directed his animus at Laura Smith, the FCC Helga of the U.S of A. Therefore we'd like to go on the record that since Frank Rossio continues with his fart lingo and blaspheme that Frank Rossio has a genuine fart fetish - in medical terms is a flatulophilic. There is a distinct chance the Frank may even be sexually attracted to his fellow flatulophilic that currently infest 3840MHz. Shorwave radio is not the place to be firing ones distended asshole into a microphone for people to hear! Those of you on QRZ should email Frank and tell him to get his shit together and see a psychiatrist over his flatulophilism before he hurts somebody out there in the desert with his deadly butt rot. Also dx complaints about the demeanor of Frank Rossio such be emailed to Laura Smith at fcc.gov please also include in your messages to Laura Smith about implementing an operator "Corrective Consultation" policy for the Frank Rossio types.

Thank you

I got out my DX Edge, which has individual slides for each month, and it pretty much corresponds to AZMAP by Paul Burton which I've been using on the puter for some time.

I may put the DX Edge up on eBay. It's as new, and I bought it for a backup. Sold my old ratty one some time back to a guy in Europe.

Those unfamiliar with the DX Edge can get an idea of what it's about here:

Mine is an earlier one without the full colour map on the slide holder.

Odd how with mass communications and constant connectivity we are farther apart than ever. Humanity cannot function globally. We are a tribal animal. The sooner we get back to that the better.

I have an old antique (or almost an antique) Keen Kutter reel type lawn mower, I don't use it though.It has a wood handle and the part from the handle to the reel and wheels unit is made of wood.It says Keen Kutter on there.I have another very old reel type mower too.It is weird looking.One of the wheels is much smaller than the other regular size wheel, about the size of a little caster wheel.The handle is missing.I haven't measured the width of the reel, I reckon it is about eight inches wide.I figure it was/is a sidewalk edger mower thingy.The reel and the regular size wheel wont turn, it needs to be taken apart and cleaned up and oiled/greased/whatever.Old stuff I bought at thrift stores/junk shops many years ago.

Wow! You seems to know all there is to know about lawn mowers.
Why don't you share your knowledge and update the Wikipedia article on the subject? Wikipedia has become such a dull place. You should be able to do something about it.

They are indeed all different people. If you include Gregg, that would make about 6 regulars. They are however very prone to nymshifting so you never know which is which. Even the trolls don't even seem to know who is who lately and they are accusing others of trolling them.

You are correct in that you have identified them as mental defectives.

The trolls give their reasons for trolling as getting rid of bullies and blowhards. Interesting since there are no bullies or blowhards on, for example, rec.knives yet the trolls are still there. In fact, the trolls are the only ones there. They say they wanted, in their most recent trollfest, to rid the internet of Steve Kramer! OK, Steve Kramer no longer posts in rec.knives or anywhere else for that matter. So why are the trolls still there? Why, for that matter, are they constantly pleading for Steve to come back? Why are the trolls posts the ONLY posts in rec.knives? After all, legitimate posters vacated the newsgroup quite some time ago. I know irony is a bit difficult for the trolls but, if they've chased away all the posters from a newsgroup, doesn't that make them the bullies?

Gregg will be very sorry he brought them to rec.radio.shortwave for, as history will show, they NEVER LEAVE! They will, in the absence of their favoured targets, select other legitimate posters and begin harassing them. This modus operandi can be verified by a search in any of the newsgroups they infest. Ask Gregg to Google it for you! He's good at Google. ;-)

Now that I think more on it, Gregg probably won't be sorry the trolls are here. He wanted to liven up rec.radio.shortwave. Remember his words;

> At least we'll get the Steve and Mike show back, > it was quiet for a while.

Gregg loved trolling Mike but, mentally, wasn't quite up to it. That's why he called in the trolls for help in "Mike Bashing". Definitely a fitting candidate for inclusion into the DTS. Gregg's just as cowardly as the trolls!

I notice Bruce has given up defending Gregg. Certainly proved to be a lost cause in the light of Gregg's recent confessions.

I'm sick of this bashing of my RIGHTS.

a) Gasoline cans don't kill people, PEOPLE kill people.

b) I'll give you my gasoline can when you pry it from my burning, dead

c) If you outlaw gasoline cans, only outlaws will have them.

We've started a nationwide movement for the right to carry concealed

Don't defend me Bruce! I am quite capable of defending myself and have been doing so for many years now. What you should be doing is getting Gregg (your mate!) to call off HIS TROLLS. He'll probably have to do quite a bit of butt kissing with them now as they seem so eager to get to work on this newsgroup. However, I'll leave that in your capable hands!

BTW, if I am so annoying, why bother to respond to me? Why not killfile me and be done with it! I promise you I won't be offended in the least! You'll soon enough have your hands full with Gregg's troll friends to even give me a second thought!

I respond to you, because you are the bastard that brought them here.
If it were not for your ceaseless pestering of Gregg, Gregg never would have made the significant error of bringing the 'tards to this group. You are the catalyst, the touchstone, the real axis around which this wheel of foolishness spins. And you love every minute of the attention, too. A classic bottom-feeding troll.

Moreover, so far nothing you have said signifies that you are capable of defending yourself. Your words make you out the stooge while everyone else gets laughs at your expense. You are seriously deluded.

I kill file nobody on the offchance that they have something worthwhile to say. You, however, seem to have no interest in shortwave, so I am at a complete loss as to why you continue to hang around here - except to note that you are just a disruptive troll.
You are literally the worn-out pot calling the kettle black.

So keep on puffing yourself up, and keep on pretending that you have something worthwhile to say about others, and keep on being the lightning rod that attracts the sparks. Then you can thank yourself for screwing up yet another newsgroup. It is, at its core, your fault. I'll bet you're proud of yourself.

Get a bowl and drill a hole in the side of the bowl.Put sand in the bowl.put a light bulb in the bowl so that the socket and cord is hidden out of sight, nothing but the light bulb is showing.Plug in the cord and turn on the light.

Bravo, Krapto for your willingness to "Go it alone"...
You are capable of defending yourself!!!...As a 55 yr Oz Govt Tea Lady

Bruce,

It wasn't Krypsis that brought the trolls. Blame it on me if you want.
I decided to stand up to the all constant lies that Gregg and DX Ace were spreading about me. Notice that Gregg's first reaction to my return was to start making up things he knew from my now married female students. This is the kind of crap I've dealt with for almost a decade, now, from these two. Gregg could not even begin to defend himself without sputtering physical threats and contradicting himself on a daily basis. So in came the troll train. I thought if I left, at least they'd stop slandering my current employer. Did they stop? If you haven't noticed Gregg and Steve's continued attempts to get me fired, your choosing to ignore some constant efforts.

Please ignore who you want. Don't get caught up in defending the likes of Gregg, just because he acts nice to you.

But keep posting your logs. That's what this group should be about, not endless personality contests.

Mike

At least one person here can see the reality for what it is.

Gregg, like the fool that he is, admitted quite publicly that HE brought the trolls into rec.radio.shortwave. I merely made the observation long before anyone else.

Gregg acts nice to everyone because that's his modus operandi. He keeps a nice face on but, behind the scenes, is as disruptive as they come! That makes HIM a slime!

Nasa says we are overdue for something because they are trying to keep their funding for all those helio satellites which is fine by me.
But calling these microdots on the sun sunspots is ridiculous. A sunspot years ago was just that... a dark spot on the sun that you could see from the ground.

It looks more like we are going the other way. I would be happy if the solar flux would just get back to 100.

The licences for both CINF-690 and CINW-940, which have been silent for some moths, have been formally revoked by the CRTC. Thus ends the saga of the worlds oldest station, CINW, which started as XWA in 1919. For most of its life it was CFCF.

Revocation of licences

1. Metromedia CMR Broadcasting Inc. has requested the revocation of the broadcasting licences for its English-language radio programming undertaking CINW and its French-language radio programming undertaking CINF Montr&#65533;al. The licensee has informed the Commission that these stations have not been in operation since 29 January 2010.

2. Given the licensee's request and pursuant to sections 9(1)(e) and 24(1) of the Broadcasting Act, the Commission revokes the broadcasting licences issued to Metromedia CMR Broadcasting Inc.
for the above-mentioned undertakings.

No, that would be Gregg. Remember his admission? Such a short selective

You need to get those rose coloured glasses off your face concerning Gregg. Then you might be able to see him as the turd he really is. You will have by now noted that you are alone in defending him. There's a reason for that you know!

I have nothing worthwhile to say about Gregg. He came into other groups and started trolling. He was the lightning rod but then, you don't read those groups, do you? How could you know that HE was the catalyst.

So who, pray tell, screwed up SCT long before I ever posted there?
Between you and me and the gatepost, there's been quite a number of "cataylsts" in that group over the years, good posters all. Where are they now? The only group that has thus far survived the onslaught of the DTS is rec.food.cooking and that is because the women in that group stood up to these trolls. The DTS didn't stand a chance! It's surely a pity there's not more women in this group who are prepared to put the DTS in their place!

OK, so it will get silent to the point of boring while the global powers that be figure out what to do. I might be able to get some serious DX'ing in during the quiet year to follow. We could even get hit by a Gamma ray burst if a relatively local star goes supernova.
Something interesting like that is overdue. Before 1910 or so we would have never noticed it but now everyone is dependent on 'gadgets'.

I hear what you are saying about sunspots and the sun might just be building up to something really big. Even the NASA websites will admit that we know very little about the nearest star, our own sun.

The sun usually goes on an 11 year cycle, at least since anyone watched for it, but something is a bit off this time around. Like everyone else, I am waiting to see what it is. I do like the idea of old steam trains being used again. They were still in use in the early 50's when I was a kid. Seeing one 'peel out' spinning those big steel wheels was quite a sight.

I do, if not turn off the entire plug strip it is getting it's power

The smart money is on Lare (dxace) as having been the primary instigator.

My observations lead me to believe that Gregg is just an "Amen Charley", a "yes" man, an a$$ kisser of the first water that just tries to suck up to his "heroes" in a transparent attempt to curry favor. Rather pitiful,
I know, but it seems quite obvious to even the most casual observer.

I don't blame you at all, and frankly, what I've seen is that Krypsis just can't keep his mouth shut in a newsgroup where he has no interest other than to spread foolishness. Maybe Gregg is bad boy, but at least he likes radio. K is superfluous.

Gregg was here for quite a while without incident - then K showed up to complain. If it was not for K, G would not have gone sideways and the trolls never would have come.

I'm pretty much fed up with the lot of them for being plain assholes.

I don't care about SCT or what Gregg did there. Stuff it up your ass if you care about it so much.

Before you showed up, Gregg was OK, After you, a person with no interest in shortwave, showed up, he found a reason to call over the assholes...you. I blame you both, but you are the catalyst.

In any case, I have had it with you and the other stooges. Flame away if you want, but you and all of them are worthless douchebags.

OK, put the drama behind you, Gregg, and make more radio-related posts. How about some logs? Maybe we'll eventually grow to appreciate what we can both offer the group. I'll offer you the same deal, you

Ding Dong Head - I will say this for the last time<shaking my head> I went to rec knives to ask questions about steel and everyone was great over there to me. The links I provided showed it, I had conversations with over TEN freeking people (not counting the DTS) about certain kinds of knives and steel and they welcomed be warmly. During my time there I posted more things ON TOPIC in seven days than Krypsie ever did, it is all there in the archives to see. He was just there for trouble.

I had NO IDEA who Kramer or Krypsie were....or the DTS. I just came over there in the middle of a pissing match with Kramer telling all these lies and the DTS calling him on it EVERY TIME. As the link shows (that I provided and you read -snicker), I actually asked the DTS if they were just jealous of this guy and then of course The Bankok Banger then had to engage me and congratulate me and tell me of the obvious smarts that I had in picking up on it so quickly...lol - and in the same thread ole Krypsie engaged me though he freeking lied to everyone in RRS saying Kramer was long gone before I ever posted and then saying that "I admitted that Kramer wasn't there." Pretty telling IMO, I am "brilliant" and "On top of things" when I agree with them, but when I choose to come to my own conclusions - all the sudden "I'm stupid" or "lacking intelligience"....lol when just a week ago I was brilliant....Bwahahahaha - these guys are baked!!!! Same with MB, I was his buddy, I was new to RRS, that jackball emailed me over fifteen times maybe more and "gave me the heads up" on certain people and I had no idea why he was doing that. I wished I still had that computer and I would pull that from the hard drive and post them here because I DID save those in a seperate file labeled "RRS Troublemaker." He can deny it all he wants but just like Krypsie - he is a liar and troublemaker and there is nothing more to discuss about that subject matter. Many in here agree with me because they have seen it for yearssss - they just don't want to post about it because of fear (for lack of a better word) of them getting crapped on and getting caught in the middle. But make no mistake about it, everyone (though they may say the haven't) has kept close eyes on this thread because it is human nature.

I did MY OWN RESEARCH. I asked The Banger MY OWN QUESTIONS and found him to be a fraud and one of (if not the number one) biggest bullshitters on usenet but also very fascinating to read. Krypsie, by his own admission came over to RRS to join alliances with MB in his vendetta towards me because of not going along with his boyfriend that was getting pillaged by the DTS. Apparently none of this matters to you and IMO it shows your character, you can ramble and ramble all you want and shuck and jive, just like with other two - you are of the same mindset. Why in the world would you "buddy up" ie;support two usenet troublemakers unless you are just getting a kick out of it yourself. Apparently you are because you keep piping in to defend them and put me down. It's just easy to say I brought this all about without looking at the entire picture and that is what Bruce did- he looked at the 'entire picture', it is common sense, apparently something you lack - but I know you're not stupid - I can tell from your posts- so the only other thing there is ....is that you are just enjoying this which makes you just as bad IMO. I can give hundred analogies like you did and twist and turn things like you did to refute your "bar room brawl" scenario. I know you side with them. Everyone knows it also. Can you just let it go and talk radio?? Please?

When does it end? Notice the Feds haven't mentioned THIS one.

==========
The Deepwater Horizon is not the only well leaking oil into the Gulf of Mexico for the last month.

A nearby drilling rig, the Ocean Saratoga, has been leaking since at least April 30, according to a federal document.

While the leak is decidedly smaller than the Deepwater Horizon spill, a 10-mile-long slick emanating from the Ocean Saratoga is visible from space in multiple images gathered by Skytruth.org, which monitors environmental problems using satellites.

Gregg,

I think I can speak for the majority in here enough to say:

1. Nobody really cares about manipulations taking place elsewhere on the internet.
2. None of us feel that it's a zero-sum game between you and Krypsis.
If he wants to make radio posts, let him. If he all he wants to do is re-hash his problems with you and the trolls, I think most of us would desire him to do it elsewhere.

3.. Let go of your animosities and make some radio posts.
4. Prove that your actions are louder than your words. Ask the trolls to leave. They seemed to do that when you asked them to after dxAce got tired of them. Then we can all play radio.

It's a simple deal: You leave me alone, I leave you alone. Waddya say?

Mike

OH, but wait a minute Bruce. Remember what he said....he has been here for a while - just lurks with an occasional post. If I feel like it and in the mood (which is rare) I will see when he first posted in here because I have been here since 96/97. I have said this I know over eight times, why is that MB is the only person I have a problem with over the years in RRS. I know I have had disagreements with others that have been quickly resolved but with this guy he is vicious.

Why is it that he does this with others also, not just me. Here is why, he is a bully that tries to turn it around and he throws up his hands and says "what, what did I do?"IT IS ALL IN GOOGLE TO BE SEEN.

For at least, the tenth time, I have no idea what sct is or means. If there is a post there from me it is only because I responded to a post in rec knives that was crossposted, when I realized that, I made a point (sometimes I forget sue me) to take off the names of the other groups. I know nothing about thai or cooking etc. etc. etc. - I POSTED in rec knives - damn this is bullshit. It's like he thinks along with MB that if they just keep saying the same lies that it will become the truth, MB saying I've tried to get him fired is bullshit, it is simply A LIE.

This again is simple Bruce. When Krypsie stops his crap - Fred and Larb and the guys will stop. It is childish, I know and I agree with you. But those are the facts, at least from what I have read from the archives. The DTS stopped posting here (at least they don't fake interest in the hobby) when Krapto stopped before......then he brings his show back and another "friend" of the DTS MB "just happens" to show up just in time...lol....it's sad and pathetic. 49 meter band is doing well tonight FWIW. :-)

You are sick and you need help and I cannot believe that you teach our youth of today Michael. That is how I feel and I will not be a phoney about it. I don't like you and you don't like me and alot of it (though you will deny it) is because of my religious beliefs, I am far from perfect and I have a lot of faults but thank God I am not like you. I will offer you the same "deal" - leave me alone - do not mention me in responses, just simply leave me alone. I cannot be any clearer but I will respond to any other posts in this thread only too or about you and I will be done with it.

I don't have to post logs Michael to be a part of this group. I know what I listen to, I don't have to "show my logs" to prove I listen to shortwave radio - I'm listening right now to 5.970 and the 49 meter band is smoking tonight - but you should know that if you are listening to your radio like I am.

Your actions will speak wayyy much louder than your words Michael. I know how this will turn out, it will be just like the other ten times, why would it be any different? Turning over a new leaf in life? We'll see, but I'm not buying your charade. Proove me wrong.

Huh, that is pretty cool. What are you using now I forget. There are a couple links that have been given, the one at short-wave info is what I'm using now. I know back in the late 90's at R&L Electronics (where I go) they had a big laminated map about the greyline but I wasn't even aware then what it was.

I got this from the survival newsgroup, I thought this would be good to post here.

Last winter I posted about a book, "Blank Spaces on Maps." One of the chapters concerned artificial satellites that are absent from the publicly available keplerian elements. Used to be everything was in there. Not any longer. These mystery satellites can be tracked, if you know how. Apparently, this old amateur radio operator and amateur astronomer has the know how...

Grandpa a 'threat to US security'
Cape Town pensioner awaits 'Men in Black' after finding secret craft
Jun 6, 2010 12:00 AM | By NASHIRA DAVIDS

Greg Roberts seems like an ordinary grandfather from a quiet suburb - but the amateur satellite tracker has been labelled a threat to US national security.

Current Font Size:

and he has plenty more equipment inside the house, with which he and other amateur astronomers track secret satellites Picture: SHELLEY CHRISTIANS
His discovery of the craft, which is 8.9m long and travels at 8km a second, earned him mentions in the New York Times The 70-year-old's modest Cape Town home is teeming with computers, telescopes, lenses, radio transmitters, cables, video monitors and cameras.

Last month, using a home-made telescope, Roberts found and recorded footage of a secret space craft - the X-37B - developed by the US Air Force.

The jovial cat lover has been dubbed a satellite sleuth by the international media for his uncanny ability to find and then reveal, on the Internet, the movements of classified satellites.

He was a professional astronomer for over 30 years, has a degree in physics and chemistry and is an amateur radio ham.

With the help of a group of amateur astronomers from around the world, including a petrol attendant in Canada, he calculated that the top-secret spacecraft took about 92 minutes to orbit earth and flies over hot spots such as Afghanistan, Pakistan, Iraq and Korea.

He said that his group had been labelled a threat to national security by the US Congress. "My wife and I joke that the Men in Black will walk up our driveway some day," said Roberts.

His discovery of the craft, which is 8.9m long and travels at 8km a second, earned him mentions in the New York Times, the BBC and science publications.

The X-37B was launched on April 22 from Cape Canaveral.

In an interview with news channel Russia Today, Robert M Bowman, a former director of the Advanced Space Programme in the US, hinted that the craft could be used to destroy military satellites and targets on earth.

Dr Ed Elson, a researcher at the University of Cape Town's department of astronomy, said spy satellites and the weaponising of space were not new. "The real question is what the next level of space militarisation might be. We're still quite a long way off from Star Wars or Independence Day types of scenarios, yet the idea of military satellites capable of destroying one another, or that are capable of striking targets on the ground, is certainly perceivable."

Elson lauded Roberts and the group of amateur astronomers. "That they managed to find it and are now tracking the craft is certainly quite an admirable feat, especially from an observational astronomer's perspective.

"Mr Roberts and his team certainly have a very respectable track record, claiming to be tracking almost every classified object that has been launched in the past five years. I see no real reason to refute their claim of having found the X37-B," he said.

Roberts, an industrial chemist, realised his dream when he joined the Republic Observatory in Observatory, Johannesburg, in 1968 to photograph the planets Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

He also worked on projects linked to Apollo 11 and was involved in site testing for the Southern African Large Telescope before retiring in 1999.

Despite looking into outer space every day, he has never set foot out of South Africa - and has a fear of heights that prevents him climbing ladders.

His work, which often involves complicated mathematics, keeps him going, but he still has to paste a note on his front door to remind him to wear his false teeth.

"We feel that we are doing a service to the public by providing to them what they really need to know," Roberts said. "We don't consider ourselves a threat to security. Anyone else can do exactly the same ..."

http://www.spaceweather.com/archive.php?view=1&day=25&month=05&year=2010

SECRET SPACE PLANE: NASA's space shuttle program may be winding down, but the US Air Force's is just getting started. On April 22nd, the USAF launched an unmanned mini-shuttle from Cape Canaveral on a secret mission widely thought to involve reconnaissance. The X-37B can now be seen gliding through the night sky shining about as brightly as the stars of the Big Dipper. On Sunday night, Gary O. photographed it streaking over the treetops of his home in Fort Davis, Texas.

"This was my first chance to photograph the X-37B," says Gary. "It was easy to see. I estimate its magnitude at about +2.8."

The whereabouts of the X-37B were unknown until May 20th when amateur satellite watchers Greg Roberts of Cape Town, South Africa, and Kevin Fetter of Brockville, Canada, independently spotted it. Another satellite sleuth, Ted Molczan of Toronto, Canada, combined their observations to determine the space plane's orbit. With this information in hand, Fetter was able to find the X-37B again the next night; here it is on May 21st passing the 3rd-magnitude star Sadalsuud in Aquarius.

Ready to see for yourself? You can turn your iPhone into a secret shuttle tracker, or check our Simple Satellite Tracker for X-37B flyby times. Readers who photograph the X-37B are invited to submit images here.

2350. Radio deal alert (apologies if this has been posted already)

http://www.universal-radio.com/catalog/portable/4000.html

Universal is selling the Grundig G4000A for $100. Not in itself really notable, until you add in the two freebies: a MW passive loop antenna and a cheapie, hand-crank "emergency" analog.

Although the last thing I need is another portable radio, this deal may force me to comply with its wishes.

Any reviews from users of the G4000A will be much appreciated.

ROFLMAO!! Gregg, your hot shit, baby. You can lie better than any of us!

When you showed up in rec.knives we thought you were going to turn out pretty dull, but you sure livened things up with your sneaky behind the back trolls. You stirred up as much shit in one week as we did in a month! All those posts about Kraven and you never even realized we made up all the information you were posting! Bwahahahahahahahahahah! You are some real hot shit, Greggy. So don't let these assholes in some dumbass radio group get you down. We know the REAL Gregg. Member in good standing in the DTS! shit-eating grin watermelon style!

Hey dipshit. Gregg asked us to come here to deal with the likes of you and a couple others, not just the Krispy Critter. We came because he's a member in good standing in the Distinguished Toll Society and we stick together. You might not care what he does in other groups, but we do, and so do a heck of a lot of other people. He helped us tear down rec.knives, and with our help we're going to tear down this radio group too. THAT is what Gregg really wants, no mattter what he tell you. Its what he tells US in the back channels that counts. You and your group are toast! Bwhahahahahahahahahahahahahahahah!

Once we are turned loose, there is no stopping us! shit-eating grin!

So why didn't you just leave it there? It wasn't as if you had years and years of commitment to rec.knives. No, you came to rec.knives to cause trouble because, in your own words, rrs was a bit "quiet".

> Krypsie, by

Err no, I had been in RRS all along! I ignored your "war" with Mike Brayant but when you came over to rec.knives and started the same caper over there with another poster you didn't know, then I was narked!

> vendetta towards me because of not going along with his boyfriend that You have "boyfriends"! I just don't like to see you joining forces with a bunch of absolute nutters out to do little more than destroy any and all discussion. Steve Kramer had been taking care of himself for quite some time. He didn't need my help. You asked a question, I advised you on how to deal with it. You didn't take that advice and now look where we are at!

You have defined them as troublemakers, not I! You allied yourself with a bunch of people I call absolute pests.

I used to enjoy reading the posts on sct, rec.knives and many other newsgroups. Until I retired recently, I rarely had time to post. Now that I have the time to engage in discussions, I find that the trolls have destroyed the newsgroups. This pisses me off no end!

> analogies like you did and twist and turn things like you did to > refute your "bar room brawl" scenario. I know you side with them.

I don't side with anyone! I am old enough to form my own opinions from what I see before me. What I dislike intensely is people like you stirring up dissent and hate. The trolls are past masters at it and have destroyed all "relevant" discussion on sct and rec.knives. Both those forums were scenes of lively discussion but no longer. Soc.culture.thai has been reduced to are irrelevant crossposts from other soc.culture groups. Rec.knives had quite a lot of interesting (to me) metalurgical discussions. Now only the trolls venture there. Rec.radio.shortwave has a lot of interesting discussions for me, especially since I have been listening on the shortwave bands since I was a wee tacker! Given Nurks recent rantings, I can see all discussion here heading west as well.

> Everyone knows it also.

What everyone knows for sure is that YOU side with the trolls.

Can you just let it go and talk radio?? Please?

I'll tell you what will happen here! The trolls will take over and disrupt any and all discussion. Eventually the regulars will get pissed off and move to moderated web forums just like they did in sct and rec.knives.
How can I predict this, you might well ask! I HAVE SEEN IT HAPPEN

BEFORE! As an example, what used to be discussed in soc.culture.thai is now discussed in ThaiVisa, a web based moderated forum. The trolls have repeatedly tried to infiltrate that forum but the moderators are on the ball and frustrate their every attempt to skew and disrupt discussions. Oh yes, the trolls will promise that they will leave if their targets cease to post. History proves that a lie! Kramer ceased posting everywhere! Haven't seen his name anywhere for quite some time now. Have the trolls ceased posting in sct and rec.knives? Why no they haven't. In fact, in rec.knives, they make up 99% of all posts. What I find very strange is the trolls entreaties to Steve Kramer to return to posting. If they wanted him out, why beg him to return? Is it because it is rather dull when there are no targets to attack? You tell me the answer to this as you seem to have all the answers! For that matter, please tell me why I shouldn't post here? Because the trolls say I shouldn't? Why shouldn't Steve Kramer post in rec.knives or sct? Because the trolls say he shouldn't? Why shouldn't Mike Bryant post here? Because YOU say he shouldn't? Get real!! Who appointed YOU OR THE TROLLS as internet policemen? It's anarchy in usenet and I have every right to point out to all and sundry what you're up to "behind the scenes". Remember, you admitted to your clandestine operations right her, in public, in RRS. You cannot deny that YOU HAD A HIDDEN AGENDA! Well, it's no longer hidden. It's right out in the open. The problem is the trolls are also now out in the open here and seem in no hurry to leave. Well, when RRS slowly sinks into the sunset, Gregg, you will be able to give yourself a hearty slap on the back and take all the credit for it!

Are all trolls as racist and filthy as you are, Fred? I can smell your stink from the other side of the planet. Get out of here and leave us

You've been had....

"Hey dipshit. Gregg asked us to come here to deal with the likes of you and a couple others, not just the Krispy Critter. We came because he's a member in good standing in the Distinguished Toll Society and we stick together. You might not care what he does in other groups, but we do, and so do a heck of a lot of other people. He helped us tear down rec.knives, and with our help we're going to tear down this radio group too. THAT is what Gregg really wants, no mattter what he tell you. Its what he tells US in the back channels that counts. You and your group are toast! Bwhahahahahahahahahahahahahahahah!

This was posted to soc.culture.thai but not, I notice, to rec.radio.shortwave. Why is that?

For the record, I don't change my ID. That is the domain of the trolls.
My ID is the same as it has been since I began using the Krypsis persona.

It was the faking of user ID's in soc.culture.thai that caused many regulars there to leave. It looks like the same is happening here.

You're doing a rather splendid job of that yourself.

And now we get to the crux of the matter. You're just trying to lure your "targets" out of hiding so you can go on the attack. It's what you've been doing in sct and rec.knives so it was only a matter of time before you tried it here. If nothing else, it proves for once and for all the real reason you're in RRS. It's not me you're after, it's really Mike but you had to lure him back first. Whether I post here or not is irrelevant, isn't it?

Gregg will appreciate it as he was finding RRS a bit quiet. He wanted to liven RRS up a bit. Well, with you in full song, he'll have that in spades!

Just returned to me as undeliverable, unknown, was a letter, originally sent to one of the traditional postal addresses for R.
Victoria in Peru:

SR. Enrique Silvio Ramos
Radio Victoria
Jr. Reynel 320
Mirones Bajo
Lima 1, Peru

This matches the address in the 2009 Passport to WBR and also various sources on the Web.

Another address for RV I used earlier actually got it to its parent Pentocostal Church:

Iglesia Pentecostal Dios es Amor
Av. Arica 248
Brena
Lima 05
Peru

...but the person at the latter address, while kindly responding by email, did not appear to understand about verifying reception reports, merely thanking me for listening to R. Victoria and making me one of their "Friends."

Just so you know.

Oil companies report spilling roughly 1.3 million gallons of oil into US waterways in an average year. But that figure is largely reliant on self-reporting; the government trusts that operators are following the Distinguished Trolls are noticing that you have quite a similar posting style to that of the Chaing Mai Snapper aka Steve Kombat Kraven Kramer...Just wondering if you are a "fan" of his or are you a "professional snapper" too...?...:-)

He was a little fish in a big pond full of REAL trolls like us and we squashed him like a bug. We took away two of his newsgroups (only one with Greggs help) and he ran with his tail between his legs just like all the other little girls in rec.knives and soc.culture.thai. Now lets see how long it will take Krypto to take off running in fear from the Distinguished Troll Society and our new president Gregg.

African stations were thundering in here tonight (morning UTC, June 10) in droves - as long as you stayed above 9 Mhz. Outlets in Africa South, Gabon (Afrique Numero Une), Botswana, Cyprus (sort of Africa), Madagascar, Swaziland and even Egypt were all pretty potent on the various upper bands, more than I have seen in quite awhile. Guinea, OTOH, on 7125 was a weak carrier and nothing more, and the usual S. African powerhouses on 41m were kaput. 49 meters was pretty washed out, with only the North American outlets dong well (although Spain on 6055 was OK early evening well after the Spanish started at 0100; before that it was nonexistent during the normal English hour).

I guess summer is here!

So Prez Obama did not Say He Is In-Charge . . .
So Prez Obama did not Blame BP and Big Oil . . .
So Prez Obama did not Blame the former Bush

BB - That -a-s-s-u-m-e-s- that the Wall Outlet that the Plug Strip is plugged into is wired correctly;
and that the Plug Strip is not defective.

By un-plugging the Plug Strip from the Wall Outlet
you will know for a fact that there is absolutely "No"

Finding and Eliminating Noise Sources
{One-at-a-Time}
-note- Paper and Pencil required

1 - Place a portable {battery powered} AM/FM/SW Radio near the the Major Offender {your SCR Touch Lamp} when it is turned "No' to establish your Maximum Noise Reading.

2 - Turn 'Off' the SCR Touch Lamp and check the Radio for RFI Noise.

3 - Un-Plug the SCR Touch Lamp and check the Radio for RFI Noise.

4 - Now walk around the House with the Radio and Check Each Room and turn 'On' each Device in the Rooms for other RFI Noise Sources.
-note- Identify and Eliminate as many RFI Noise Sources as you can.

usually there is more than one rfi noise source and after a dozen things get fixed or eliminated usually the noise floor is quieter and the radio listening is much easier on the ears and mind ~ RHF

> by the by Krapto, learn how to properly hijack a user i.d,

If I knew how to hijack user ID's, I'd start by hiding my own IP address. That would have been the first thing I would do. As it is, this computer that I'm using won't allow me to set things up on it. That gets done by the IT boys at the office. If I want something changed, I have to get them to do it. Interesting, these days they don't even need to come out to the "Burbs" to do it. They administer my computer online from the office. I still remember when they set up this Krypsis account for me. They put me on the spot when they asked me to select a user name. Every one I put forward was in use. I opened the dictionary and my eyes fell upon "krypsis". As luck would have it, it was free to use. Had it ever since and it's been a few years now.

So, if I want to set up anything else, I'd have to put in an IT request form. I can just see it now. "Boys, I have some trolling to do and I need a few fake IDs". I don't work for ASIO so fake IDs, hidden IP addresses and the like are a no no!

Thanks for the heads up, Bruce! This is my last day of teaching before a two week vacation begins. News like your's makes me want to start wanting to listen to my radios. Try to share some specific logs, so we can compare propagation in the Ohio Valley to that on the West Coast.

A guy by the name of Todd (I don't remember his last name) at RTG Recovery Systems was on CNN a short while ago, he was talking about Bioremediation for cleaning up the oil gusher in the Gulf of Mexico.He said his company would charge one hundred million dollars, which isn't much compared to what BP (British POLLUTION) is spending.

I'll try, Mike - my main obstacle to writing logs on the PC is time, as it requires a transfer from my hardcopy logbook at the radio (where my PC is not). I'll try to put up the more interesting ones here.

Bruce,

I understand. My favorite way of DXing is with my wireless laptop running on battery power. Almost no RFI, I can type the logs into the laptop as soon as I hear them, and also be able to access the NASWA Combined Schedules Excel sheets. My biggest problem is finding a way to get my daughter out of the house, so I can keep her from vegging in front of the RFI-producing TV. I'm already working on her "agenda" of activities!

I've seen some car radio whip antennas that look like they have a wire wrapped around them. The wraps are not close but lazily spiral down the length of the antenna.

Does this help reception? Is the coil attached somehow to the car or just the antenna itself?

OK, since you asked, I did totally unplug the power strip after unplugging the offending lamp. The noise did go down due to some of the wall warts having switching supplies in them. It is the background noise of the neighborhood that is killing my DX'ing. I have a battery powered marine RDF to chase it down but as of today I can't find it under my huge pile of stuff in the garage. Whatever the noise source is, it does not follow a pattern like an SCR lamp would do. There is one big spike at the peaks of the 60Hz power cycle that is caught by my Hammarlund's noise limiter, but the rest is too random to be from SCR's.
All I have found out so far is that it is not coming from my house. Looking at the audio out with my scope the frequency pattern appears to be about 600 to 1200 Hz, but with a nasty amplitude. Since my scope is a 2245A Tektronix 100MHz analog and not a digital I can't take a one shot picture of the noise. I tried with my digital camera but after about ten attempts I gave up since the camera shutter speed was too long for one trace. Since my neighborhood is not anywhere near any industry and the noise is always there I should be able to track it, but again, I need to find that danged RDF.

My antenna on my minivan is like that.

I think the supporting whip is fiberglas/or some insulating material, and the wire is the actual electrical element; and in the interest of saving length and providing strength, they wrap the wire around the slightly shorter antenna pole. The wire is then connected to the lead of the antenna. It works fine, about as good as a metal whip of similar length. Antennas for cars are pretty uncomplicated critters... :-)

I think they are already on the government's hit list.
Sodium vapor lights? Turn on and wait for ignition???
LED's will probably be packed into a headlight assembly.
I have a 5 year old Cat Eye LED bicycle light that is fair to middling in the light output category. Newer LED's are brighter but require some serious heat sinking, something that is do'able in a car for mass production.
I think they would be more reliable too since I have had one filament break while the lights were on and I hit a big bump. The filaments are fairly robust when cold, but very weak when heated to make light.
All 4 now,

It adds inductance.

I think the Fanfare antenna has such a special spool that ? makes it better

Really? That's a pretty loose coil on those things, how much inductance can it have? And frankly, do the auto manufacturers actually think about things like this when car radio technology is already so implicitly satisfactory?

We are talking about the same thing, right? Just a loose wrap of wire on the nonconducting whip core vs. an actual compact coil?

I was wondering if I could improve my portable radio FM reception by wrapping it like the car antenna by just wrapping it with a wire.

I can't say I am surprised. Both of the two girls decided not to testify and the prosecution said "it just wouldn't be worth it" not verbatim - but something like that. Pretty powerful guy IMO to duck those charges.

What do you think BA? Do you think there was a chance a sweaty palm full of money was exchanged?

Where do you use your radio? If it's inside a building with a heavy metallic or masonry contruction, that may be the problem.

To your question - my guess is not. FM wavelengths are fairly short - about 1 meter in length - and your antenna is probably a pretty good length already if it is a half-meter or so (roughly 20 inches or a bit more). Wrapping a wire around it would not affect its resonant wavelength, and attaching a wire to it may or may not help, but too long an antenna is not terribly helpful as a rule either.

A better choice might be to either take the radio to a place where there is interfering metallic or masonry building in the way, or make an external antenna for it.

Hmm, I've never seen that. I have seen the radio whips that have wire around them but they are then encased in plastic, like some CB antennas are.

I can't believe I have never seen that before. Wouldn't there be a chance for eventually the wire to work itself free, is it glued or clipped to the whip?

If you really want to improve your car's FM performance that bad you have two alternatives IMO. Number one, simply replace your antenna with an antenna just for AM or number two - go up to your local Autozone or whatever you have in your area and buy one and add it on yourself. There really is nothing to it unless you may have a physical disability like a bad back or something like that. Add on a switcher and your good to go. All cars should be done that way from the factory IMO.

The Texas case against polygamous church sect prophet Warren Jeffs suddenly looms even larger than it did before after Arizona officials decided to dismiss their charges Wednesday, according to a recent article in the Wichita Falls Times and Record News newspaper.

Jeffs has been awaiting trial in a Mohave County, Arizona jail since February 2008 for alleged crimes which occurred in that jurisdiction.

Jeffs, as the former leader of the Fundamentalist Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints(FLDS) is obviously the "big fish" among all the defendants charged in the polygamous sect trials.

The Texas investigations were launched by Wichita Falls native Gregory Abbott, who is currently the Attorney General for the State of Texas.

Abbott's AG personnel along with many Department of Public Safety troopers, including several from the Wichita Falls office, raided the FLDS compound at the YFZ Ranch, near San Angelo, Texas.

With the dismissal of the Arizona charges, prosecution of the group's leader will be dependent on the Texas Attorney General's office and other Texas prosecutors.

Two previous FLDS sect members were convicted by Texas juries and sentenced to heavy prison time for their role in the activities behind the walls of secrecy which surrounded the mysterious YFZ Ranch. Merrill Leroy Jessop was recently convicted and sentenced to 75 years in the Texas penitentiary by a jury near San Angelo, Texas, for crimes committed at the YFZ Ranch, also as a result of the work by Gregory Abbott's office.

The trial of yet another FLDS cult member Abram Harker Jeffs, 39, commenced Wednesday morning with jury selection in Schleicher County, Texas. Abram Harker Jeffs is charged with sexual assault of a child, a first degree felony which is punishable by five to 99 years orlife in prison and up to a $10,000 fine.

He was arrested in the raid on the compound near San Angelo, which was orchestrated by Texas Attorney General Gregory Abbott.

Many Child Protective Services workers from Wichita Falls, Texas, trekked westward to the YFZ compound at the time of the raid and took custody of children suspected of being abused.

Wichita Falls attorney Dick Sutherland generously donated his time to represent one of the children who was in the compound at the time of the dramatic raid which dominated national headlines.

Picture a thin pole (the whip) with a very gently coiled wrap of wire, a turn every inch or so, from top to bottom. Then, the entire thing is covered with a wrap of something like shrink-wrap to hold it altogether. Unless the antenna is traumatized, the wire is pretty much set for life.

Yeah OK, you didn't mention that is was encased, I thought it was flowing freely in the wind, my post above mentioned what you just said. ;-)

Right now it is an HQ-129-X. I had an HQ-180 but did a stupid and sold it. Somehow I would rather have that radio than the $350 I got for it.

Bruce,

BA is BrendaAnn, a long-time group member. She's a pretty straight shooter and I believe she had some encounters with the LDS earlier in her life.

Mark this day on your calendar. I think Gregg and I agree that AZ dismissal of charges against Jeffs seems fishy. But he still has to deal with charges of child sexual abuse in TX. The FLDS can be incredibly intimidating against any young women choosing to testify against Jeffs.

Time to get back to the beginning of my DX vacation!

Chrysler started doing this a number of years ago on their fixed length car antennae. Ford and GM do it, now also.

It appears as though there's a wire, under the black polymer coating, wound around the metal post end to end. If you look very closely, however, you see that the 'wire' ends just before the small ball at the top and just before the hex fitting at the bottom. It appears to be nothing more than a superficial contrivance.

In fact, it's there to break up the airflow around the antenna at speed. Fixed length antenna made of the usual single piece steel rod tends, under some conditions at speed to vibrate wildly both loosening in it's fitting, and making unnecessary noises in the cab. They also have an unfortunate tendency to whistle.

Chrysler started with a simple sheath with different aerodynamic properties, made of plastic, slipped over the rod to eliminate these properties. They made quite an issue of them in TV and billboard ads in the 90's.

Ford suppliers, on the other hand, made the rod with this same spiral twist on it's stainless steel antennae. Expensive, but retaining the brightwork appearance of their traditional fixed length antennae. And if you can find one, you'll see that the spiral is actually manufactured into the surface of the rod, with a sharp cut on one side of the spiral and a gentle slope blending into the rod on the other. But this was expensive, and Ford, too, have gone with the black polymer coating with what appears to be a wire embedded.

Since these antennae are all provided by an handful of suppliers, all the car manufacturers using and fender mounted fixed length antenna have gone with the black polymer coated spring steel rod, with what appears to be a wire embedded.

This is for aerodynamics. Not for any electrical property.

My antenna on my minivan is like that.

I think the supporting whip is fiberglas/or some insulating material, and the wire is the actual electrical element; and in the interest of saving length and providing strength, they wrap the wire around the slightly shorter antenna pole. The wire is then connected to the lead of the antenna. It works fine, about as good as a metal whip of similar length. Antennas for cars are pretty uncomplicated
critters... :-)

Car antennas my be simple critters, but the coax used is special.

Here's a few logs from SE Michigan:
14234kHz 2358UT Guayaquil, Ecuador
14188kHz 0148UT San Salvador, El Salvador
14250kHz 2343UT Kaunas, Lithuania
14190kHz 0018UT Stabroek, Belgium
7131kHz 0111UT Turks & Caicos Islands
14200kHz 0116UT Aruba

These are amateur contacts but will say that conditions are improving on higher frequencies - not so much midday but evenings are great for N-S propagation and to Europe, Russia, Mideast too (up to 15MHz). Did hear WWV fairly strong on 20 MHz this afternoon. Heard an aero mobile (Airbus 300) over the Gulf of Mexico on 14226 at 0209UT just a few minutes ago.

Your time would probably be better spent trying to obtain that PhD that you'd previously lied about having.

Looks to me like what you're seeing is a helical whip. They were used most often on 27 Mhz CB radios. They often had a base loading coil at the lower end. This would look like a solid piece of cylindrical pipe at the base of the antenna.
The spiral of wire is the "active" element of the antenna. The whip itself is usually made of fibreglass much akin to that which a fishing rod is made from and has a support function. The assembly allows a degree of flexibility without damage to the whip, the coil of wire, or the mounting point, a feature necessary in mobile applications.
By spiralling the active element, you simulate the desired length of the active element. In the 11 meter CB band, a quarter wave is about 9 feet. Therefore, a 9 foot quarter wave aerial would be resonant in the 11 meter band thus having the best transmission and reception ability. A 9 foot aerial isn't practical in most automotive applications as they are easily damaged or may damage other objects. The compromise then is to helical wind the element. In most 11 meter applications, the helical winding isn't sufficient so some extra matching is required. On some helical whips, this takes the form of the windings being wound more finely near the tip of the aerial (top loading). In other applications, the resonance is achieved by a "loading coil" attached to the base of the whip (bottom loading). It is said that top loading provides the best results but I always preferred base loading coils for my applications.
I came across the last relic of my CB era the other day when I was cleaning out my garage. It is an old magnetic base whip. It wasn't one of the helical wound whips. Instead, it had a base loading coil and the whip itself was about 5 feet of spring steel. It proved very useful in the 70s when I was involved in desert rallying. Just attach it to any vehicle, no drilling or mounting brackets required, and it used the entire vehicle roof area as a "ground plane". Being magnetic, it was somewhat less useful on some of the early Toyota Landcruisers with the fibreglass rooves.

So, in summary, yes, it really does help reception as it provides a better impedance match between vehicle and radio.

The FM band is 88 - 108 MHz. The wavelength for the centre of that band (100MHz)is 9.8357 feet. A quarter of that is 2.458925 feet. Therefore, a quarter wave whip needs to only be about 30 inches long to be resonant in the FM band, a not unreasonable length for portable applications. I seem to recall that most aerials on portable radios are approximately that length when extended. You would only gain then if you desired to have a shorter aerial than 30 inches yet still retain optimum reception ability. I might add that, short of a lot of trial and error, you would need to delve into aerial theory in order to even retain the reception performance you currently experience.

Our PX has some fancy Samsung LED floods in the parking lot. 75% cheaper to run than the metal halide lamps they replace, and even a bit more light.

Hold on, young fella. That depends where in the world you are. Japan uses 76ï¿½90 MHz, and the OIRT band in Eastern Europe is 65.8ï¿½74 MHz. It's only the rest of the world that uses 88-108 MHz!

See, already broke his promise...lol. I guess in his twisted psyche, if it's a "suck up" post it doesn't count. Now watch him try his ole'

Gee, I was just answering Bruce's question. No insults, no drama.
Obviously, I misunderstood the depth of your resentment. I'm truly sorry that you are so offended by me that I can't even agree with you in a post. So, is part of the deal that I can't even post in a thread where you make a comment?

Please get a grp and stop this nonsense.

No electrical purpose whatsoever. It keeps the whip from whistling in OK, then use the calculator on this website to readjust your figures if you live or intend to live in those regions.

http://www.1728.com/freqwave.htm

88 - 108 is the most common. You will also note that my example of 100MHz is not exactly the centre of that spectrum but, for the purposes of the exercise, close enough.

So long as they're aimed downward and don't illuminate the night sky with wasted energy, I am all for them! ;-)

Metal Halide lamps, especially unshielded, are the pits. Brilliant, sky-obscuring, and hard to overcome with normal amateur filter equipment.

Liberty Net: June 5, 2010

http://3950.net/2010/06/liberty-net-june-5-2010/

by Kevin Strom, WB4AIO

THIS WEEKï¿½S Liberty Net was 99 per cent. clear of intentional interference, as the jammers folded up their tents in the face of innovative techniques for getting Net communications through.

The Liberty Net, on the air since 1974 and led by Net Control Station W1WCR, is one of amateur radioï¿½s most venerable and historic nets ï¿½ and it is surely the most intellectual and exciting.

Here are just a few of the highlights of this weekï¿½s discussions:

ï¿½ The Bilderberger group ï¿½ an organization for the management class of the oligarchy ï¿½ met from June 4th through 7th in Spain, with the main agenda being how the current economic crisis can be used to impose ï¿½true world economic governance.ï¿½ (6 minutes)

ï¿½ America is dying ï¿½ self destructing, actually ï¿½ and bringing the rest of the world down with it. (8 minutes)

ï¿½ The current economic oligarchs had their first major coup in 1907 when J.P. Morgan published a rumor that an unnamed large bank was about to fail. Depositors, worried that it might be their bank, began to withdraw their funds in huge amounts, leading to a ï¿½panicï¿½ that 1) almost collapsed the fractional reserve banking system, and 2) created a manufactured demand for a central bank ï¿½ that eventually resulted in the creation of the Federal Reserve System, which is what the bankers were after all along. (9 minutes)

ï¿½ The Israeli spin ï¿½ so eagerly repeated by Fox News ï¿½ about their murder of innocent peace activists on the Gaza humanitarian flotilla signals the beginning of a new age of propaganda. (12 minutes)

ï¿½ Why are no reporters allowed at the virtually secret meeting of 200 Obama administration officials in China currently taking place? And why are the media not up in arms, demanding the details and telling us about the meeting? (14 minutes)

ï¿½ The scary thing about Obama is not Obama himself, but the fact that the electorate consists of so many people who are so easily fooled. (30 minutes)

ï¿½ Consolidating electoral districts and allowing each to elect several representatives would break the monopoly of the two-party system and give minority political opinions some representation: Instead of always having to choose between two bland smiling liars from the oligarchï¿½s controlled parties, your district might, for example, send a Republican, a Democrat, a Libertarian, a Progressive, and two independent populists to Washington. (32 minutes)

ï¿½ In Garden City, Kansas (!) a ï¿½coalition of Muslim leadersï¿½ has told the city council that they want a segregated, fenced section of the public cemetery set aside for Muslims only. (41 minutes)

ï¿½ Sometimes a foreignerï¿½s perspective allows us to see our country in a clearer light. A Czech newspaper recently opined that America ï¿½can survive a Barack Obama, who is, after all, merely a fool. It is less likely to survive a multitude of fools such as those who made him their president.ï¿½ (48 minutes)

And those arenï¿½t the only subjects ï¿½ thereï¿½s in-depth discussion of the economy, the illegal wars now taking place and planned for the future in the Middle East, the corruption and infiltration of the conservative movement, the latest ï¿½health care reformï¿½ debacle and much, much more.

Thanks to N2SAGï¿½s live feed and N2IRJ and his low-noise receiving and recording setup, those of us who canï¿½t listen on Saturday nights at 10PM Eastern can listen anytime ï¿½ or even download the file for listening on your personal mp3 player. Just click on the arrow to activate the streaming player, and then click anywhere on the progress bar to jump to any part of the recording. You can also right-click on the ï¿½downloadï¿½ link (which appears when you start the player) to save the latest Liberty Net to your hard drive.

LED traffic lights and LED sidewalk lights don't put out any heat to melt the ice and snow in the Wintertime.There were problems with that last Winter, especially with traffic lights.Sooooo, if they have to wind up rigging up some way to keep the ice and snow from obscuring those LED lights, where is the energy savings? Last Winter, in some parts of America, they had trucks going around and spraying deicing fluid/whatever kind of fluid on some LED traffic lights.Not much savings (Money) there either.

It's not a bad thought. There are a number of antennae that are made with a helical coil around a form. RF System's MTA is made this way.

But we're talking many more turns, around a broader form, and a tighter gathering of turns along the length to be practical as an antenna.

Indeed, something where the coil would become an actual inductor and serve to provide additional electrical length where physical length is restricted. Along with HF broadband antennas, mobile CB and ham loaded antennas are typical examples of what you are talking about, I assume - can't see much reason for this with an FM antenna, the lambda being so short.

SB PROP ARL ARLP023
ARLP023 Propagation de K7RA

With calmer solar activity, geomagnetic conditions were stable this week. Average daily sunspot numbers were down 7.6 points to 17.7, and average daily solar flux dropped two points to 71. Average planetary A index declined 6.4 points to 7.9, and mid-latitude A index dropped 2.7 points to 6.4.

Four new sunspot groups emerged this week. 1077 made a brief appearance on June 5, and 1078 on June 8-10. The area of 1078 grew rapidly, from 80 millionths of a solar hemisphere to 180 on June 9 and 200 on June 10. On June 9 sunspot group 1079 appeared, at 10 millionths of a solar hemisphere, and on June 10 sunspot group 1080 emerged, also at 10 millionths of a solar hemisphere. Old sunspot group 1072, last seen on May 28, might return over June 11-13.

All current sunspot groups are in the far southwest of the solar disc, and should disappear soon as they move across the horizon.

Just ten more days until the Summer Solstice, on June 21 at 1128z, after which the days become shorter. ARRL Field Day is on the sixth and seventh day of Summer, June 26 and 27.

The latest NOAA/USAF forecast has the planetary A index at 5 on June 11-15, 10 on June 16-17, back for 5 on June 18-24, 12 on June 25, and 15 on June 26-27 (Field Day). Two weeks from now is a bit far off for an accurate forecast, but an A index of 15 would mean somewhat unsettled conditions. Solar flux predictions are 72 on June 11-12, 70 on June 13-17, 72 on June 18, 75 on June 19-26, and 72 on June 27 through July 1.

Geophysical Institute Prague predicts quiet conditions on June 11-14, unsettled June 15, unsettled to active June 16, and unsettled June 17.

Of course, we want sunspot numbers and solar flux high, and A index low for good HF propagation.

Vic Morris, AH6WX lives in the northwest area of the island of Hawaii, in Waikoloa. He has noticed the low solar flux values of late.

He writes, "Does anyone have an explanation for the marked decrease in solar flux since February? At one point we peaked at 94, seemingly indicating the long overdue increase expected for Cycle 24? But the June 6 reading of 68 is I believe the lowest value of 2010 to date."

Yes Vic, the values are lower, and they don't seem to track very well with sunspot numbers. Normally when sunspot numbers increase, so does solar flux, a measurement of 2.8 GHz energy received from the Sun. But a glance at the web site http://www.solen.info/solar shows the generally declining flux.

Vic is correct about higher solar flux earlier this year. It was 90 or above on January 11-14 and again February 7-13, and March 12-13. It was below 70 on May 13, and May 16-20, and again June 6-7. It was exactly 68.0 for the noon reading on June 6, and that was the lowest solar flux recorded this year, although the morning reading that day (morning and afternoon readings don't count for the official flux value, which is taken at local noon) was just 67.7.

I don't know why this is happening, although there is some seasonal variation. Due to the variation in distance from the Sun, the observed flux values are lower at this time of the year. On June 6 when solar flux was only 68, the adjusted value (to compensate for the variation in distance) was 70. Of course we care about the actual measured value, since that is what affects the ionosphere, but the adjusted value is a more accurate reading of actual activity from the Sun.

If we look back at the readings earlier this year, we see the opposite effect from adjusted values. On January 12-13 the observed solar flux was 93.3 and 90.5, but the adjusted values were 90.2 and 87.5. Not sure why adjusted values would ever be lower, but I'll check on that.

Vic continues, "I can see the effects of the low solar flux on over-the-pole 20 meter propagation to Europe here in the evening. There were quite a few good openings to Europe earlier in the spring when flux values were well into the 80s. These have mostly disappeared the past 2-3 weeks. Note I do not have a beam or tower at this point, just a vertical antenna. I've managed about 150 DXCC countries here over about 6 years by doing a lot of listening."

Brian Webb, KD6NRP sent an impressive list of countries worked in the past few years via PSK31, a very powerful digital mode that works well with weak signals. He runs under 100 watts and uses low antennas (12 feet high, although he didn't say what kind) from his 50x50 foot back yard.

Pat Rose, W5OZI in Junction, Texas (EM00cl) reports that on June 3 at 2238z he worked JE1BMJ on 6 meters, a distance of 10,315 km. Both signal reports were 579, but very soon it was over.

The day prior, Rich Molinski, WB2KWF in Smithfield, Virginia observed some great 2 meter propagation. He is in FM16, and worked EM25 (Eastern Oklahoma) on 2 meters at 2230z. He also worked K0FX (Colorado) and W0FY (Missouri). He said also that 6 meters was great on June 4.

Monthly propagation charts between four USA regions and twelve overseas locations are at http://arrl.org/propagation.

Instructions for starting or ending email distribution of ARRL bulletins are at http://arrl.org/bulletins.

Sunspot numbers for June 3 through 9 were 17, 18, 25, 12, 12, 12, and 28 with a mean of 17.7. 10.7 cm flux was 74.6, 71.9, 70.3, 68, 68.5, 71.9 and 71.5 with a mean of 71. Estimated planetary A indices were 13, 16, 6, 7, 6, 3 and 4 with a mean of 7.9. Estimated mid-latitude A indices were 13, 11, 6, 5, 4, 3 and 3 with a mean of 6.4.

I cannot speak to traffic lights, because they are necessarily aimed sideways into weather from some direction - but for general illumination, all you need is a housing that keeps the snow and ice off them. Not that hard to construct, and would serve the double purpose of eliminating light trespass and light pollution.

Thanks for this, Bob. We have filters that can filter out more than one wavelength, and we can stack filters up to a point - but none that will cut all five of the spikes, and too many stacked means you also lose precious desirable light. We also have broader band filters designed to cut general LP that would probably address all five, but these filters are also weaker than the stronger line filters. You are right about LPS, it's a snap to filter - which is why it's been encouraged for cities near major observatories, such as Lick, Mt. Wilson (now pretty much useless) and Palomar.

Of course, just as in radio an RF quiet area is best, so in astronomy nothing beats a good rural or wilderness dark sky.

Bruce, you haven't had to deal with him like I have. That is how he starts....lol. You haven't had him attacking just about everything you post or say - be it to someone else or that is none of his business.
You got a little perturbed with his "Duh" comment to you. That's OK though. I asked him to leave me alone / not mention me etc. etc. etc.
- like I said - I couldn't be any plainer. Anyone else would have understood it except for maybe three others in here (not including you into the fray however).

I just now saw Alvin Woods, Woods Equipment, on 5:00 PM WJTV channel 12 tv news, he was talking about expensive lawn mowers.Some of those expensive lawn mowers cost from $12,000 up to $18,000.He said he has survelliance on his store and outside storage area.He records the serial numbers on every piece of equipment.Thieves are going around stealing expensive lawn mowers and other equipment and starting their own business, some of those thieves are selling those expensive lawn mowers to unsuspecting customers.Those unsuspecting customers can go to jail too.

I own two old lawn mowers.One of them I bought for $100.00 at Wal Mart, the other one, I bought for $69.95 at a pawn shop.I keep them chain locked to one of the axels on my old trailer in my back yard.If thieves steal my old lawn mowers they aren't getting much.If I see anybody trying to steal my old lawn mowers, I can Drill em Full of Lead! Bruce, you know I've always tried to be cool with you. Can you please butt out of this? Please?:-) I asked you before when it came to Krypsis to NOT RESPOND to him - that that is what he wanted, remember? You said you would, but you didn't. This again, has nothing to do with you, and I mean that in the nicest way. It just eggs it on even more. 10-4? :-)

Hey Cuhu,

I'm watching that, too! But I think Pawn Stars and American Pickers are better shows!

A History Channel fan,

I can't stand Pawn Stars, those fat greasy looking pigs on there!

I don't like those two greedy ''pickers'' on American Pickers either!

Lets me see if Tom & Jerry are on the Cartoon channel.

Someone thought it was a joke that you can add a modification to increase the number of memories in some receivers.... this has been done successfully by a number of people, but you have to be at least an amateur electrician to do it:

Great list - I have not heard India well in years out here, and I am not sure if I have ever heard Serbia. 00z is way too early for decent reception here in summer on any freq below 11 MHz, so all those dandy transmissions at that time on 31, 41 and 49 fizzle out. Spain on 6055 is a nonstarter until well after it starts its Spanish segment.

Doggy tooked me out in the yard just now.Good to hear those frogs (and katydids and see those lightning bugs out there) doing their thing.It's been years and years since I heard any frogs around here.I reckon those damn cats kept those frogs killed off.Damn the cats!!! I have a small wire cage animal trap I bought at Goodwill.If I see any more cats, I am going to trap their asses and take them to the Animal Rescue place over there near the Lowe's store.

Bruce,

Tonight reminded me of the days when I used to live out in Utah.
The higher frequencies are starting to come through really well.
RNZI was blasting in at local strength on 13730, R Australia was very strong on 15515 and //'s 15240 and 13690 were reasonable.
V of Russia in English on 15425 from Petro-Kam was decent.
DW-Sri Lanka in Russian on 15450 was good. I even caught CRI-Kashi signing on in Russian at 0400 on 15665. I gave up logging and was glued to the display of my R75. A great start to my vacation!

BTW, I thought you had great details in your logs that were in this week's DXLD by Hauser. You've got me thinking about getting back into QSL collecting.

RHF,

Quickly, I am not opposed to polygamy, RHF. I am opposed to the treatment that many women and underaged girls suffer through when living in secluded FLDS communities. Most members of the LDS Church that I knew while in Utah shared that perspective. The LDS Church abandoned polygamy in 1890 and doesn't respect the violent antics of the FLDS.

I am glad to see you back, but I am really going to try to stick to radio-related posts. Waddya been listening to lately, Roy?

Jeffs?

There's a cluster of those deviants in British Columbia. The young males are being driven away so the old perverts get to marry the young girls. The scum should be castrated.

The old men get the females to collect monthly welfare money and turn it over to them. The politicians are doing NOTHING.

This is from three years ago:

It seem obvious to all that Gregg can NOT learn. He has repeteded this same line over and over, playing the 'I'm a victim, pity me' role while at the very same time attacking different people left and right. Can you say 'hypocrite?'

He has opened a can of worms by inviting his troll friends into this newsgroup and it will never be the same. I've been posting for a lot of years, then stopped posting but continued reading for many more years, and now, because of this Gregg character, I fear the newsgroup is headed for oblivion. Thanks a lot, Gregg. From all of us.

Auto makers went from Telescoping Whip Antennas to Solid One-Piece Stainless Steel Antennas because of lower Cost and greater Durability.

The Fiberglass Rod with Wrapped Wire Whip Antennas were done for the same reason : lower Cost and greater Durability; over the life of the Car/Truck.

Most likely the Wire Wrap is done as a function of improving the Mechanical 'properties' of the Whip and not for any Electrical 'properties' associated with the performance of the Antenna.

The Core of the new Auto Whip Antennas is Fiberglass {non-metal} and thus the Wrapped Antenna Wire is a Free Element in Space.

Wrapping a Wire around your Metal Whip Antenna effectively couples the Wire to the Whip and makes it part of the Whip Antenna Element.
-if- the Wire Wrap only extends the length of the Whip basically you gain nothing.
however -if- the Wire Wrap extends the length of the Whip and the un-wrapped Wire then extends beyond the Whip you have effectively Extended the Whip Antenna.

As Wilson is primarily a solar observatory these days, I doubt the gas

Wilson at 1,790', and I can see the Milky Way from my back yard.

Lunatics are not entitled to a jury of their peers as lunatics. They are allowed a jury of Northern Arizonans or Southern Utahans, depending on the venue.

Uh, Guys,
The amount of electricity taken by the headlamps is totally insignificant compared to the power to move the car, so I don't think it is a priority with any car maker. They have almost all gone to LED tail lights and turn signals since they don't burn out nearly as often, it at all, and they can claim to be going high tech. Headlamps I have seen a lot of halogen but when a car is coming at me it is damn near blinding even on low beam.
There's up and then there's downs to any technology.
Lets hope the LED's when they finally make it to headlights can have a better focused beam.

Do you think he's related to Gregg? Or is he related to you? I think you might be related to Gregg. If so, are you applying for membership in the Distinguished Troll Society? We can always use a few good trolls, and there are none better than our little buddy Gregg. If you are related, come on out and play with us. Were tearing down Usenet and you can help.

I have an LED lit sidewalk and traffic light that works off of one solar panel. Very few people cross the road at that point so a days worth of sunlight will keep it going through the stormy days. What is kind of hard getting used to is that the little bump on the crosswalk across the street also light up at night. It's different, but it does work.

You are one nasty-assed son of gun aren't you, Ace? LOL! I like that in a person. Would you like to join our DTS group? Gregg is already a member. He joined up in the knife newsgroup back when it was still functioning and helped us grind it into the dust. Now he's called us here to help him do the same thing to the radio group. We could sure use a real nasty piece of work like you to call people names. We've got a tea lady who really needs looking after, and although Gregg does pretty well he could use some local help. How about it?

Yes, that's right. The Distinguished Troll Society wants some new blood and were asking for volunteers to step up and be counted.

Right now our brother Gregg is trying hard to make people believe that he is being victimized by Krypto, brutally bullied by Kravem, and assaulted by everyone around him. Actually, we know that Gregg is a masterful Troll who slashed his way through the knife newsgroup, first pretending to be interested in knifes, then stabbing people in the back by publicly announcing his membership in the DTS, and playing a vital role in the destruction of that newsgroup. New he needs YOUR help to do the same thing here in the radio group.

He's in his first stage now. He's sucking up to the regular members. He's crying about being victimized and bullied, but people aren't as eager to believe him here. He needs YOUR help! Help Gregg become the Troll he sincerely wants to be. Help him attain the presidency of the Distinguished Troll Society that he so desires. The Trolls want YOU!! The remainder of the Abrahamic community takes offense at their exclusion.

Should they hire Pat Robertson or Jerry Falwell as a public relations director?

Perhaps Mister Robertson could also be put to good use in those polygamist Mormon sects. One of the Elder perverts in British Columbia has over a hundred and twenty offspring. That is 120.

The 'wives' usually live in trailer compounds that wouldn't be a common sight even the the most inbred of Mississippi communities.

The entire enclave of twisted SOBs survives on the monthly welfare payments that the women get and turn over to their 'husband'. They apply under their Maiden names.

That particular Pastoral Prick gets over 20 thousand dollars of the public's money a MONTH because of this fraud.

Polygamy is against the law in Canada, yet the politicians are doing nothing about it. Is it possible that the Politicians are worshiping in the same sector of Hades?

That's why it's primarily a solar observatory - the LP from LA has rendered it useless for dark sky astro. 18 miles can make a big difference...but it takes a REALLY dark sky for the Milky Way to throw shadows...

Thanks - don't always get the decent reception though, the local QRM is atrocious. QSLs are fun, though...been getting a passel of them lately. Mostly easy; better ones maybe this coming winter.

OK, this deviates somewhat from the topic, but I've always wondered about window antennas. My Mitsubishi Galant has an antenna embedded in the rear window. It's not one of those dipoles that you used to (or still?) see embedded in the front windshield of GM cars. Rather, it has a peculiar folded design that's hard to describe. It works very well. I get exceptional reception, especially on AM. In fact, one of the reasons I chose the Galant is because it had the best AM reception of all the cars I test drove. What's the theory on these window antennas? Do they have a pre-amp ahead of the radio?

I once made a helically compressed 80m halfwave dipole by winding each leg of around 66' of PVC insulated wire on 33' of the type plastic line used for rotary clothlines/airers (making sure, of course, that the inner core was nylon, and not steel).

I marked the line every 6", and the wire every 1'. After a few false starts, I soon got the knack of getting the spacing of the turns correct. I suppose that diameter of the line was around 1/8", and I needed to space the turns at around 3/8".

Obviously, I had dipole consisting of 132' of wire, but I have no idea whether the turns were close enough to make a significant increase in the inductance per unit length, thereby loading the antenna, and making it electrically longer than a halfwave.

I only used the antenna once, at a scout 'Jamboree on the Air' event. I put it up as an inverted V, with the centre at about 30', and the ends at 20'. I used 300 ohm feeder. It was very sharply tuned (using a balanced Z-match tuner). Daytime conditions on 80m were not very good, but the antenna seemed particularly poor. I think I only managed a couple of contacts, with only S5 reports where I would have expected s9+.

40m was a bit better but, at the end of the day, just before we packed up, things seemed distinctly lively on 20m. I got a 59 from 350 miles away and, surprisingly, another from 40 miles (extremely short skip conditions, it appeared, which may have explained the poor conditions on 80m).

I haven't bothered to try the antenna again. I have no idea if it was working OK on 80m, and the poor performance was simply poor conditions.
I've still got it somewhere, so maybe one day, I'll get around to it.

The mere threat of doing so could actually get AZ in a buttload of trouble with the feds. Along with being illegal (extortion), it's also a threat to national security and an act of terrorism under the Patriot Act. But then, AZ doesn't seem to care what anyone thinks.

Threat to national security? Come on. Arizona is merely trying to enhance national security.

Something that Boy Barry and his cadre of Liberal/Democrat/Marxist/Socialists seem to care little about.

The old window antennas weren't dipoles at all. Both "elements" were connected to the center of the lead-in. The only reason for the dipole appearance was symmetry, which helped to make them less of a distraction to the driver.

Actually RHF, I was just going by the two different girls that escaped under the cloak of darkness along with the three other boys that was on Dr. Phil some years back. I think they call boys that flee "The Lost Boys" err something like that.

The girls sure didn't seem to be lying. One of the former "boys" took the crew into one of the many compounds and show the viewers (being me) the hidden rooms behind the walls with nothing in it except a bed on the floor to "seal the deal" so too speak.

From what I have read, he/his group is an extreme branch of the LDS. Brenda Ann pointed that out long ago. I'm sure if the evidence isn't there and no one is going to testify or recants, he will walk. I'm sure LDS members don't do what Jeffs was accused of.

?? They've been using LEDS forever. What I'd do in the frozen North, is use LEDS for Red and Yellow, and incandescent for Green. A standard 4 sided fixture would almost continuously produce 240 Watts of heat, enough to keep ice from forming, no?

To Solder or Not Solder the Ends of Stranded Antenna Wire ?

I was taught many years ago that it was always a good Idea to Solder the Ends [1/2"~1" of my Stranded Antenna Wire to Electrically Bond them on both Ends in case any individual strands should break.

+ Plus on the Feed-End the Soldered Stranded Wire made for a better Mechanical Connection to the Hardware.

* Also the claim is that the Solder & Iron/Steel/SS
'connection' was less likely to Corrode then Copper & Iron/Steel/SS.

? Is Soldering the Wire Ends common practice ?

=Alternatively= I have been told to only Solder the Stranded Antenna Wire at the Feed-End; and then Tie-a-Knot in the Far-End about an Inch or two from the End {Overhand Knot or Loop Knot}
-and-then-to- Separate-out the individual wires into a Porcupine {half-ball} so that the Static Electricity could bleed-off and reduce some of the the static
'noise' on the Antenna Wire.

? Does splaying the Far-End Antenna Wires really help to Bleed-off the Static build-up on the Wire ?

One other item: Just how did Boy Barry's Aunt obtain 'asylum' under our nations immigration laws?

What 'threat' was she under in Kenya?

If she was under some 'threat', then why were Boy Barry's other relatives not airlifted out of Kenya?

Why were Boy Barry's Aunt's immigration papers, and the reason for her 'asylum' sealed?

The embedded Wire Windshield Antennas used two very thin parallel wires and the two created a larger signal capture area plus the two provided some redundancy if one should break.

The newer Printed-On Window Wire Antennas {Circuit Trace (Wire) on Glass} have a great sectional width {less likely to break} and go around and/or across the Window.
At least that is how the one we have in the rear side window of the Ford Windstar Van is laid-out it come in {starts} from a single contact point and goes almost all the way around the rear-side Window with a 1/2" gap between the far-ends;
plus there is an extra leg starting in one corner of the Window that goes across the Window at a Diagonal Angle; and yet another extra leg starting at the opposite corner of the Window that goes across the Window at a Horizontal Angle.

* Sort of a bent & folded Window Windom Antenni

FWIW the Ford Windstar Van's Rear-Side Window
Antenna seams to work very well down in the SF Bay Area but poorly up here in the mountains :
While the Solid Metal Whips and the Wire Wrapped Whip Antennas seam to do as well in the SFBA and much better up here in the Sierras. This may be due to the fact that the Whips actually project out away from the Body {counterpoise} of the Car and are physically by-design a better EMF "Probe" then the Foil-on-a-Window Antennas.

and that's how i hear it on the radio ~ RHF

A few ounces (or grams) of wire won't make much of a difference. There was some talk a few years back of running one power wire around the car and having each light, widget, or doohickey have it's own IP address in the car and have it all controlled by a master computer. Think of what could happen if your car was controlled by a single chip computer and it got a virus or just a bad chunk of code. Thankfully that has not happened, yet.

Frankly, there's no particular problem I have with polygamy among consenting adults, although it is not my cup o'tea. With underage girls - a whole 'nother story.

As far as the Islamic thing goes - same deal. Consenting adults can do what they wish. Women and girls forced to go along with the male-dominated polygamist ideology - Nope. No support here.

That from a progressive. I suspect most progressives will feel the same way. You guys can postulate all you like, but that's how it shakes out.

Not hard to find plenty of instances of evil in any Church from any

Well, that's funny - up here at Lick, the 120" still does amazing science. In fact, amateurs with scopes far smaller contribute immense knowledge every year. I think the interviewee was suffering from Tuned in Radio Cairo today on 11590kHz to the 2300 UTC EE broadcast.

Strong carrier S9+5dB min. Only the music portions of the broadcast were audible. Voice audio varied betwwen whisper and zero. Finally a female voice was audible at about 28 minutes past the hour but that only lasted abour 10 minutes. The only thing I can figure is that they have no meters in the studio.

Trevor Loudon posts on his New Zeal blog about a special report delivered at the recent 29th National Convention of the Communist Party USA.

http://newzeal.blogspot.com/2010/06/communists-plan-obamademocrat-comeback.html

The following excerpts were penned by Joelle Fishman, whose role in the Communist Party's Political Action Commission gives her responsibility for organizing Party support for "progressive" Democratic Party candidates at the state, congressional, senate and presidential level. She is also, incidentally, the daughter-in-law of late Soviet spy, Victor Perlo.

I spent 33 years at General Motors Product Service Engineering and I can tell you that on General Motors vehicles the wire wrapping on the antenna is there to break up the air stream around the mast so it doesn't whistle in the wind stream.

Use a thimble and clamps to secure the wire mechanically to an insulator. Then solder your 9:1 balun hot primary positive lead to the antenna wire. You'll need still air, or a 100 Watt iron.

I want to rig up two poison ivy fences.One along side one side of my back yard and the other one along side the other side of my back yard.What it is, that woman who lives next door to me has done put up a big above ground swimming pool and I don't want those other people who live next door, the other side of my house, to be taking short cuts across my back yard.
Yeah, in fact of the business, some thorny briars will be good to include in the poison ivy fences too.

I suppose so, but I never mix the two in the first place. I use ceramic insulators and there is no electrical connection between copper and steel/iron. I must be doing something right, the oldest one is still up, even though the coax going to it has died of old age.

Never heard of such a thing. I use insulators at each end, and in the old days I used a neon bulb or a 12V tail light bulb as a bleed off. I went to gas discharge tube arrestors a long time ago. The 12V bulb made a really nice light show on winter days when the wind was really going.

Everything about the power grid is federally controlled, and has been for as long as anyone can remember. If AZ were to cut of electricity to CA (or anywhere else), it would be a national security issue, as the grid supplies power to all state and federal infrastructure. It's not a matter of them being able to choose who they sell to, as a public carrier, they must sell to anyone able to pay. (For instance, they couldn't just come shut off your power because they don't like you.) The interstate sale is a bit different, but it's still a federally enforced contract. Also, such an action would set off a domino effect that would cripple the grid in many states.

I beg to differ on that Dave. Though the gubiment does a lot of misdirection, matter of fact just about everything is......immigration is not one of them IMO.

Press Release (AP) What has feathers, a hairy vagina covered with vomit after a cheap date? Shortwave frequency 3840 failed to come up with the goods after a world wide plug on USENET and some major conspiracy forums.
A promised Saturday night phone patch failed to bare fruit causing some dx'ers to post some forums that the pussies failed to deliver the goods. For the sake of it we will omit the call signs involved and names of the gentlemen involved but phone calls provided by QRZ was met with "clicks" , and "we're not talking" from a Wired reporter. At least ten short wave dx'ers from around the country flooded the Wired blurp desk with complaints after the phone patch failed to emerge after 12 midnight (PST).
Hollywood:"Those guys are a bunch of rotted cunts", Kansas City:
"We changed our schedule to listen this crap? What gives?", Nashville: "Them assholes ought to have their plugs pulled or maybe their pubes pulled out one by one" responded disgruntled listeners from around the country. One call to a Northern Californian participant, commented that "it was all a joke perpetrated by a loud mouth desert rat from Phelan and a complaint from one Arizoner dx'er whose child was listening... c'est la vie." Calls and emails to Art Bell and the phone patcher failed to pan out.

What kind of buld exactly is a "12V tail light bulb"?

Not a bad idea at the feed end as long as solder is conpatible with whatever method you use to make the connection. Solder slowly deforms and can make crimped or screw conenctions become loose over time.
I don't see any point at the other end.

This is nonsense. I suspect it arises from the way americans use the same word "static" to refer to both the high voltage static electricity that gives you shocks after walking on nylon carpets etc, and to refer to antenna noise. They are rather different things.

The only thing worth doing at both ends, with an insulated wire, is sealing the wire to keep moisture out

Well it might affect high voltage static electricity build up I guess but that won't be present when the antenna is connected to your receiver.
